Willkie Hits Tax Evasion Deals in Talk At Chicago

Nominee Addresses Stockyard Workers In Energetic Bid For Labor Support

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 13.—Wendell L. Willkie carried his campaign for the Presidency to the factory gates today, hitting hard and often in an attempt to break President Roosevelt's hold on the labor vote.

It was Friday the thirteenth and he was in the hostile territory of the Kelly-Nash machine, but the husky, heavy-shouldered Republican nominee appeared to revel in his uphill task.

Referring to Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Pat Nash, leaders of the local Democratic organization, Willkie shouted to his listeners in the stockyards:

"I say to you, Mayor Kelly and Pat Nash, that when I am President there will be no income tax settlements.

"A lot of people had better do all they can to beat me, because the penitentiary doors are going to open for some of them."

Threatens Prison for Bosses

Willkie told a second stockyards crowd a few minutes later that if he were elected "a lot of political bosses will be in Joliet or Leavenworth, or some place where they won't bother you any more."

Pounding at the New Deal on the theme of unemployment, he said:

"Jobs are the hope of America. Franklin Roosevelt does not know how—does not know what it means—either to work with his hands or to produce things so that other men can work."

President Roosevelt, he said, has promised labor the moon, but has never promised jobs.

"The only additional jobs we are getting today," Willkie said, "are those being produced by Hitler; the only additional jobs today are in our defense program and Hitler is requiring us to do that."

He said that if he were elected President, he would build an America so strong, so alive with whirring factory wheels, that no foreign dictator would ever strike at it.

Loses His Topcoat—and Voice

The Republican nominee whirled around Chicago for nine hours, and literally talked himself hoarse.

He stopped once to order a nickel hamburger and again to eat a 30-cent blue plate special at King's Eat Rite lunchroom. Somewhere along the line he lost his topcoat as well as his voice.

Fascist Chiodi Killed Over Malta

Rome, Sept. 13 ((AP) via Radio).—The Italian wireless today announced the death of Tonin Chiodi, member of the Fascist Grand Council, in an aerial battle "sometime ago" over Malta.

Pershing Says Europe's War Sounds 'Shrill Warning'

FOR DISTINGUISHED SERVICE—President Roosevelt pins Distinguished Service Cross on Gen. John J. Pershing in ceremony at White House witnessed yesterday by members of the Cabinet. Secretary of War Stimson watches the 80-year-old commander of the A. E. F. receive the medal.

Gen. John Joseph Pershing yesterday told the Nation that the din of Europe's war sounds a "warning call to America . . . shrill and imperative."

"The danger is imminent," the American Expeditionary Force commander said. He called on America to "face the facts of today" and "again avow eternal devotion to the principles of liberty and justice upon which this Nation rests."

The soberly spoken challenge closed a radio message marking Gen. Pershing's eightieth birthday. A few minutes earlier, the veteran of five wars and major campaigns told reporters he believes Britain can hold out against the German assault.

His radio address was made from a flower-banked desk in the State Department, in a high-ceilinged room lined with oil portraits of the five Americans who have been called General of the Armies—Washington, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and Pershing.

Gen. Pershing came to the State

Inquiry Asked On TVA Talks

By Robert C. Albright

Republicans yesterday carried to the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee their fight to pin a "political" label on the President's recent tours and speeches.

Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, chairman of the campaign investigating group, agreed to lay complaints of Hatch Act involvement before a meeting of his committee today. He refused to rule personally on the request because he said it involved "a partisan matter."

Chairman Martin of the Republican National Committee was invited to testify following a written request for an inquiry into who paid the expenses of the President's recent Tennessee Valley trip and whether they should be included as political expenses limited under the Hatch Act.

Martin told reporters he would

Bund Checked In Blast Probe

Newton, N. J., Sept. 13.—That sabotage was considered a possible cause of the blast that wrecked the plant of the Hercules Powder Co. at Kenvil yesterday gained credence today when it became known that F. B. I. agents had paid a 3 a. m. visit to Sheriff Denton Quick of Sussex County, in whose jurisdiction lies Camp Nordland, operated by the German-American Bund.

After a long conference they departed with the records of an intensive check-up of Bund camp visitors made by the sheriff with the aid of volunteer workers.

The sheriff said that the list of names he turned over to the Government agents contained many "who showed great enthusiasm toward Hitler's progress."

In May the sheriff started to re-

Get Behind Move to Reopen Testing Plant, Citizens Urged

District civic associations yesterday were asked by the American Automobile Association "to get behind" a move to reopen the city's closed Construction Material Testing Laboratory. It has been unused and costing Washington $15,000 a year since a 1933 proviso prohibiting its use was inserted in the District appropriation bill.

At the same time, Congressional leaders predicted the issue—which has been buffeted about on Capitol Hill since then—would again be considered at the next session of Congress.

The American Automobile Association, prompted by a story in The Post yesterday, sent a letter to all local citizen groups urging support of a movement to repeal the offending rider and release the extra $15,000 a year for other necessary needs—principally in the Traffic and Highway departments.

The letter was signed by Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the local A. A. A. club. It explained how the District is now forced to send samples of construction materials for testing to the Bureau of Standards, while the local laboratory with its expensive equipment remains idle. Cleveland declared that the cost of testing is far greater at the bureau than it would be in the city's own laboratory.

Representative Mahon (Democrat), of Texas, member of the District appropriations subcommittee, said it was "extremely likely" the local laboratory question would be brought before the next meeting of his group when Congress reconvenes after adjournment.

Conscript Bill Held Up; Senate Seeks Closer Rule Over Industry

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The Senate in a surprise move last night sent the peacetime conscription bill back to conference with the House to strengthen provisions for drafting industry.

This action, taken on a vote of 37 to 33, delayed final passage of the bill until today.

Overriding plans of the Senate leadership to pass the measure and send it to the White House immediately, a coalition of proponents and opponents of man power conscription forced rejection of a modified version of the "draft industry" section and instructed the Senate conferees to accept language with "more teeth in it."

The group sharply attacked the conference report version as "nullifying" the power it would grant to enable the Government to take over factories that do not cooperate in the defense program and charged that "property was being preferred over men."

On motion of Senator Neely (Democrat), West Virginia, the Senate finally rejected the conferees' proposal and instructed them to accept the stronger House-approved language.

Going into session as the Senate adjourned until 11 this morning, the conferees quickly agreed to accept the House provision. Their new report is to come before the Senate as it convenes, with passage of both houses expected before adjournment today.

House Meets Briefly

The House, which had been in recess all evening waiting for the Senate to act, met briefly to authorize consideration of the new conference report today.

Downtown, meanwhile, the War Department announced the award of contracts to two aviation companies for 540 pursuit planes, 196 noncombat types and a quantity of engines. The total of the awards was $41,440,470. This brings the number of Army planes on order from appropriations made during the present session to 3,533 out of 4,247 authorized. Of those ordered to date, 1,503 are fighting planes.

The Army also sent "speed-up" letters to nine companies, authorizing them to go ahead with preparations for the construction of 3 machine-gun plants and 11 ammunition factories. The total cost of

Panamanian Ship That Used U. S. Flag Penalized

The Treasury last night ordered the Panamanian motor vessel Norseland to leave New York Harbor immediately and to stay out of United States waters for three months because its former master illegally painted the American flag on the ship's side while traveling in danger zones.

The department made public a letter signed by Acting Secretary Herbert E. Gaston informing the ship's present master of the order. In an accompanying statement, the Treasury said the ship improperly used the flag "on a voyage from Colombo, Ceylon, to Liverpool, England, in April and while proceeding up the Mersey River at Liverpool in June."

Jury Deliberates Scalise Case

New York, Sept. 13 (AP).—A general sessions court jury tonight deliberated the innocence or guilt of George Scalise on charges that he had stolen a total of $9,662.27 from the Building Service Employes' International (A. F. L.), while he was union president.

Judge Jacob Gould Schurman, jr., in a 90-minute charge, advised the jury to consider whether Scalise entertained criminal intentions in his methods of keeping accounts. The court ruled that if Scalise is guilty, several of his associates also are guilty and should be tried on similar charges.

In three separate strides toward "total defense" President Roosevelt yesterday tightened the Government's grip on air power, revealed his desire to harness more electric energy in the Canadian-American St. Lawrence River Valley, and laid down a defense policy that in effect assures priority for Government orders.

As military chiefs speeded contracts for the $16,000,000,000 program to "make America strong," the President took these actions:

Clamped under the existing license system, all exports of equipment to make high-test aviation gasoline, plans for such equipment and plans for building aircraft or aircraft engines. Earlier this summer, aviation fuel had been placed under export control.

Said that talks were under way to expand power facilities in the St. Lawrence basin, but that the highly controversial question of digging a navigation channel through to the Great Lakes was being left out of the present picture.

Bomb Found Beneath Vital Hell Gate Bridge

New York, Sept. 13 (INS).—A "live" bomb, discovered by accident in a brickyard beneath Hell Gate Bridge, a vital railroad connecting link between New York and the New England States, was rendered useless late today by police.

When opened after it had been "killed," the bomb, which was a copper ball about 10 inches in diameter, was found loaded with shrapnel and black powder.

Investigation revealed the bomb was pulled from underneath some brick ovens on Tuesday and casually tossed into a pile of ashes by a workman who did not suspect that it might have been an explosive.

The brickyard is directly beneath the Hell Gate railroad bridge and about a quarter mile from huge gas tanks of the Consolidated Edison Co. As a precaution, police were instructed to guard the gas works.

Girl Buried 3 Days Survives Bombing

London, Sept. 13 (AP).—Buried three days in the debris of her bomb-blasted home, 14-year-old Mildred Castillo was reported recovering in a hospital today.

Three men passing the demolished home at 10 o'clock last night heard faint cries from the basement. Tunneling through the ruins, they found the girl still alive. The house was bombed Monday night. The girl's mother was believed dead in the wreckage.

Fierce Attack Tangles Reich Railroad Yards, Sinks Two Ships

By International News Service

London (Saturday), Sept. 14. British air bombing squadrons through the night and early today rocked the German invasion bases along the northern French coast with a prolonged storm of bombs that wrought fiery havoc, easily seen from the British side of the English Channel.

Relays of R. A. F. bombers hurtled across the Channel hour upon hour to strafe the Nazi blitzkrieg springboards, where troops, guns and ships are massed, with one of the most violent bombardments of the war.

The attacks were particularly heavy in the region of Cap Gris Nez near Calais, only 22 miles across the Channel from Dover, England. Watchers on the Dover cliffs saw a massive pillar of flame shoot high into the night sky, dimming the brilliance of German searchlights.

Coasts Tremble

Both coasts of the Channel trembled to the reverberations of bomb explosions interspersed with the continuous fire of Nazi antiaircraft guns that hurled "flaming onions" into the air by the hundreds.

It was apparent the R. A. F. was throwing ever-growing forces of machines and men into its battle to break up preparations for Adolf Hitler's anticipated attempt to land invaders on British soil.

A drive to paralyze the railway network feeding troops and supplies to Germany's coastal jump-off points was revealed as a major part of the R. A. F. counteroffensive.

Supply Ship, Tanker Hit

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, Sept. 13.—As the Germans concentrate shipping along the Channel ports they receive ever more pressing attention from the R. A. F. and from the fleet air arm. A Nazi tanker and a supply ship were hit by British bombers off Le Havre last night.

All the British aircraft concerned returned safely from the widespread operations.

Striking at the root of preparations for the invasion of Britain, the R. A. F. bombed railroad yards through which troops, reserves, equipment and supplies move westward toward the Channel ports.

Despite thick clouds and drizzling rain, the raiders dropped high explosives and incendiaries on the Hamm yards, the key railroad junction of northern Germany.

For once the German searchlights were dark. No attempt was made to pierce the murk. Antiaircraft fire was very slight. The only enemy light came from a headlight of a German bomber which was discouraged by a burst of fire from one of the British planes.

On the Luxembourg frontier, north of Trier, the Ehrang yards also were subjected to bursts of high explosives which fell along a line of freight cars, causing explosions and fires, which burned with a vivid glare.

Italians Mass 260,000 Men Against Egypt

British Believe Drive Aimed at Suez To Be Imminent

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Sept. 13.—Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, Italian commander in Libya, continued today to shift thousands of troops up to the Egyptian frontier for what the British considered an imminent offensive aimed at smashing 400 miles across Egyptian deserts to the Suez Canal.

Aerial scouts returning from flights over Libya estimated that Fascist forces, mostly concentrated at Bardia, 30 miles from the border, now numbered over 260,000.

Sporadic artillery fire rumbled along the border between advance posts as the British and Egyptian armies quietly completed preparations to meet any Italian thrust. Britain recently landed thousands of soldiers to reinforce the 60,000 desert troops in Egypt.

Egypt Ready to Fight

Egypt, with a British trained army of about 20,000, is ready to declare war on Italy only if the country is attacked.

There was a possibility the British might strike first since it was recalled Lieut. Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell recently told the troops "you will soon have plenty of work to do," and Sir Miles Lampson, British Ambassador to Egypt, said Britain soon would launch a "great counteroffensive."

Military observers expected any Italian offensive, however, to be timed with the projected Nazi invasion of England.

In northern Kenya, 2,000 miles south of the potential Egyptian battleground, Italian forces from southern Ethiopia already were on the move on a 200-mile front in an apparent thrust toward British Kenya's capital, Nairobi. British forces fighting a delaying action inflicted heavy losses on the Italians, the British said. In some places the Italians were 120 miles deep into

Germans Glide Past Barrage; House of Lords, Buckingham Hit

By the United Press

London (Saturday), Sept. 14. The battered heart of London was a deathtrap of pelting shrapnel and fiery bombs early today as Adolf Hitler's "total war" blazed into its second week with the Houses of Parliament, Buckingham Palace and Downing street scarred by its fury.

King George and his Scottish Queen, escaping uninjured from the bombing of their palace Friday morning, rallied their besieged subjects to new defiance of "the German barbarism" and officials charged Hitler with a murderous attempt to drive the government and King from London.

From every side, from the East End slums to the fashionable West End mansions—both of which have been ripped by Nazi bombs—came evidence of stout morale and cold anger.

An Infernal Place

Sowing incendiary bombs right and left, the raiders smashed upon London through a thunderous wall of fire thrown up by the city's new antiaircraft defenses and at 12:30 a. m.—three and a half hours after the start of the seventh night of siege—central London was an infernal place.

The all-clear signal came at 3:30 a. m., 8 hours 30 minutes after the night attack started.

Shrapnel from hundreds of "Archies" clattered everywhere like hail, shattering glass and carrying death for anyone unlucky enough to be in its path. Incendiaries were crashing down on office buildings, homes and apartment houses, starting fires.

The wail of "screamer" bombs pierced the din frequently and antiaircraft shells streaked across the sky in such a constant flow that it seemed like suddenly ignited rivers of oil were flowing above London.

In contrast with their approach, the raiders swept down frighteningly low early today, some of them less than 5,000 feet, to drop their bombs.

The night assault began at 9 o'clock the fourth attack of the day, after furious and unprecedented daylight attacks that virtually paralyzed this greatest of world cities and sent bombs smashing into the seat of Britain's far-flung empire.

Five Strike Palace

Five big bombs, presumably 100-pounders, crashed on Buckingham Palace about 8 a. m., wrecked the royal chapel and wounded three workers while the King and Queen were in underground shelter with others of the palace staff.

Incendiaries smashed into Downing street, official residence of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, near the foreign office and treasury, but with only minor damage.

London on Alert For Time Bombs

London, Sept. 13 (AP).—Authorities tonight were on the alert not only for falling bombs, but for those that had landed and had not exploded.

Five of these time bombs, it was disclosed, now lie in the vicinity of St. Paul's Cathedral. The church and nearby area were under close guard and the bombs covered with sandbags.

Airliner's Motor Catches Afire, But Plane Lands Safely With 13

With ambulances and fire engines waiting, an American Airlines plane carrying 13 persons, including two men from Bethesda, made an emergency landing at an airport near Louisville, Ky., last night after one of its two motors caught fire in midair, the Associated Press reported.

The Washington passengers aboard were P. J. Hennessey, lawyer, of 116 S. Chelsea Lane, Bethesda, and Joseph A. Chambers, radio engineer who lives in River Road, Bethesda.

The blaze was extinguished before landing. Maj. Reed Landis, vice president of the company and one of the passengers, told the Associated Press.

Maj. Landis said he first noticed smoke curling from the wing behind the left motor shortly after the liner had taken off from Louisville for Cincinnati.

He informed the pilot, Capt. W. A. Miller, of New York City, who cut off the motor, operated a built-in fire extinguisher and radioed to Bowman Field to have ambulances and fire fighting apparatus on the field when the plane came in. But the precautions were not needed.

Among the passengers was W. E. Pace, 53, Goldsboro, N. C., making his first flight. He said he would continue his air trip.

Other passengers: E. W. McCain, Frankfort, Ky.; Kenneth Paul, New York City; E. J. Loewe, Cincinnati; R. E. Ganoung, Cincinnati; Louis Bader, New York City, and Jack Squire, New York City.

Other crew members: First Officer E. K. Gann, New York City, and Stewardess Barbara McLaurin, Griffin, Ga.

seat of British rule on the bank of the Thames in London's heart.

Exactly when the bombing occurred was not revealed.

Incendiary bombs set raging fires in the fashionable West End shopping district around Bond and Regent streets. A whole block of offices and shops was set ablaze and authorities, fearing delayed-action bombs, such as damaged the north wing of Buckingham Palace Tuesday, began evacuating several districts.

Many buildings around St. James's Park, near the palace, were hit with incendiaries dropped by the low-swooping Nazi raiders in their hour-after-hour daylight attacks.

King George and Queen Elizabeth, undismayed by the attack on them and their royal residence, later in the day visited bombed tenement districts of the East End and inquired after the injured.

Apparently in an effort to elude the new detector device of London's antiaircraft barrage which is said to have befuddled the Nazi raiders for the past two nights, the enemy airmen resorted to "glide attacks" last night, sweeping down low with motors cut off to unloose their bomb loads.

As the German planes came on London last night—rounding out a week of terror on Friday the 13th—they were flying extremely high and were encountering a murderous barrage to the south and southeast.

The wail of antiaircraft fire around the city proper was fierce, with bursting shells dotting the skies everywhere.

Still incendiaries fell in great salvos, mostly in the southern and southwestern areas.

During the three daylight attacks, one of them lasted for four hours and ten minutes, a large number of German planes were said to have been brought down and over London Nazi fliers were seen dropping from crippled planes by parachute.

Official government figures last night showed 1,120 dead and 4,660 wounded in the first five nights of the mass attacks, not including Thursday or Friday nights. On Wednesday night, latest for which official figures are available, 110 persons were killed and 260 injured.

Peers' Hall Undamaged

The incendiary bomb which struck the House of Lords was said to have been extinguished quickly and no damage to the place where England's peerage sits in parliamentary debate was visible from the street.

The bombing of Buckingham Palace and Downing street with showers of high explosive and incendiaries was described by the British as "deliberate," apparently aimed at enforcing a Nazi threat to drive the royal family and the government from the capital.

Three plumbers who had been working on the south wing of the palace were injured slightly and damage was considerable.

One bomb smashed through the roof of the chapel. Two bombs of apparently 100-pound size landed in the inner quadrangle of the palace, narrowly missing portions of the palace where direct hits would have inflicted great damage, two others fell in the roadway between the big Victoria Memorial and the palace gates.

Many buildings around the palace were hit.

[They nicked a wing of the Admiralty from which the world's greatest navy is directed, the Associated Press said. Other ancient landmarks hit included:

[Somerset House, on the Strand, where ancient records have lain thick and undisturbed for many a century; the Piccadilly Hotel; Berkeley Square; the world-famous bridle path of Rotten Row; the churches of St. Magnus the Martyr, St. Swithin's, St. Mary-at-Hill, St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, St. Mary Woolnoth, St. Clement's, St. Augustine's, St. Giles Cripplegate, Our Lady of Victory and a Roman Catholic church in the West End.]

Second Attack

It was the second destructive bombing attack on Buckingham Palace in four days. On Tuesday a delayed-action bomb dropped by a night raider exploded on the north side of the walls, shattering the swimming pavilion built for Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, gouging walls and breaking scores of windows.

[The young princesses were not in the palace, the Associated Press reported. It is understood they have been taken away from London.]

The big bomb which wrecked the chapel, where the Princesses and others of the royal family were baptized, gouged out a great part of the floor and badly damaged the altar.

Streets around Buckingham Palace were roped off last night and the gold, red and blue royal standard flew from the palace as crews of workers set about cleaning up the wreckage, particularly of the royal chapel near the Ambassadors' entrance.

In St. James's Park, within 900 yards of the palace, eight incendiary bombs fell in a space about half the size of a football field, indicating that the whole area around the palace had been attacked with "breadbasket" clusters of incendiaries.

Many windows of the south wing of the palace were shattered and walls were splattered with bomb fragments. A water main burst, throwing a cascade of water into the air.

Bomb Falls in Lift Shaft

An incendiary bomb crashed through the skylight of a big Anglo-American business building, falling down the elevator shaft to the basement where it was extinguished before causing damage.

[American Red Cross and American Ambulance Zonal Headquarters at Tunbridge Wells sustained minor damage during a German bombing raid, International News Service reported.

The attacks on London started at 7:35 a. m., only an hour and 50 minutes after a dusk to dawn attack of eight hours and 34 minutes duration.

The first attack lasted 56 minutes. At 9:46 a. m. the second attack began and lasted for four hours and 10 minutes. The third alarm, an 18-minute one beginning at 3:54 p. m., coincided with a terrific explosion in the heart of London. Large fires leaped up to the west and southeast.

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 13.—A belief on the part of many Americans that Germany will attempt an invasion of the United States if England is defeated, and a belief that Fifth Columnists are already active in the United States, are indicated in the answers of rank-and-file voters in a Nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

While some voters felt that such an attempt would not come for two years or more, nearly half of those who thought an invasion might come at all said they expected it "immediately after an English defeat" or "within a year's time."

Thirteen Per Cent Undecided

The Institute put the following question to a cross-section of men and women in each State:

"Mr. Bullitt, our Ambassador to France, says that if Great Britain is defeated the Germans will invade the United States. Do you think they will?"

The replies were:

|---|---|
| Think they will | 42% |
| Think not | 45 |
| Undecided or no opinion | 13 |

Sharp differences of opinion were shown in the comments voters made in response to the question. Those who felt that a German invasion was not to be expected said "it would be impossible to bring it off," or "it couldn't be done," or "Germany would have her hands full in Europe."

"Won't Be Satisfied"

On the other hand, those expecting a Nazi atack on this country argued that "Hitler won't be satisfied with anything less than world domination," or that "Germany couldn't stop with her victories in Europe."

The survey also found that a majority of those who were able to define Fifth Column activities and who had definite opinions on the subject of Fifth Columns in the United States thought that such activities already were under way.

The Institute's question asked:

"Without mentioning names, do you think there are any Fifth Columnists in this country?"

The replies of those able to define Fifth Column activities were:

|---|---|
| Yes | 48% |
| No | 26 |
| Don't know | 26 |

"We're not getting excited about it out here," said a Midwestern voter, "but we're not going to be caught napping."

Peace Mobilization Calls Rally to Block Draft Bill

500 at Turner's Arena Hear Leader Urge 'Thousands' to Mass in Capital, Cheer When Told Measure Was Recommitted

Officers of the American Peace Mobilization last night called for "thousands of delegates to come to Washington this week-end to defeat the conscription bill forever" at a mass meeting of the organization attended by more than 500 persons at Turner's Arena.

Pandemonium broke loose in the hall for five minutes when the chairman, John P. Davis, executive secretary of the National Negro Congress, announced at 9 p. m. that the Senate had recommitted the conscription bill.

Paul Robeson, colored barytone, appeared on the platform in the capacity of what he termed "the artist who has a real part to play in this fight." He sang a selection of numbers ranging from "Ol' Man River" to the labor-movement song, "Joe Hill."

Coming directly to the hall from the floor of the House, Representative Vito Marcantonio (American Labor), of New York, pledged himself to demand a recorded vote on the bill in the House.

"With the Fish amendment out of the bill we'll have a clear-cut issue on whether Congress is against conscription," he declared. The conscription of wealth section of the bill he termed a "phoney."

Other speakers included Mary Grossman, of Philadelphia, former vice president of the American Federation of Teachers; Fred Keller, a member of the International Brigade in the Spanish civil war; Leo Strauss, of New York, and Bud James, secretary of the Workers Alliance.

Dempsey Strives To Take Chavez's Place in Senate

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Sept. 13 (AP).—John J. Dempsey, who sponsored the Hatch Act through a recalcitrant House, faced the fight of his short public career today in his effort to wrest the Democratic Senatorial nomination from Senator Dennis Chavez.

The fight, waged with a bitterness sharp even in the catch-as-catch-can politics of New Mexico, tops interest in the State's first direct primary elections tomorrow at which nominees for all State offices, Congress, and the State Legislature will be chosen at the polls instead of in convention.

British Troops Bombed

By the Associated Press

Rome, Sept. 13.—Italy has opened an almost continuous air offensive on British troop centers in Egypt, the Sudan and Kenya, the high command reported today, apparently as the essential preliminary to a big land and naval attack.

When Marshal Graziani will order his tanks and motorized units forward to follow up the air attacks still was not known.

"The attack will come," said the newspaper Corriere Della Sera, "at the hour fixed by our command."

Meanwhile, Italian dispatches reported that by day and by night British encampments, marching columns, ports and railway lines are being destroyed and disrupted by tons of falling explosives.

Italian Communique

British troops concentrated in intrenched camps and fortifications along the coast of Egypt are being heavily bombed and machine-gunned, Fascist sources declared.

A special communique today claimed these as the latest in a series of successes against the British grazed a barrage balloon cable with its wing tip. The bomber carried on and ten large fires were started in the yards.

British motorized columns and other objectives bombed on the Egyptian coast; a gasoline storage tank set afire and trucks, armored cars and tanks put out of action by repeated hits; British positions in the Sudan hit and a motorized column in Kenya bombed.

Ice forming on the wings handicapped the raiders attacking the Essen freight yards, but the bombs were dropped and the rear gunner of one aircraft saw the missiles burst among the tangle of switches. The Schwerte yards were also attacked in the face of an intense barrage from antiaircraft batteries, and another raider dropped his load on a switch line at Emmerich, on the Rhine, near the Dutch frontier.

Much of the German military traffic has recently been routed through the Brussels yards, which have been repeatedly attacked by the R. A. F. They were attacked again last night and a U-shaped fire, three-quarters of a mile long, was seen to start in the north of the yard. There was a series of green colored explosions after which another fire, 200 yards long, was seen in the middle of the siding.

Another section of the raiders visited Emden and bombed the docks and petroleum sheds on the west side of the Altebinnen Arfend. For an hour the R. A. F. hammered the German ports and large fires which threw up thick, black smoke were started. A quay and barge were seen to be hit.

A terrific surge of explosives flung one attacking bomber 600 feet upwards, after he had struck an ammunition dump on the dock side.

Invasion Hour 'Nearer,' Nazi Press Boasts

British Gas, Oil Tanks Reported Blasted By Dive Bombers

By the United Press

Berlin (Saturday), Sept. 14.—German dive-bombers were reported early today to have blasted gas and oil tanks near Buckingham Palace in a fierce assault on London as the Nazi press boasted that the hour is drawing nearer for the invasion of Britain.

As soon as the Royal Air Force is knocked out of the skies and Britain is isolated from the outside world, the signal will be given for the invasion of the British Isles by German troops, the press asserted.

Well-informed quarters said that Junkers-87 dive-bombers, sweeping down out of the clouds, rocketed toward the gas and oil tanks near Buckingham Palace and unloosed their bombs.

Other Nazi bombers were said to have splashed explosives over paper and lumber mills and grain elevators north of Whitechapel, in London's East End district.

Clouds Shield Attackers

Overcast skies, it was said, allowed the Heinkels, Dorniers and Junkers to swoop down—sometimes with their engines off—and drop bombs and roar back into the safety of the nearest cloud bank before British fighters were able to engage them.

Only one German bomber was reported missing.

Striking south of the world's largest city, the German planes bombed railroad tracks below Erith on the London-Gravesend Railway, Nazi quarters said.

These sources belatedly reported a raid on the Cunliffe Downs airplane factory at Southampton by heavy forces of bombers several days ago. They said that "production will be halted for the next few months" and claimed that a nearby aeronautical research plant, specializing in experiments with long-range bombers, had been severely hit also.

Both the press and Nazi quarters for the first time were speaking of the invasion of Britain with emphasis on the near future.

Occupation Held Secondary

"We presently are seeing how the air force can be a decisive factor in modern war," well-informed quarters said. "Once our Luftwaffe has pulverized British air defenses—the R. A. F. and aircraft production apparatus—the actual occupation with land forces becomes practically a secondary, technical matter."

Amid glowing reports of new successful German air attacks on London, the newspaper Boersen Zeitung published a special article by Gen. Paul Hasse in which he said the Nazi obective is to destroy the Royal Air Force, cut Britain off from trade with the outside world and then launch the invasion.

Well-informed quarters said German bomber groups had set great fires raging in London Friday and had spread out far beyond the British capital to the north and northwest, attacking military objectives—harbors, docks, warehouses, war factories and transport junctions.

German quarters admitted that British planes had bombed Essen, where the great Krupp armaments works are located; Bremen, one of Germany's chief ports, and Hanover, a vital industrial center.

Admit Essen Bombed

The Nazzis said that British planes had dropped bombs in a suburban street and destroyed some workers' houses in an attack on Essen.

(This was the first German announcement of an attack on Essen, although the British have claimed hits on it many times.)

While the press called for more retaliatory raids on Britain, Gen. Hasse wrote that "our friend, Italy, has tied down in the Mediterranean a great part of the British fleet and there and in Africa there is a remainder of British troops and the remnants of the British air force. When German dive bombers for the first time hurtle down in masses on the English divisions, then that will be the end not only of England as a world power, but of England as a power factor, at all."

He said that "the hour is approaching when no enemy in the air will resist German bombers when they are acting together with the navy and when they will be able to continue their destructive work, many times intensified, unhindered by the English air force.

"That means the total cutting off of the British Isles from the outside world, that means the end of British trade, that means misery and hunger—which England had planned for the German people."

London Called Scene of Chaos

Berlin, Sept. 13 (AP).—Air-stormed London has been turned into a "scene of chaos," a flying German gunner-observer declared today.

One dock section has been so splotched by fires, ploughed by bombs and blanketed by smoke that a low-altitude reconnaissance showed no antiaircraft batteries in action to protect it, said Hans Rechenberg, former economics ministry official, who gave this bomb-sight picture.

He suggested that the heat was so fierce and the smoke so thick that gunners had to give up their posts along the Thames riverfront.

Government Should Move From London, Says Seversky

Nazi Bombardment Has Not Reached Maximum Fury, Major Writes, Urging Withdrawal From Capital

By Maj. Alexander P. De Seversky.
By the United Press

SEVERSKY

The Nazi bombardment of London has by no means reached its maximum fury. Marshal Goering and his general staff will undoubtedly apply the tactical lessons of these initial days of all-out aerial offensive further; phases of the onslaught more intensive and more devastating.

Already they have confirmed the belief of aviation experts that defense against night bombings of a huge sprawling target is relatively ineffective; and their cost in machines—even at the 3-to-1 ratio claimed by Winston Churchill—is by no means prohibitive in view of Germany's wide numerical margin.

Under these circumstances it seems reasonable to expect the withdrawal of the British government, at an early date, to a more defensible if not impregnable spot in the interior of England. Because such a transfer is in itself a complicated undertaking, calling for extensive technical equipment of the new state center, it is inconceivable that such preparations are not already under way.

Move Is Imperative

The possibility of an invasion, in fact, makes the move imperative, as a glance at the map will show. The very geographical factors which made London a world metropolis make it an easier mark for an invading force. There is no place for sentiment in this war; the government should not remain in London for one second for any sentimental reason if its functions are impaired in the slightest degree.

Friends of Britain, indeed, should hope that the moving job is already being organized. Obviously it would be less demoralizing for a government to withdraw at leisure as a tactical procedure, rather than to risky, a panicky flight under enemy pressure.

Had Britain grasped the reality of total warfare earlier, it would have prepared a "wartime capital" long ahead of time, even before the war started. Paradoxically, the more advanced the industralization of a country, the more vulnerable it is to aerial attack—so much of its life hinges on technological arrangements which can be disrupted from the skies.

Government nowadays may be thought of as a huge and complex central switchboard, and it is merely good sense to take it out of harm's way as far and as quickly as possible. It is only a historical accident, of course, that has placed this invaluable switchboard in the heart of a vast industrial and population center like London, where it is itself more exposed and a source of danger to the metropolis and its millions of inhabitants.

Washington Fortunate

The hits scored on Buckingham Palace are of negligible importance compared with the damage admittedly done to water supply, gas, light and other public utilities. Disruption of electric power and telephone lines can cripple a government more surely than direct hits on its office buildings.

We are fortunate in our own country that our Capital is relatively isolated and its protection not unduly complicated by industrial and population factors. But much remains to be done. Not enough thought has been given to types of construction and other defense measures for our vital Government departments in Washington, in the light of current experience. It is apparent that all nations in the future must plan their government headquarters, even in the matter of architecture, for more satisfactory defense.

That, by and large, is what Britain would do in moving its government—if it does so in good time and with sufficient advance preparation. Away from London it would become a smaller target and therefore less vulnerable, since small targets are more readily defended in the air and more susceptible to protection by antiaircraft guns.

A government seat should and can be in the nature of a citadel, rather than an accidental accretion of buildings. An approximation of such defensive "streamlining" could be achieved at some point in the interior, away from the metropolis and its special problems.

Need Not Be a "Fall"

Because the world still thinks in the military language of the past, the transfer of the government might be erroneously headlined as "the fall" of London. It would not necessarily be anything of the kind. We need only recall the prolonged and tragic aerial bombardments of Barcelona and certain Chinese cities to realize how long London might hold out even under disastrous straffing.

Another moral for America in the terrifying story of the rain of death over London is the old one—that the best defense is offense.

The only satisfactory defense against night bombings such as are now in progress, for instance, is to strike at the enemy's weapon, its bombers, on its home grounds—to strike at its bases, fuel depots, aviation factories. The great battle of London should be fought—and in considerable measure is being fought—over Leipzig, Hamburg, Berlin.

The present air conflict, it seems to me, thus emphasizes the absurdity of clinging to a "purely defensive" preparedness. That might be a desirable ideal, but in the context of present day methods of war it is merely a type of wishful thinking carried over intact from a time when war was two-dimensional and relatively primitive. How naive, in retrospect, are the statements of certain American public men, not so long ago, in which they argued for building and selling only "defensive" weapons. London—fighting for its life over in Germany!—is the tragic commentary on such statements.

London Standing Up

Copyright by New York Times

London, Sept. 13.—Military experts, after careful study of the damage of this week's air raids, have concluded that the essential services of this highly industrialized country had stood up under the battering very well so far.

The government evacuation plans have been speeded up. From all parts of the city, people moved yesterday to billets in the country, where Ministry of Health officials have been trying to get them to go ever since the war started.

Examination of Britain's position indicates her communications, distribution, industrial production and morale have yet not been seriously impaired.

London bus, taxi and subway services have been reduced, but the nationwide railroads are working at least 90 per cent normal.

Vandenberg Calls Tax Bill a 'Mess'

LaFollette Also Hits Excess Profits Measure in Senate

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

Attacking the excess-profits bill as an "imponderable mess," Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, yesterday warned his colleagues that "this is no time to shake dice with the destiny of American business."

Senator Vandenberg's blast against the complicated bill shortly after it reached the Senate floor was followed by a 2½-hour denunciation of the proposed tax by Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin.

Senator Vandenberg urged immediate passage of the proposals in the bill for five-year amortization of new national defense plants and suspension of profit limitations on ship and aircraft contracts, but fuller study of the excess-profits levies.

Senator La Follette advocated a form of excess-profits levy quite different from that in the bill and much more in keeping with suggestions of the Treasury Department.

Hopes for Action Today

No action on the tax bill or any of its proposed amendments was taken by the Senate yesterday, as the conference report on the conscription bill occupied the latter half of the afternoon and the evening. Chairman Harrison of the Finance Committee hoped to reach a vote on some of the amendments, if not the bill itself, today.

Opening debate on the measure, which has taken many weeks to reach the Senate floor, Senator Harrison said his committee had tried to reach "a semblance of an excess-profits tax." He said "sharp differences" between the Treasury and Congressional tax experts had developed during consideration of the bill.

Conceding that the Senate bill was a "tremendous improvement" over the House proposal, Senator Vandenberg declared that his "chief concern" now was that "it will stunt the growth of small business."

"The excess profits tax section of the bill is neither an excess-profits tax in the true sense of the word, nor a revenue tax in the true sense of the word, nor an anti-war millionaires tax in the true sense of the word. It is nothing except a stop-gap effort to shadow-box with this emergency," he said.

Fails to Produce Money

"We are desperately in need of money. This bill does not produce it. We need to stop undue enrichment out of this national emergency. This bill does not stop it. The supreme tragedy of the situation is that the country will be led to believe that we are facing these necessities when we are not," he declared.

He told the House that the party had perpetrated "gigantic fraud" and summarized a committee survey of the party's election petitions in Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, New Jersey and Ohio.

The committee sent hundreds of letters to persons whose names appeared on the Pennsylvania petition, Starnes said, and replies showed:

1. That thousands had never actually signed the petition.

2. That thousands said the petition was misrepresented to them as relating to better housing, playgrounds, lowering of gas rates and "scores of other causes."

Blackie the Cat, Minnie the Rat Tweak Nose of Superstition

SHE'S NOT SUPERSTITIOUS—Well, if this isn't the cat's whiskers. Blackie giving Minnie a pat on the back on Friday 13th!

Two consummate cynics, Blackie the cat and Minnie the white rat, gave a front-window demonstration yesterday to show that environment outdoes heredity and that Friday the 13th is a lot of catnip.

Caring neither for a gallery of scientists nor for the superstitious, but playing entirely to the public that passed their window, the cat and the rat undertook an impromptu demonstration, which may, after all, have been only a preview of 1940 football tackling technique.

First the cat tackled the rat, then the rat grabbed a pawful of cat's whiskers; then, like prize fighters, they clinched and then tried to kiss. Mrs. E. J. Dailey, their owner, of 1015 N street northwest, said the picture ought to be sent to Life.

Whereupon, to make the thing seasonal, Minnie made an off-claw run by Blackie, baiting the cat into an open-window-ledge run, in order to perform a tackle by the tail behind the Venetian blinds.

They ate their Friday thirteenth lunch together by way of further flicking a whisker at superstition and made a gesture at confounding science when Blackie, who should perhaps have ordered raw, red meat on so grim a day, shared an innocuous potato with Minnie.

The animals were not only friendly but extremely polite to each other. Blackie, it was testified, always likes what Minnie has for lunch, and Minnie likes what the cat orders.

Science may say "catnip" back to all this because, so far as is known, Blackie never saw any rat but Minnie, since they were brought together when very young. He might kill another rat and then, discovering his classic reason of being, take on Minnie some day by none-too-subtle mistake. But now Blackie is innocent; just a guy not knowing what he is supposed to do. He didn't know yesterday what a silly puss he was, playing there in a window with a rat, and letting his class down on a Friday thirteenth.

Willkie Lashes Out at Tax-Evasion Deals In Addresses to Chicago Labor Groups

Visits Stockyards And Factories in Bid For Workers' Support

American Giants, hoarsely addressing 15,000 colored voters and urging them and voters among 13,000,000 other American Negroes to leave the New Deal and come back to the party of Lincoln.

Willkie made one statement at the colored rally of particular interest to Washington. He said that under the New Deal in the Federal Government, "regular Jim Crow departments have been created."

"Hooray for Roosevelt!"

He promised to eliminate such departments, to end discrimination because of race or color, and to see "that colored citizens are appointed to any branch of the Federal civil service to which they are qualified."

Willkie through the day ran into no malicious hecklers, only some good-natured workers yelling, "Hooray for Roosevelt."

He got applause from some of the workers, silence from others, but polite respectfulness from all.

White-collar workers—representatives of the so-called middle class which plays so important a part in elections—gave Willkie a tumultuous reception as he traveled through Chicago's loop.

In the course of the day and evening, Willkie probably addressed 50,000 persons and was seen by close to a half million as he dashed from speech to speech.

In Old Speaking Form

He was a different Willkie from the Willkie at Elwood. For one thing, he was freed of prepared manuscripts and radio microphones, the result was a slam-bang type of oratory that was more suited to him. Willkie, as H. L. Mencken said, is at his best when he goes in for "extemporaneous hollering."

The big Hoosier, embarked at last on the "crusade" he has been promising, barged into places in Chicago that had never before seen a Presidential candidate.

He went into the stockyards to face a lunch-hour crowd of laborers, drovers and butchers with blood-spattered aprons. He stood on a hay wagon surrounded by American Legion men, and if he noticed the aroma that floated across the yards, he did not betray the fact.

He spoke in front of the huge Western Electric Co. plant, lifting his head so that he could see the thousands of workers crowded at the windows.

Lunches at "Greasy Spoon"

Having finished this oration, he went into a "greasy-spoon" type of lunchroom on Cermak avenue and bolted down a hamburger.

Back-tracking toward Chicago's Loop district, travelling through a storm of ticker-tape that descended in the financial district of La Salle street, the Willkie caravan sped to the plant of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Co.

G. O. P. strategists attached particular importance to Willkie's speech before today's colored rally. Willkie, it is reported, has been the target for a whispering campaign accusing him of bias against the colored race.

Before the nominee arrived at the ball park, his son, Philip Willkie, struck a blow in his father's behalf. He and Ray Evans, jr., colored, were introduced by former Congressman Oscar De Priest as friends and erstwhile classmates at Rushville.

Young Philip later explained that while he and Ray had never been classmates, they had, as small boys, been playmates when both used to ride on a junk wagon operated by Ray's grandfather.

De Priest's Son Speaks

Sanford De Priest, son of the now white-haired Oscar, made a fiery speech while waiting for Willkie to arrive. He accused President Roosevelt of planning to send a conscript army to fight for a foreign power. He predicted that Willkie would free colored Americans from the "slavery" of the New Deal.

William E. King, colored candidate for a seat in the House, introduced Willkie. He, too, struck at the whispering campaign, and said that Willkie's valiant fight against the Ku Klux Klan back in the 20's showed his love of tolerance. Also, he said, Willkie's former power company, Commonwealth & Southern, had been much more just and liberal toward colored workers than President Roosevelt's Tennessee Valley Authority.

As Willkie talked, promising real jobs instead of a life on relief, he was frequently interrupted by yells in the ball park.

"We want jobs," some cried.

"Amen!" echoed others.

From a physical standpoint, Willkie's whirl around Chicago today was like that of a candidate for alderman. He was scheduled to make four speeches. That was a pretty ambitious program in itself. But actually he made seven or eight. If a crowd gathered at an intersection, he would jump up on the seat of his touring car and let fly with a speech.

No Honeyed Phrases

He spoke vigorously, freely, never seeming to be at a loss for words. He uttered no honeyed phrases, neither did he try to do anything about his Hoosier diction. Altogether, his delivery was in sharp contrast to the Groton-Harvard delivery of President Roosevelt.

Some of Willkie's advisers had warned him against going into the stockyards. They feared he might get a frigid reception. Willkie overruled this advice, and made no secret of that fact today.

"I came up here to look you over," Willkie told the crowd at the stockyards. "I want you to look me over. My opponent said I would not come into a section like this in Chicago. You see me.

"I have worked as hard as any guy in this crowd, and if you give me a month's training I will do as good work with my hands as any one of you."

This stockyards gathering did not give Willkie a reception that could be called vociferous. However, it was respectful.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—A Chicago newspaper friendly to the New Deal today carried this banner, "Willkie Says: 'To Hell With Chicago.'"

It came about in this way: Willkie was beginning his speech in front of the Western Electric plant, and he thought he still was in Chicago proper.

"No, this is Cicero," a bystander shouted.

"Cicero, is it?" Willkie returned, laughing. "Fine—to hell with Chicago—we're out from under Kelly and Nash."

Mrs. West, of Alabama, Says 'Strange Creature' Has Preempted Rule

By the Associated Press

Mrs. Mable Jones West, president of the Alabama Women's Democratic Clubs, told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee yesterday that President Roosevelt's candidacy for a third term was a "violation of democratic principles of government and a serious threat to our American way of life."

She called on "Democrats to repudiate the strange creature who has taken over for the time being our Democratic Party" and vote for Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for President.

Mrs. Jones, of Birmingham, appeared as a witness at the public hearings on whether to submit a constitutional amendment to limit the length of time a man can be President.

Dean William E. Masterson, of Fordham University, New York City, testifying in support of limiting the Presidency to two four-year terms, said the issue would not be decided by the coming election because of the "confusion and disorder, the prejudices and passions, the appeal and persuasion or personalities which will attend national elections."

Masterson said framers of the Constitution and other Presidents had not foreseen that "Presidents would eventually be able to dictate their own nomination by conventions completely dominated by them."

All Presidents, the witness testified, "can summon to their support corrupt political machines of immense power, and they have at their disposal enormous patronage, millions of positions, and billions of money with which to make the appeal. These corrupt and corrupting influences and controls have reached staggering proportions in our day. What is there to prevent self-perpetuation under existing conditions except a constitutional limitation of the Presidential term of office?"

He said if a prime issue was national defense preparedness "this can best be accomplished by a President who has a deep experience in business, a broad background of industrial knowledge, and a clear and quick perception of business problems, and a sympathetic interest in business, rather than by a President who antagonizes and dejects business and who has demonstrated an inability to further its interests."

Jones Nominated For Secretary Of Commerce

Jesse Jones, of Houston, Tex., was nominated by President Roosevelt yesterday to be Secretary of Commerce and the Senate was expected to confirm him quickly.

Congress recently passed legislation enabling Jones to take the Cabinet post without leaving his present position as Federal Loan Administrator.

The appointment rounds out a Cabinet which has seen several shifts in recent weeks. Frank C. Walker attended his first meeting with the President's official family yesterday afternoon, having been sworn in as Postmaster General only two days ago. Claude R. Wickard took the oath last week as the new Secretary of Agriculture.

First Lady Sorry Porter Didn't Say He Was Underpaid

New York, Sept. 13 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is grieved because a Cincinnati redcap didn't tell her she'd underpaid him by 20 cents through an oversight.

In her column, "My Day," she wrote today:

"It seems that I have to read the papers to find out about my shortcomings! I must say, many as they are, novel ones creep up on me all the time. Yesterday I found a little item announcing that in Cincinnati, at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing, a porter testified that I had paid him 50 cents for a 70-cent service and that he had not told me of my mistake.

"What grieves me is that he did not tell me, for I have always doubted whether the new rule of 10 cents a bag gave the porters sufficient pay. Therefore, I thought that I had always paid not only my 10 cents a bag, but a tip in addition."

The Cincinnati porter testified in a hearing to determine whether the method of paying 10 cents a parcel for luggage handling is contrary to the interstate commerce laws.

'Toil, Blood, Tears' —Britons May Pay Still Higher Taxes

London, Sept. 13 (AP).—The prospect of heavier taxes was seen today in a declaration by Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, that it is undesirable for the country to try to finance itself through the war mainly by treasury bills and other forms of unfunded debt.

Sir Kingsley, addressing the Lord Mayor's luncheon at Leeds, said the large sum required to avoid inflation meant a strict reduction in consumption, heavy taxation and continuous saving and lending.

"It can not profit anyone to withhold a single penny," he said. "We have much to endure, much to suffer."

not appear, but said Gillette would read his letter. He said he asked Gillette for a clarification of the Hatch Act as applied to costs of the Presidential trips. The act places a $3,000,000 limitation on expenditures of a national campaign committee. Martin repeatedly has charged that the President's Chickamauga Dam dedication trip was "political" and its cost should be included under Democratic campaign expenses, subject to the same restrictions as the campaign spending for Wendell Willkie.

He recently publicly demanded that the committee "immediately should ascertain whether the cost of Mr. Roosevelt's political sally into the Tennessee Valley is being paid out of public money."

The question was pressed by Martin yesterday after Gillette had called on Oren Root, jr., president of the Associated Willkie Clubs, and John O. Young to "explain a series of magazine advertisements asking funds" to help Willkie.

Pointing out that Willkie had said he would stay within the spirit and letter of Hatch Act spending limitations, Gillette said Root and Young would be asked if the solicited Willkie club funds were considered independent of any State or national campaign fund. He did not disclose who made this complaint.

While Gillette frequently acts for the committee in ordering investigations into complaints, he said he preferred to have the committee itself rule on the Martin request. He withheld his opinion of the Hatch Act construction.

Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, author of the campaign spending restrictions, said that in his opinion if any trip by the President was clearly "political," then the cost should be listed as a campaign expense.

"But who is going to determine whether the Tennessee trip was political?" asked Hatch. He said no actual violation of the Hatch Act would be involved unless first the trip was "political"; second, it is not listed as a campaign expense; and third, its inclusion would carry Democratic committee spending over the $3,000,000 limitation. Hatch is not a member of the Gillette committee.

Won First Skirmish

Martin recently won his first skirmish in the tilt over Presidential speech making when the broadcasting companies agreed to allow Willkie an equivalent amount of radio time to answer the President's Chickamauga Dam speech. The President subsequently permitted his labor speech here before the teamsters' union Wednesday to be billed as "political," with the cost charged to the Democratic National Committee, although he told the teamsters they would have to decide whether it was political or not.

As Republicans spent over $8,000,000 in 1936 and Democrats over $5,000,000, both groups were obviously having difficulty staying within the new $3,000,000 limit imposed by the Hatch law. Hence the battle on both sides to force the listing of all possible "expenses" by the other.

Reports filed with the clerk of the House by both committees for the three-month period ended August 31 indicated both Republicans and Democrats in this campaign have been spending at a far lower rate.

Republicans reported spending in the three months at $886,144, compared to $1,783,000 in the same period of 1936, while Democrats disclosed spending $339,141, compared to $1,008,840 in the 1936 period.

Most of the Republican receipts were from individuals, ranging up to the $5,000 individual limit. Democrats collected only $197,418 from advertisements in the convention year book, as against $357,475 in 1936.

At the Senate Campaign Committee meeting this morning, Gillette said agents investigating charges that registration rolls in Hudson County, New Jersey, and in the Wilmington, Dela., area are being "padded and controlled" will report.

A Democratic movement in Wisconsin to nominate John Cudahy, Ambassador to Belgium and close friend of the President, to run against Senator La Follette (Progressive), in his race for reelection, meanwhile roused Washington speculation on a permanent rift between Mr. Roosevelt and La Follette.

La Follette never has declared for Mr. Roosevelt or Willkie. Milwaukee dispatches said Cudahy had consented to run as a "write in" candidate for the Democratic nomination in next Tuesday's primaries.

Friends formerly had indicated Cudahy never would run for La Follette's seat unless he had the President's consent and approval.

Gerald Clifford, of Green Bay, president of the John Cudahy for United States Senator Club, hinted national Administration support. He said he was moved to work for Cudahy by "word from the East."

La Follette has supported President Roosevelt in past elections, while the National Administration has aided "Young Bob," but in recent months there has been a growing coolness.

Wisconsin Progressives were not expected to turn against the President in the coming election unless Mr. Roosevelt identified himself with the move to unseat La Follette.

Names on the ballot in Tuesday's primaries are:

Republicans—Glenn Frank, Walter B. Chilsen, Fred H. Clausen, John P. Koehler, William C. Maas, Reuben W. Peterson and Michael G. Eberlein.

Army to Simplify Division Command

Streamlined Units Will Be Revised to Add Firing Power

By the Associated Press

Reorganization of its new "streamlined" divisions to provide greater striking power and simplicity of command was ordered yesterday by the War Department.

A substantial increase in armaments, already far exceeding World War or National Guard division strength, was embraced in the orders issued as a result of deficiencies uncovered during maneuvers and field exercises of the past year.

"There will be decided increases in the number of machine guns, rifles (both automatic and semiautomatic), mortars and antitank weapons," the department announced.

The authorized strength of the new-type divisions is to be approximately 14,000 officers and enlisted men, compared to the authorized war strength of approximately 12,000 officers and enlisted men for the present "streamlined divisions."

Artillery and infantry sections in division headquarters, and artillery regimental headquarters, are to be eliminated in the reorganization. This, it was said, would simplify the command so that the divisions could "take the fullest advantage of the modern weapons with which the Army is now being equipped."

"In the square division of World War days, which included four regiments of infantry instead of three as the "streamlined" divisions do, officials said commands had to go from the division commander through the brigade commander, the regimental commander and battalion commander before reaching an artillery battery. Now, it was said, the commander of division artillery will be at the side of the division commander and orders will go direct from him to the battalion.)

Increased fire power would be provided in the reorganization, the Department said, by the formation of an anti-tank company for each infantry regiment, by doubling the number of 81-millimeter mortars, and .50 caliber machine-guns, by providing three active 60 millimeter guns in each rifle company and by the substitution of 105 millimeter howitzers for 75 millimeter guns in the artillery.

Draft Bill Passage Expected Hourly

the new factories will be $170,000,000, formal contracts for which will be signed later.

Senator Russell (Democrat), of Georgia, coauthor of the original "draft industry" amendment, added to the conscription bill on the floor of the Senate, led the attack on the version approved by the conferees. He declared that the proposal "saps the vitality" of the original plan and the House substitute.

"This nullifies the wish of the Senate and House," declared Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, joining the asasult on the change. "It places industry on a voluntary basis, men on a conscription basis."

Under the Russell-Overton plan, the Government would have been authorized to take over plants whenever the Army and Navy could not come to terms with their owners on defense orders. Its sponsors said it was directed at contractors that have refused arms contracts because greater profits could be made on foreign orders.

Wheeler Is Critical

The House modified the provision to require an actual refusal of an order before the Government could act, and provided that the plants would be taken over on a rental basis rather than outright enforced purchase. Owners refusing orders were subject to penalties of three years' imprisonment and a fine of $50,000.

This was further modified by the conferees to require that before the authority is exercised it must be certified that the "public necessity is immediate and the emergency imperative and such as will not admit of resort to any other source of supply."

The provision for criminal penalties was eliminated. Senator Russell declared it "very questionable" whether the general provision for penalties of violators of the Conscription Act would apply in such cases.

The action last night assures the acceptance of the House language.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, also attacked the conferees' plan charging them with being "very meticulous in drafting boys, but using loose language when you come to drafting industry."

Men or Dollars

Senator Neely objected to the part of the conference proviso which would bar a "draft" of a plant if any source of supply exists, and declared that the vote on his motion to send the bill back to conference and accept the House plan was a vote on "whether we're for the man and the dollar, or only the dollar."

"I've voted to conscript one of my own boys and perhaps he'll have to walk into the mouth of German cannon," he added, "I didn't ask that the Secretary of War try to find whether another boy will serve before taking mine."

Senator Clark (Democrat), Missouri, joined the attack, citing figures on profits of arms manufacturers from the report of Senate Munitions Committee.

"In 1917 Eugene G. Grace, of Bethlehem Steel," he said, "in addition to a princely salary for the safe job of making steel at Bethlehem, Pa., received a bonus of $1,501,532."

"It's the same company that has a case before the Supreme Court of the United States next month in an attempt to collect 27 per cent profits on a World War contract," chimed in Senator Lee (Democrat), Oklahoma.

New Envoy Presents Credentials

SHOWS PAPERS TO PRESIDENT—Gaston Henri-Haye (left), who succeeds Count Rene de Saint-Quentin as French Ambassador, presented his credentials from the Vichy government yesterday to President Roosevelt. statements of the Defense Commission that put "speed of delivery" above price and that indorsed the 40-hour week and major New Deal labor laws.

The President's proclamation on aircraft control, dated Thursday but made public only yesterday, is believed to plug the last loophole in official control of exports of equipment, fuel, machinery, plans and all other items that contribute toward air power.

Though no hint was given at the White House that the new controls were aimed at any particular country, it was immediately recalled that Kensuke Horinoushi, the then Japanese Ambassador, formally protested when licensing safeguards were imposed on exports of aviation gasoline July 26.

A sign that, at a strategic moment, the Administration may deliver another economic blow to Japan came yesterday when the President, asked if he would broaden his embargo order on scrap iron and scrap steel, replied that he was not ready on it yet.

Other quarters confirmed that in the near future all types of these scrap metals will be placed under the license embargo. At present, only one type of scrap, of little importance to Japan, is subject to the licensing system.

Plans Under Control

In proclaiming the tighter surveillance, the President recalled that under proclamation of July 26 petroleum products, tetraehtyl lead and iron and steel scrap were subjected to license control and that by proclamation of May 1, 1937, exports of aircraft and aircraft engines were under similar checks.

He added significantly:

"The present proclamation, taken with the preceding ones mentioned, has the effect of putting under the control of the President for export purposes not only the aircraft and engines but also the plans and designs for building them."

Plans for machinery to make aircraft fuel have been under a so-called moral embargo since December 20.

Mail May Be Opened

Official quarters emphasized that the proclamation does not constitute a real embargo, but instead gives executive officers power to decide whether material may be shipped to a particular country. In view of the aid-to-Britain policy it was said that, in all likelihood, no aircraft material will be withheld from the British.

Officials told the Post that in order to enforce the license system covering exports of plans, specifications and blueprints, the Postoffice and Justice Departments might be called on to open suspicious mail.

Roosevelt Receives New French Envoy

Greeting Makes No Mention Of Petain Regime

Gaston Henri-Haye, new Ambassador from France, presented his credentials to President Roosevelt yesterday and was greeted with expressions of sympathy but no mention of the Vichy government he represents.

Highlighting the Administration's uncertainty over the regime that is headed by Marshal Petain, the President's traditional formal greeting to the new envoy, which usually refers cordially to his government, made no mention of the Vichy regime.

Though Henri-Haye said he had come from "the marshal of France, Philippe Henri Petain, chief of the French state," accrediting him as envoy of "the French Republic," the President welcomed him merely as Ambassador of "the Republic of France."

In welcoming Henri-Haye's predecessor, Count Rene de Saint-Quentin, now French Ambassador to Brazil, the President referred to "your excellency's government."

Reminded by the new envoy of the present sufferings of France, President Roosevelt responded that "Frenchmen have my sympathy, and the sympathy of the people of the United States," but omitted any reference to the government of unoccupied France.

The new Ambassador refused to comment on reports that one of his primary objectives here would be to secure American shipments of food for France, but it was reported meanwhile that his immediate task would be to obtain supplies of condensed milk for French babies and medicines.

Informed diplomats doubted if Henri-Haye would press for food supplies for the general French population at present, in view of the known American unwillingness to have any part in weakening the British blockade of the continent of Europe.

Tropical Storm Moving North

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 13 (AP).—A tropical storm, apparently changing its general forward movement from northwestward to northward, was reported by the Weather Bureau today to be about 200 miles north of Turks Island in the West Indies.

Turks Island is about 750 to 800 miles southeast of Miami and 100 miles north of Haiti.

Guards' Call To Pose Many A Question

Many to Leave Good Jobs for the Small Pay as a Soldier

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Within a few months thousands of National Guardsmen in Washington, Virginia and Maryland will be taken from civil life jobs, clad in khaki and put in the Army.

Most of them will leave jobs paying much more than a private soldier's $21 a month. Many of them will leave at home automobiles, radios, furniture and other articles partly paid for on the installment plan. Some of them will have wives and families at home, living in rented houses.

Will they lose their automobiles and radios? Will their families be dispossessed if they can't keep up the rent? Will the normal lives thus interrupted be thrown permanently out of joint?

The answers to each of these questions is: "Not necessarily."

Officers' Pay a Puzzler

There are officers who have given many years to the National Guard and to the Organized Reserve. Some of these will give up excellent salaries for Army pay. Others stand to do better, perhaps, in uniform than in mufti. What can each officer expect, on the basis of his rank and his length of service, in matters of pay, emoluments and future security?

The answer to that is that no one knows yet, though existing regulations give a basis for working out a calculation not too encouraging, perhaps, to some ambitious officers.

The citizen who goes into military service as a Guardsman has everything in his favor. Written into the legislation calling him into service are provisions invoking the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act of March 8, 1918, which covers him with a protective wing.

Evictions Up to Courts

If he leaves his family in a house which he rents for less than $50, and his Army pay makes it impossible for him to keep up this rent, his landlord can't dispossess his family without going to court. And the court, under the law (you'll find it in 40 stat., p. 440), can require the landlord to withhold eviction three months or more, depending on the merits of the case. Likely, the court would arrange some adjustment which would permit the soldier's family to remain unmolested until he has returned and readjusted himself.

The question of automobiles unpaid for is a knotty one, loaded with headaches for finance companies as well as prospective soldiers. Under the same law, no finance company can repossess an automobile, or any other article, without a court order obtained after a trial of each case on its merits.

The court can order repayment of installments and other amounts already paid by the soldier and return of the article to the finance company. It can force the finance company to hold off repossession until the soldier is in position to take care of his payments again. Or it can make any other settlement "in the interest of both parties," such as ordering the automobile sold and the proceeds distributed pro rata.

Adjustment Likely

Military-legal experts are of the opinion that no court will permit anybody to retain his automobile and wear it out while he thumbs his nose at the finance company. They are inclined to agree that the probable outcome in most cases will be some sort of adjustment between the company and the soldier which will leave the latter with his automobile at a price his Army pay will permit while the company is not swamped with automobiles for resale in a market hammered down by repossessions.

Officers, who also come under the provisions outlined above, have another and weightier problem. The National Guard has many officers with the rank of captain and below, with little Guard service. Some have been commissioned captains out of civil life; a few hold even higher rank. There are second lieutenants in line regiments, in fact, with considerably more service than some staff captains.

Under the law, captains are paid as follows: With less than three years' service, $166.67 a month plus $18 for food if unmarried and $36 if married, sums which Congress considered to prevent starvation in a captain. Thus, an unmarried captain with less than three years' service will receive $183.67, and a married captain, $202.67.

With more than there and less than seven years' service, he will get $192.67, or $211.67. With more than seven years' service, he will get $237.67, or $256.67.

A second lieutenant with less than five years will receive $123, or $143; with less than nine years, $201, or $219, and with more than nine years, $209, or $227. The Army does not encourage matrimony among its second lieutenants.

The question which will make a tremendous difference to all Guard officers is whether the War Department will decide to accept total commissioned service in the Guard for pay purposes or only service on active duty, in camp or in school. In the first case, old Guard officers will be rather well off. In the latter, few of them with line rank will be credited with enough service to raise them above the first and second grades for pay.

That is a question which the Adjutant General's Office must decide.

Injury Clause Is Specific

One other question of prime importance to prospective soldiers is that of their status in case of injury while in service and on that question Congress has left no room for doubt. Under the Act of April 3, 1939, guardsmen and reservists in Federal service "shall be deemed to have been in active service" and be entitled to the same treatment and pay as officers and men of the Regular Army. This gives them, in addition to medical care, any compensation, disability retirement pay and other benefits accruing to any regular.

After 15 days in service, all officers and men will be entitled to purchase Government insurance, whose top benefit of $10,000, as one Guard Bureau spokesman pointed out, a private can keep up after discharge with a small addition to his monthly pay for armory drill.

High ranking officers who hope to reach statutory retirement age before the year is out and retire with the pay and emoluments appertaining to their rank are doomed to disappointment. They get no retirement benefits unless retired for disability incurred in line of duty, such as falling off a horse, if a horse can be found in today's mechanized army.

Tolan Sponsors Bill for Naval School in San Francisco Area

Congressman Says 2-Ocean Navy Makes Move Necessary; U. S.-Canada Solidarity Threat to Fascism, Bar Group Is Told

By the Associated Press

A bill authorizing a new naval academy "somewhere in the San Francisco Bay area" was introduced yesterday by Representative Tolan (Democrat), of California.

TOLAN

Although the Navy opposed enactment of a similar measure in the Seventy-Fifth Congress, Tolan said the fact that the United States has decided to build a two-ocean Navy led him to believe chances of obtaining adoption of the proposal have increased immeasurably.

"If we are going to have a two-ocean Navy," the Californian said, "the present academy at Annapolis will no longer be able to provide the required number of new officers each year." Tolan's bill would authorize a $10,000,000 apprporiation.

New York, Sept. 13 (AP).—Fifteen hundred young college-trained men—all candidates for ensign commissions in the Naval Reserve—completed their 30-day "break-in" cruise today.

The battleships Wyoming, New York and Arkansas returned with the third group of "V-7 Reserves" from the training cruises which are part of the Navy plan to add 5,000 ensigns.

Officers said about 86 per cent of the trainees were recommended for midshipmen's schools at Northwestern University and aboard the U. S. S. Illinois here.

Robber of Cluett Sent to Prison

Chilton Hume Johnson, 28, yesterday was sentenced to one to three years in prison for robbing Representative E. Harold Cluett, of New York, of his watch and chain the night of July 8.

Johnson fell into talk with Cluett at a Willkie dinner at the Willard and later followed Cluett to his room and held him up with a toy pistol.

Johnson pleaded guilty after being caught in Richmond, Va. He was sentenced in the District Court by Justice F. Dickinson Letts.

Price Offers Aid To Roosevelt Drive

Richmond, Va., Sept. 13 (AP).—In response to a letter from Preston L. Collins, Democratic campaign manager in Virginia, Gov. Price volunteered his services today to the State organization for the Roosevelt campaign.

Collins wrote the Governor last week immediately after State campaign headquarters were opened.

New Bar Head Pledges Aid To U.S. Defense

Lashly Plans Means Of Making Members' Strength Felt

Philadelphia, Sept. 13.—Jacob M. Lashly, incoming president of the American Bar Association, brought the association's sixty-third convention to a close today with a promise to the Government of "complete and unreserved" support in preparations for adequate national defense.

To this end, Lashly said in an address at hallowed Valley Forge, he will appoint a committee to devise "speedy and effective" means of putting the bar's 102,000 members and affiliates at the disposal of the Government "in every precinct of the Nation."

The new president, a St. Louis attorney, cautioned:

"While we are exchanging many of the ways of comfort and peace for those of sacrifice and war; while we may seem to be taking on some of the trappings of dictators in order to protect ourselves from the threat of being overrun by the robots of Europe, it will be our duty to be even more watchful than before that we shall not by any acts or omissions of our own, lose that passion for justice and liberty which has distinguished the American ideal of life."

Pledging the Bar Association unreservedly to support of the Government in the preparedness program, Lashly nevertheless called for "relentless and unyielding opposition to the growing and expanding powers of unregulated administrative agencies which are inclining in the direction of an abandonment of government of laws and to substitution of the bureaucratic discretion of a Government of men."

Before adjournment the association voted to submit to Congress a bill designed to give the Federal Government a weapon against ballot frauds.

"It (the proposed legislation) should protect the ballots which citizens have placed in the ballot box as their lawful vote in the election of their Federal officers from being stolen, fraudulently counted or reported," a report adopted by the convention said.

Kennedy Gives $20,000 For London Raid Relief

London, Sept. 13 (AP).—United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy contributed £5,000 (about $20,000) today to the Lord Mayor's relief fund for London's bomb victims.

Greeks Expect Italian Ultimatum

British and Fascist Fleets Reported Cruising in Aegean

By International News Service

Budapest, Sept. 13.—Possibility that the Balkan Peninsula and the Near East may shortly become a theater of hostilities was discerned tonight in reports reaching Budapest regarding naval, military and diplomatic moves.

Important British and Italian naval concentrations were said to be deploying as if for combat in the vicinity of the Fascist-owned Dodecanese Islands in the Aegean Sea off the Turkish coast.

Word from Athens revealed that political circles there expect Italy to present within 24 hours her formal demand concerning Greek territorial concessions to Fascist-controlled Albania.

Sofia diplomatic quarters, meanwhile, expressed a belief that Bulgaria will not remain neutral in the event of war between Greece and Italy. Bulgaria, too, has territorial claims against Greece and is expected to try to occupy the areas claimed if the Greeks become involved in battle with the Italians.

Troop Moves Reported

Greece was reported moving additional troops up to the Albanian frontier, while the Italian-supervised Albanian National Assembly was expected to meet in Tirana soon.

The British naval movements near the Dodecanese Islands were generally attributed to Britain's desire to be ready for counteraction, should Italian troops break into Greece. The Greeks have a British military assistance pledge.

Turkish newspapers, however, published reports which would indicate the British naval moves may also be connected with a plan to seize French-mandated Syria.

Soviets Ask Explanation

Bucharest, Rumania, Sept. 13.—The Rumanian government has received a note from the Russian government asking explanations for frontier incidents on the Rumanian-Russian frontier in Bukovina.

The Russians claim Rumanians attacked a Russian patrol south of Cernowitz with guns and machine-guns and also attacked a second Russian patrol which came to help the first. Soldiers on both sides were wounded.

Antonescu Defied

Bucharest, Sept. 13 (AP).—Defying Premier General Ion Antonescu's decrees against public demonstrations, thousands of Iron Guardists paraded through Bucharest today in memory of Corneliu Codreanu, slain party leader who has become its martyr. Authorities did not interfere with the orderly marchers.

Codreanu and 13 others were killed in November, 1938, while trying to escape from prison.

Disorder in Transylvania

Koloszvar (Cluj), Hungary, Sept. 13 (AP).—Scattered disturbances in which shots were exchanged were reported today as the Hungarian army completed occupation of Rumanian-ceded northern Transylvania.

Hungarian troops charged that withdrawing Rumanian force tore down festive arches decorated with pictures of Adolf Hitler, Benito Mussolini and Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary.

Nazis Stripping France, Says U. S. Surgeon

Invasion of Britain Was Tried, He Says; London Denies It

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Sept. 13.—Germany is stripping occupied France like a locust plague, and is expected to march in and take over the rest of beaten France "almost any time," according to Dr. Charles Bove, chief surgeon of the American Hospital in Paris, who returned here today on the American export liner Excambion.

Dr. Bove, who served in occupied Paris and later in a French military hospital in Biarritz, where his contacts with French and German military men were extensive, declared that many Frenchmen and a considerable number of German military men expected the United States to enter the war on the side of Great Britain.

Dr. Bove said he left France, where he had lived since the first World War, because he had lost his fortune and all belongings, and because there was so much talk of American participation in the war he thought it best to get back to the United States.

He declared that his personal observations and contacts with men in France convinced him that Germany had already tried to invade England, and had failed at a high cost. He said he had seen bodies of German soldiers floating in the English Channel.

When asked how many there were he said "there were hundreds, in the water off Cherbourg." Cherbourg might be a logical jumping off place for an invasion, since it is the part of France closest to England with the exception of the narrow strip of Channel at the point of Calais.

"The Germans have tried the invasion from different places," he said. "They are now engaged in practicing on a vast scale, placing hundreds of fully uniformed and armed soldiers on ships, sending them off the coast and making them jump in the water, to get used to it."

British Contradict Story

London, Sept. 13 (AP).—A British military source said tonight there has been "absolutely no attempt at invasion in any size, shape or form.

"We would be only too glad to announce it if there had been an attempt and we had repulsed it."

Referring to Dr. Charles F. Bove's statement that he had seen "hundreds of German bodies in the waters near Cherbourg," this military source said it was possible that a German transport ship had been bombed or torpedoed. The British censor passed Dr. Bove's story for publication in the British Isles.

Danger to U. S. 'Imminent,' Pershing Says

War Sounds 'Warning, Shrill and Imperative,' He Says in Broadcast

Department from the White House, where President Roosevelt, in the presence of the full Cabinet, had pinned on his lapel the Distinguished Service Cross. The decoration, awarded for gallantry in action in the Philippines in 1913, had been twice refused by Gen. Pershing.

Memories of past campaigns crowded about the 80-year-old soldier yesterday. It was 22 years ago to the day that he had launched the American offensive against the St. Mihiel salient.

Greeting From Versailles

From the German-occupied city of Versailles, which made Pershing an honorary citizen after the World War, came this message yesterday:

"Versailles keeps in its heart, in adversity, an affectionate and grateful admiration for the great defender of liberty, Gen. John J. Pershing."

The greeting from Versailles was given to the General in his suite at the Carlton Hotel by M. Gaston Henri-Haye, the new French Ambassador to the United States, former Mayor of Versailles and liaison officer on Pershing's staff. The envoy delivered a personal greeting to Pershing from the only other survivor of the great World War commanders, Marshal Petain.

It was a message, Petain wrote, of "profoundly affectionate and enduring attachment" for an old "comrade in arms." The 84-year-old Marshal of France added, "Circumstances have made me a Chief of State. I have accepted that responsibility as a duty. But my task is difficult and often painful . . ."

Rare Press Conference

The anniversary brought the General of the Armies one of his most strenuous days since his recovery from a critical illness two years ago. Between the ceremonies in the Cabinet Room of the White House and his radio address Gen. Pershing faced 50 reporters and cameramen for one of his rare press conferences.

An erect figure in a bluish-gray business suit, stiff collar and heavy silk tie, Pershing affably motioned the newspapermen toward sofas and then added with a smile, "But perhaps we would talk too long if you all sit down."

When a Canadian correspondent, recently returned from London, asked for a message to the beleaguered people of Britain, Pershing paused a full 30 seconds, conscious of the distance his words might travel. He answered slowly:

"They are living up pretty well to the British reputation for stability."

Confidence in Britain

There was another long silence when a reporter asked if the British could hold out.

"Yes, I think they can," the General replied.

Pershing said he had made his recent appeal for transfer of destroyers to Britain entirely on his own initiative.

"I made it because I wanted to," he said. "I felt somebody should make that speech. I knew the British government really needed the destroyers or they wouldn't have asked for them."

He ruled out questions on further aid to Britain and the possibility of American entry into the war. The country's defense program "is progressing very favorably," he said.

"Must Face the Facts"

In his radio address, broadcast in response to a tribute from National Commander Raymond Kelly of the American Legion, Pershing recalled that in 1918 "none of us dreamed that the calamity of war would come again to the world so soon and in such hideous and devastating form.

"But we must face the facts of today," he continued. "Their warning call to America is shrill and imperative. The danger is imminent. The call comes not only to us who fought in the World War and to those who stood ready, but it comes to every patriotic citizen living under the protection of our great Government."

The ceremony in the White House was believed to be the first occasion when the Distinguished Service Cross has been awarded in the presence of the entire Cabinet.

President Roosevelt remarked that a search through Army records had shown that the Distinguished Service Cross was the only military honor Pershing had not yet received. The general stood at attention, flanked by Secretary of War Stimson and Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, as the President read the citation:

"For extraordinary heroism in action against hostile fanatical Moros at Mount Bagsak, Jolo, Philippine Islands, on June 15, 1913. He personally assumed command of the assaulting line at the most critical period when only about 15 yards from the last Moro position. His encouragement and splendid example of personal heroism resulted in a general advance and the prompt capture of the hostile stronghold."

In 1913, according to a War Department release, Pershing refused to allow fellow officers who had witnessed his action to put his name forward for the decoration. Nine years later, when he learned that Secretary of War Weeks planned to award the cross in a surprise ceremony, the general again declined the decoration.

As chief of staff, he controlled the Decorations Board, Pershing pointed out, and the award would have embarassed him. He added that he did not consider that his action in the Philippines "measured up to the high standard set in the American Expeditionary Force."

Hundreds of messages of congratulation yesterday arrived at the State Department suite marked "General of the Armies" and at the Pershing apartment in the Carlton. Among the World War comrades who called on Pershing were Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, former chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, and Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, former chief of staff to the A. E. F. commander.

With Pershing through the day were his son, Warren, a New York broker, and his daughter-in-law.

When the French envoy arrived at the Carlton, Pershing greeted him as "mon cher ami." M. Henri-Haye recalled that Pershing and Petain had both witnessed the marriage of his son, Pierre, in Versailles thre years ago.

The Ambassador brought word that the American flag is still flying in Versailles near a statue of Gen. Pershing.

It Takes a Heap of Shoving To Make Raid Shelter a Home

Londoners Throng Shops Selling Camp Stoves for Tea Making, Fancy Air Mattresses, Cots, Chairs and Wool

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 13.—There is plenty of activity in London's shops, despite the air raids.

The rush of business goes to shops which sell these things:

Camp stoves to make hot tea and heat shelters. They are becoming hard to find.

Shelter pads for protection in damp underground bombproofs. They run from fancy air mattresses to a stout cloth affair with pockets to hold pillows.

Camp cots and cap chairs. The demand has been so brisk some stores are taking orders only for future delivery.

Window glass substitutes of translucent treated cotton which can be tacked in to replace panes broken or removed as a precaution.

Wool shops, too, are very active despite rationed supplies. Women everywhere are knitting for shelter wear and for soldiers.

Shoe shops are experiencing an early demand for furlined winter boots.

Tin hats, gas mask cases and blackout materials are wartime staples. The only helmets available are reconditioned ones and they are snapped up at $2.50 each.

London, Sept. 13 (U.P.).—At least one London bobby has clung to his sense of humor through six days and nights of air raids.

"That looks like smoke coming from Downing Street," a woman in Trafalgar Square observed anxiously during the morning bombing attack today.

"Yes," the policeman reassured her, "but it's only Winston's cigar."

London, Sept. 13 (AP).—The court circular made no mention tonight of the bombing of Buckingham Palace but stated in the usual restrained language that:

"The King and Queen, attended by the Lady Delia Peel, Admiral Sir Edward Evans (regional commissioner for London) and lieutenant colonel the Honorable Piers Legh visited East Lodon areas this morning."

New York, Sept. 13 (AP).—Bound for an undisclosed port—presumably to become a troopship for the British—the $15,000,000 Holland-American flagship Niew Amsterdam today was on the high seas after an unannounced departure from New York harbor.

Chartered to the British Ministry of Shipping, the 36,287-ton craft, which made her maiden voyage to America little more than two years ago, carried no cargo or passengers. The liner still flew the flag of the Netherlands. Designed to carry 1,232 passengers and a crew of 650, her 11 decks could be remodeled to ferry many more troops across the Atlantic. She has a service speed of 21½ knots and is 713 feet long.

Congress May Get Request to Vote 1.5 Billion More

Congress has appropriated $13,127,427,195 so far this session and may be asked to approve $1,500,000,000 in additional funds before adjournment.

In addition, it has authorized another $8,256,062,009 for expenditure in future years—the actual cash to be voted in subsequent sessions—for a grand total of $21,423,509,204.

Appropriations and commitments for defense account for more than $15,000,000,000 of that total.

Congressional records show that the $13,127,47,195 in the direct appropriations already exceed those of any full peacetime year in the Nation's history.

Only the World War outlays were greater—$18,881,940,243 in the fiscal year of 1918, and $27,065,148,993 in 1919.

If this year's fixed charges—$3,975,524,448—are added to the current session's appropriations, as they were in the 1918 and 1919 totals, the Government's contemplated cold-cash expenditures are boosted close to the 1918 level.

Carol in Little Spanish Town

By the United Press

Sitges, Spain, Sept. 13.—Former King Carol of Rumania and Magda Lupescu arrived here from Barcelona tonight and registered at a hotel, where they had reservations.

It was learned that Carol would remain in Spain indefinitely. He is expected to remain at Sitges for a fortnight, then return to Barcelona and take up residence at a palace to be placed at his disposal.

There was no verification of reports that Carol would go to London, by way of Lisbon.

Mihai to Meet Mother

Bucharest, Sept. 13 (AP).—Mihai, King for a week following his father's abdication and flight, left here tonight for the Yugoslav frontier to meet his divorced mother, Princess Helen, on her arrival from Italy tomorrow morning.

Reunion with the mother, who spent ten years in exile, will take place at Jimbolia, a tiny border station, where a few days ago the train bearing Carol and Mme. Lupescu out of Rumania was fired on by Iron Guardists. Helen left Venice tonight.

Gen. Ion Antonescu, Rumania's new military dictator, traveled with Mihai. Government posters announced an elaborate festival for Sunday in which Bucharest will greet Princess Helen as Queen Mother.

Laborer Guilty In Girl's Slaying

Bellefonte, Pa., Sept. 13 (AP).—Richard Millinder, 22-year-old WPA highway laborer, was convicted of first-degree murder today in the slaying of Faye Gates, 25, on a lonely "Spook Hollow" road, last May 5. The jury recommended life imprisonment. The Commonwealth had asked a death sentence.

Miss Gates, comely worker in a match factory, was waylaid and beaten to death with a rock while driving home from Bellefonte.

Ickes and Bridges Debate Tomorrow

Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes and Senator H. Styles Bridges will hold their first formal debate tomorrow from 7 to 8 p. m. from the National Press Club over a Nation-wide radio network, Mutual Broadcasting System announced yesterday.

The Democratic Secretary and the Republican Senator will climax their month-old verbal duel with a debate on "The New Deal and National Defense," sponsored by Theodore Granik's American Forum of the Air. The broadcast, from Press Club auditorium, will be open to the public.

Ickes will be supported by Senator Louis B. Schwellenbach, of Washington, and Senator Bridges will be supported by Representative Albert L. Vreeland, of New Jersey.

Ira J. Davis to Be Buried at Vienna Today

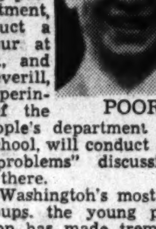
Moore, Junior Sunday School department superintendent, known as the "mother" of the congregation, with "Personality in the Home" as her subject. Mildred Gilliken will preside. Miss Ruth Fink, recreational chairman of the East Washington District, Methodist Church, and Hartwell Calcote, department vice president, will lead a recreational period on Friday night.

Next Sunday's climaxing program will open with a sunrise service at 6:30 a. m., with Calcote speaking and Mildred King leading. Dr. Ray will preach at 11 a. m. on "Personality of Christ"; Raymond Poore, energetic president of the senior young people's department, will conduct a vesper hour at 5:30 p. m., and William Peverill, veteran superintendent of the young people's department of the Sunday School, will conduct a "personality problems" discussion at 9:30 a. m. there.



POORE

Among Washington's most active youth groups, the young people's organization has made tremendous strides under the leadership of Mr. Poore. Composed of young people from 16 to 24 years old, it has 273 on the roll. There are also 98 intermediates and 97 juniors.

Social service has been one of the seniors' most interesting projects. Last Christmas they spent more than $600 on baskets for the Central Union Mission; make scrap books and other items for Gallinger and other hospitals, working through the hospital department of the Washington Federation of Churches, and during the summer have been operating a Chinese Club, which aids Chinese refugees. They hold a recreational program at the church once monthly, placing funds that might have been spent for movies into the club.

Poore pointed out last night that his group was inspired to launch the Chinese Club during their attendance at the youth sessions of the Baltimore Conference at Western Maryland College last June, when the Rev. Pierce Hayes, missionary on furlough from China, was present.

Special committee chairmen of the department are Miss Betty Torbert, worship; Virginia Nalls, evangelism; Frank Curls, recreation and Mildred King, social service.

Members of the department and other youths of the church often can be found working in the church print shop in the basement—one of the most modern church shops in the city. Church bulletins and other material are printed there.

Epworth Church, which has been led by the Rev. Mr. Ray since 1938, is just completing a $3,000 renovation project, which covers painting of the building from roof to basement; new roofing and other improvements. The job is being financed through special offerings.

Chairman of the board of trustees and treasurer is Marvin F. Hummer, third generation of the Hummer family now serving the church in the latter capacity. The noted Hummer Women's Class, taught by Mrs. Ray, the pastor's wife, was named after his grandfather, one of the congregation's founders. The late William F. Hummer, Sunday School superintendent for fifty years, and who recently passed away, was the present treasurer's father.

W. C. Furr is chairman of the official board and president of the board of stewards; I. A. Lehman, its secretary, and Robert M. Ruckman, music director and organist. The church school council includes Dr. Ray; Furr, general superintendent; S. E. Moore, secretary; H. H. Harstin, assistant secretary, and G. W. Barkman, treasurer.

Epworth Church, until Methodist unification a member of the Southern Methodist branch, had its inception in a Sunday School mission in 1882 under the auspices of the Mount Vernon Place (then Southern) Methodist Church. First meetings were held on Eighth street between E and G southeast.

In 1886, under the name of Grace Mission, it met at Fourth and East Capitol streets. About July of that year a building was secured at Seventh and A streets northeast, its first pastor, the Rev. John C. Jones, being appointed in 1887. First services in a new building there were held in 1896.

In 1919, shortly after being renovated, the building was destroyed by fire. The present church edifice was begun on October 7, 1920, with the formal opening on December 11, 1921, Bishop U. V. W. Darlington conducting the rites. The Rev. John Paul Tyler was then pastor. The building was dedicated by Bishop Collins Denny on December 12, 1926.

Church Marks 75th Year Of Its Founding

Inaugurating a series of outstanding events celebrating their diamond jubilee year, members of the First Congregational Church tomorrow will observe the seventy-fifth anniversary of the first meeting which led to the organization of the church September 17, 1865. The Rev. Howard Stone Anderson, minister, will preach on "The Ramparts We Watch" at 11 o'clock.

The seventy-fifth anniversary committee of the church, Harvey W. Goddard, chairman, has announced the following events to take place this fall:

Glenn Clark, known as "the man who gets answers to his prayers," will speak from October 27 to November 1, with sessions twice daily. The general theme of his talks will be "How to Pray in Times Like This." He teaches English and creative writing at MacAlester College, St. Paul, Minn.

William E. Sweet, former Governor of Colorado, and now moderator of the General Council of Congregational Churches, has been invited to speak at a mass meeting of Washing Congregationalists on November 10, celebrating the founding of the church November 15, 1865.

Cleveland Park. Services will be resumed tomorrow at 11 a. m., the Rev. Paul W. Yinger preaching on "Tribulation Worketh Hope."

Mount Pleasant. "How Large Is Your World?" will be the sermon subject of Dr. Fred Sherman Buschmeyer tomorrow at 11 a. m. This is the second in a series of sermons to the general theme "Seeking a Christian Way in Difficult Times."

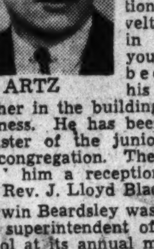
Rhodes Artz, 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Artz, 429 Manor place northwest, and active worker in the Park View Christian Church, 627 Park road northwest, left Tuesday to enroll in Lynchburg (Va.) College—first step toward a ministerial career.



ARTZ

Since graduation from Roosevelt High School in 1937 the young man has been assisting his father and brother in the building contracting business. He has been serving as minister of the junior church of the congregation. The church tendered him a reception last week. The Rev. J. Lloyd Black is pastor.

Erwin Beardsley was elected general superintendent of the Sunday school at its annual meeting Tuesday night. Also named were Edward Hinson, adult superintendent; August Elsasser, junior supervisor; Wilbut Ratcliffe, jr., intermediates, and James Forehand, juniors; Ethel Payne, primary, and Jean Wilson, beginners. Mary Burton was chosen treasurer, and Thelma Walls, secretary.

Columbia Heights. The Rev. A. P. Wilson will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "The Unemployed Christ." The Bagby and High School Christian Endeavors will meet at 7 p. m.

Thursday evening the youth groups will resume "Game Night." in Power Hall.

National City. As a sequel to his sermon of last Sunday, Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller will speak tomorrow morning on "The Divine Face of Man."

Third. The Rev. C. N. Williams will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Men at Worship."

Program to Mark 21st Anniversary Of Organization

The Columbia Federation of Baptist Young People's Unions will celebrate its coming of age with a pageant and other attractions on Tuesday night at Fifth Baptist Church, E street, near Seventh street, southwest.

It was organized on September 7, 1919, when 20 members representing the young people of West Washington, Fifth, Second and Clarendon (Va.) Baptist congregations met at the first-named place, and elected H. E. Dameron, of Fifth Church, as president.

The organization has grown until today it has 27 unions with a membership of 1,000. An average of 400 people attend the monthly Federation meetings, and a wide religious and recreational program is conducted throughout the year.

The District of Columbia Christian Endeavor Union will stage its annual picnic today at Pierce Mill, in Rock Creek Park. Games and athletic contests will begin at 2 p. m. Dinner will be at 5 p. m., followed by vespers, with the Rev. George E. Schnabel, pastor of Albright Memorial Evangelical Church, speaking.

Hamline Methodist youths will hold their devotional meeting tomorrow at 6:45 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Herrell, 210 Peabody street northwest.

The Rev. Edward Gabler, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Navy Yard, will address the Roundtable group tomorrow at 6:45 p. m. at the Reformation Lutheran Church on "Christ and the Community."

Dr. McCartney Back, to Preach Tomorrow

'Christian Warfare' Is Chosen as Topic By Presbyterian

Back to his pulpit at Covenant-First Presbyterian Church after a California trip, Dr. Albert J. McCartney will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Impossible Neutrality in the Christian Warfare."

Benjamin C. McCartney, son of the pastor, will describe his experiences in Oslo during the German invasion at a meeting of the Business Women's Council on Tuesday at 8 p. m. The public is invited. The initial meeting of the Sadler Missionary League will be held on Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the home of Mrs. John A. Russell, 5340 Forty-second street northwest. The midweek worship service is set for 8 p. m. on Thursday in the chapel.

Central. Dr. James H. Taylor will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "National Sins" and at 8 p. m. on "Christian Fidelity."

The Christian Endeavor Society will meet at 7 o'clock, discussing "Making Life Christian."

The Presbytery of Potomac will meet in the Presbyterian Church in Sykesville, Md. Central Church will be represented by Dr. Taylor, and Elders Homer J. Brown, principal, and A. Corwin Newkirk, alternate.

Rev. Marshall Milton In Farewell Sermon

The Rev. Marshall Milton, for three years rector of the Upper Truro (Va.) Episcopal Parish, has resigned to become rector of Brandon Parish, in the Diocese of southern Virginia, and will preach his farewell sermons tomorrow.

He will preach at St. John's, Centerville, at 9:45 a. m.; St. Timothy's, Herndon, 11 a. m., with Holy Communion, and at Christ Church, Chantilly, at 8 p. m.

Congressmen to Speak

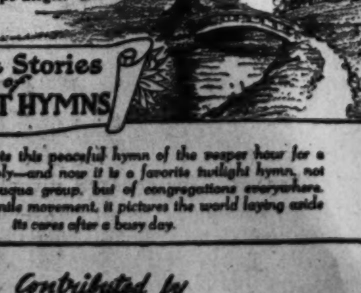
Representative John Jennings, jr., of Tennessee, and John G. Alexander, of Minnesota, will address special services tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Anacostia Baptist Church, Thirteenth and W streets southeast, honoring students about to attend high school or college.

Prof. John Paul Collins, principal of Anacostia High School; teachers, members of the Parent-Teachers Association, and others have been invited to attend. Mr. and Mrs. Warren Taylor, members of the congregation, who will attend Crozier Theological Seminary, Upland, Pa., will receive special recognition. John Gordon Mein, vice president of the Columbia Baptist Federation of Young People's Unions, will address the B. Y. P. U. at 6:45 p. m.

The Rev. Thomas E. Boords, pastor of the church, will preach at 11 a. m. on "Captive Captivity."

"DAY IS DYING IN THE WEST" . . . MARY A. LATHBURY



Day is dying in the west,
Heaven is touching earth with rest:
Wait and worship while the night
Sets her evening lamps alight
Through all the sky.

Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS

Mary Lathbury wrote this peaceful hymn of the vesper hour for a Chautauqua assembly—and now it is a favorite twilight hymn, not only of the Chautauqua group, but of congregations everywhere. With its soft and gentle movement, it pictures the world laying aside its cares after a busy day.

War Mothers Fear for Sons' Jobs in Draft

Point to Experience Of Men Who Served In 1917 Conflict

A year of military training will not hurt any young man, but the draft, which takes him out of a job, may prove a serious economic handicap to him in the future.

This was the attitude of members of the Bicentennial Chapter of American War Mothers, expressed yesterday afternoon at their first meeting of the season in the Raleigh Hotel.

"We are for defense and preparedness," one member declared, "but a good soldier who volunteers with a whole-hearted desire to defend his country is worth a whole army of military slaves."

Found Jobs Gone

Mrs. Julia Hooker, president of the chapter, had two sons in the service during the first World War; one overseas, where he was gassed, and the other on this side. Both left jobs to volunteer and both found their jobs gone and had difficulty getting others when they returned home, she said.

Mrs. Amelia Thiele, secretary of the chapter, said her two sons, both volunteers in the Navy who served in foreign waters during the war, had the same experience.

"We are not fighting conscription, but that's the way we feel about it," she said.

Organizations Distinct

The American War Mothers did not want to be confused with members of the Congress of American Mothers, who were draped in mourning here, keeping a death watch in opposition to the conscription bill, or with the Silver Star Mothers, an affiliated group, they stated.

There are, within the American War Mothers' organization, three classifications, they explained. The Gold Star mothers are those who lost their sons, the Silver Star, those whose sons were disabled in service, and the Blue Star mothers whose sons returned to normal life after the war. The Silver Star Mothers, with headquarters in Baltimore, have no connection with the American War Mothers, they stated further.

Van Duzer Urges Photos BeRequired On Driver Permits

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer announced yesterday he would renew efforts to seek a District law requiring photographs of motorists attached to all drivers' permits.

The proposal will be placed before the Commissioners' traffic advisory council for consideration at its first fall meeting next Friday, Van Duzer said. The Commissioners alone have power to promulgate such a regulation.

Van Duzer said his plan would prevent duplicate use of drivers' permits fraudulent applications, and would afford immediate identification of drivers stopped for traffic offenses.

FBI Checks on Bund Guests in Blast Probe

'Hitler Enthusiasts' On List He Turned Over, Sheriff Says

cord the license tags of all visitors to the bund camp and only two days ago turned over to the authorities of eleven other North Jersey counties the names of 310 frequent visitors, with a request that an effort be made to learn if the persons listed were members of subversive groups or employed in key defense industries.

Sheriff Gets Threats

So far the check-up has uncovered about 40 men whose background indicated that they were members of un-American groups and the sheriff declared that "we already have succeeded in eliminating them from jobs in defense industries."

In addition to giving the names to other peace officers, the sheriff said he had sent a copy to all plants having Government contracts with a request that it be checked against employment rolls. The Hercules plant received such a list but no check had been made up to today.

Since Quick made known that he had compiled a list of Nazi sympathizers, abusive letters and telephone calls, all from anonymous persons, have come to his office, he said. The signature on four of them read "A Bund Sympathizer."

On July 4 the sheriff arrested, during a rally at Camp Nordland, three bund leaders, Wilhelm Kunze, national leader since the jailing of Fritz Kuhn; Augustus Klapprott, camp director, and Mathias Kohler, leader of the bund youth movement. The men are at present free on bail of $1,000, awaiting action of the Sussex County grand jury.

They are accused of violating a statute forbidding the drilling or marching of groups in uniform.

Death Toll Now 42

By International News Service

Kenvil, N. J., Sept. 13.—The known death toll in the Nation's worst munitions disaster rose to 42 tonight, but most responsible sources felt that it would reach 50 before the last of the debris has been cleared from the site of the explosion-wrecked, fire-swept Hercules powder plant.

After a day of digging through rubble of the once-proud plant and scouring of surrounding woodlands, rescue workers placed the number believed missing at 13. At least 200 persons, 83 of whom still are confined to hospitals, were injured when the series of terrific mystery explosions transformed the $3,000,000 plant, working on $2,800,000 worth of United States Government orders, into a war-like scene of desolation.

Smokeless powder, used by warring nations to blast and destroy the enemy, in some unexplained manner exploded with such earth-rocking force that hardly a building in this industrial town of 900 inhabitants escaped damage.

The reverberations from the Thursday afternoon blast, which has brought demands for a Congressional probe and now is being investigated by eight separate groups, all of whom are primarily concerned with whether sabotage played a part, carried as far as 125 miles.

While W. C. Hunt, operations director of the plant, said nothing has been discovered to indicate sabotage and no one is suspected, investigating authorities made a thorough search of the grounds today. These included G-men, representatives of the Army and Navy intelligence branches, State, county and local officials, members of the Dies Committee Investigating Un-American Activities and key figures in the Hercules company.

(In Washington, Representative Anderson, Missouri Democrat, introduced a resolution demanding that a committee of five be named by the House to conduct hearings and determine "if there is evidence of sabotage in this or in other national defense plants.")

Red Cross workers and other relief dispensers sent to Kenvil at the direction of President Roosevelt did everything possible to relieve distress and suffering. Those whose homes were rendered useless by the blast were made comfortable with neighbors. Similar treatment was given the scores who suffered minor injuries that did not require that they remain in hospitals crowded beyond capacity.

Mexico Hunts Down Arms Smugglers

Mysterious Planes Reported Shuttling Across U. S. Border

By the United Press

Mexico City, Sept. 13.—Mexican officials along the Chihuahua-United States border were reported reliably tonight to be investigating "important" arms smuggling into Mexico as well as the presence of unidentified planes shuttling across the frontier.

The situation in Chihuahua, most of which borders on Texas, was described as "nervous," with interest keen in developments connected with the gathering in El Paso, Tex., of supporters of Gen. Juan Andreau Almazan.

The independent candidate for President in the July 7 elections still is resting at Baltimore, Md., but his followers were said to be converging on the Texas city for an "important" meeting.

The war department early in the day ordered a number of army officers on leave of absence to report for immediate duty, apparently as a preliminary step toward elimination from military rolls of Almazan supporters.

Virtually all those recalled to active service had been granted leave several months ago to participate in political activities on behalf of Almazan whose rump congress this week "impeached and deposed" President Lazaro Cardenas and proclaimed the opposition leader president-elect.

The war department order was issued on instructions from Cardenas. The list of officers affected was headed by Gen. Hector Lopez, who was named "provisional president" by the Almazan congress to serve in place of the "deposed" Cardenas until December 1, when Almazan's "term will begin."

Confusion's Monument

Behind Griffith Stadium stands a monument the public seldom notices. It has not the beauty of the Lincoln Memoral or even of the Pulaski statue. Yet the District derives from it no more practical benefit than from purely inspirational masonry. For this is a monument to the manner in which Congress governs the Nation's Capital—which is to say that it is a monument to confusion.

This two-story pile of brick, completed in 1931 at a cost of $100,000, is known as the District Testing Laboratory. But the name does not signifiy, as it logically should, that tests of some sort for the District are carried on there. The testing equipment is carefully oiled and wrapped, and the samples of construction material to be examined are sent to the United States Bureau of Standards.

Since 1933, when Congress forced discontinuance of the laboratory's activities, the District has paid the Bureau of Standards an average of $28,000 a year for this work. Cost sheets of the two years in which the District did its own testing, with allowance for all probable increases in expense, indicate the city's own laboratory could be operated now for $13,000 annually.

For this $13,000 it could and doubtless would do more testing of District materials than does the Bureau of Standards. In fact, since the tests went on a piecework basis, Washington has tried in vain to keep costs down by submitting 35 per cent fewer samples.

It doesn't make sense to appropriate $100,000 for a laboratory and nonchalantly, two years later, permit a tiny proviso in an appropriation bill to destroy the building's usefulness. It doesn't make sense to pay out in six and a half years $90,000 more than is necessary for certain services, while private organizations have to finance governmental health projects and the city's aged suffer at Blue Plains.

Congress will have an opportunty soon to reopen the testing laboratory and save the District $15,000 a year. More important still is its ever-present opportunity to give Washington a government that would not be perpetually hamstrung in its efforts to render efficient community service.

Politics And Defense

Mayor LaGuardia of New York is within his rights in going on the stump to support President Roosevelt for a third term. But if he intended to participate in the 1940 campaign, he certainly should not have accepted the chairmanship of the United States section of the Permanent Joint Board on Defense.

The defense program must necessarily be nonpartisan. It has the support of both President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie. In their conventions the two major parties indorsed a drive for preparedness in the most positive terms. Every major defense bill before Congress has drawn support from both parties. The country is making a truly national effort to safeguard its interests against the dangers of foreign aggression.

It naturally follows that full credit for that effort cannot be reasonably claimed by either party. President Roosevelt emphasized the nonpartisan character of the program by appointing Henry L. Stimson and Frank Knox, both Republicans, to be Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy, respectively. The National Defense Commission was chosen without regard for politics and its members are scrupulously refraining from participation in political debate.

Mayor LaGuardia renders no service to his favorite candidate, therefore, by dragging the preparedness program into the realm of partisanship. The chief effect of his radio speech is to demonstrate the undesirability of appointing active politicians to vital posts in the defense setup.

Nor was the making of this speech the mayor's only indiscretion. "I know," he declared, "that President Roosevelt's foreign policy and his preparedness plan are the only hope of keeping our country out of war." Perhaps Mr. LaGuardia did not expect his listeners to take this demagogic dictum seriously. Nevertheless, he ought to realize that it sounds more like a frantic appeal to give Mr. Roosevelt life tenure in the Presidency than an argument for a third term.

No doubt many politicians will be tempted to make political capital out of the defense program before the 1940 campaigns are over. If so, the public ought to remember that every campaign speech for that purpose subordinates the national interest to selfish, partisan aims.

Rules Of Citizenship

Without a dissenting vote and with no word of opposition, the House approved on Wednesday the bill revising the nationality laws of the United States into a comprehensive nationality code.

This measure was long overdue. At present, rules and regulations regarding the acquisition and loss of American nationality are scattered helter-skelter through the statute books. They are the result of legislative enactments dating back a great many years. Some of the provisions are obsolete; others have become inadequate, even dangerously so. A wholesale revision of these statutes to meet present needs is thus unquestionably desirable. President Roosevelt was right in urging Congress to act on this problem with "as little delay as possible."

Yet the measure is too important to be given only the casual consideration it received in the House. Wholly desirable as are almost all of its provisions, the bill ought to be more closely scrutinized in the Senate.

The measure tightens provisions regarding eligibility for naturalization. At present the law bars from citizenship anarchists, polygamists, persons unable to speak English, Army and Navy deserters and draft dodgers. The new legislation would also deny citizenship to those who advocate the overthrow of the Government by force and violence or the unlawful damage, injury, or destruction of property or sabotage. In the same category would be persons affiliated with organizations fostering such views and those who give, lend or promise financial aid to subversive groups of that kind.

There can be no objection to such provisions. Citizenship is a privilege which should not be extended to those who would use it to undermine American institutions. Yet it is doubtful whether any statute can serve the intended purpose of keeping out all subversive elements, Communist, Fascist and Nazi alike.

The bill also stiffens the regulations regarding loss of citizenship. Aliens who seek American nationality merely as a cloak of protection to enable them to enjoy its benefits while they actually live in some foreign country would find their citizenship revoked. With this provision, there can be no quarrel.

But it is open to question whether any national interest is served by a blanket provision revoking the citizenship of any individual who "enters or serves in the armed forces of a foreign state." That penalty would be applied whether or not an American citizen fighting in a foreign army had taken an oath of allegiance to another state. For instance, Americans who have crossed the line to serve in the Canadian army or air force would thus find themselves men without a country.

Since the days of the Revolution, foreigners have fought in American ranks. We honor our Lafayettes, Pulaskis and Steubens. We should not penalize by the loss of citizenship those Americans who feel that in joining the Canadian or British forces they are following in the footsteps of those heroes of freedom.

New Curb On Crime

District Attorney Edward M. Curran has taken an important step toward more effective enforcement of the law by establishing within his office a department of investigations and complaints. He has no intention of duplicating any work the police are doing. His aim is solely to enhance the efficiency of the District's prosecuting machinery.

Many crimes are not reported to the police. Frequently individuals having knowledge of a crime deliberately withhold it because they are not willing to make a formal complaint. Hereafter they will be able to tell their stories in confidence to Mr. Curran's intestigative division. That agency will be able to decide whether the law has been violated and whether the case should be laid before the grand jury.

Mr. Curran's announcement suggests also that the district attorney's office intends to play a more positive role in ferreting out crime. It is not enough for the district attorney merely to prosecute cases laid before him by the police. Law enforcement is most successful, as Thomas E. Dewey has proved in New York, when the prosecutor becomes an active agent in uprooting the sources of corruption and lawlessness.

No large city can afford to rely entirely upon its police force, efficient though it may be, for the investigation of illegal activities. The police are primarily concerned with routine patrolling duties and with investigation of crimes that have already taken place. To cope with modern criminals, far more searching inquiries into the sources of lawlessness are essential.

These more comprehensive probes are necessarily a function of the prosecutor. District attorneys cannot hope to enforce the law adequately unless they have at their command a competent staff who can expose lawless plots and conspiracies as well as present formal cases to the courts.

The only disappointing thing about Mr. Curran's investigative division is that it is starting out on so small a scale. For the present he must rely chiefly upon Detective Sergt. Joseph W. Shimon, who has been assigned to this work by the Police Department. Obviously he should have a number of investigators, and they should not merely be lent by the police. They ought to be an integral part of the district attorney's office.

The Kenvil Horror

Possibly we shall never know whether accident, negligence or the agency of some unfriendly power should be blamed for the fearful blast which destroyed the Hercules powder plant at Kenvil, N. J., killing at least 39 men and injuring more than a hundred others.

It will be recalled that the period preceding the entry of the United States into the World War was punctuated by similar explosions at various points along the Atlantic seaboard. The cause of some of these explosions will remain forever a mystery. But many years after the war, evidence was uncovered which linked at least two such disasters to the operation of a group of spies and saboteurs directed by the notorious Capt. Franz von Rintelen, now in an English prison camp.

To suspect the hand of some foreign power in the tragedy at Kenvil is both natural and logical. But whether the suspicion can ever be proved or refuted is another matter, since most of the direct evidence must have been destroyed by the explosion itself. What can and should be investigated thoroughly and without delay is whether proper checks and precautions were adopted in the employment of guards and workmen.

If the great Black Tom and Kingsland explosions of 1916 and 1917 were the work of German and Austrian spies, their task was made easier by the confusion which attended the rapid expansion of the munitions industry in America. The fact that in the explosion on the Black Tom pier at Jersey City only three men were killed, though the property damage was nearly 20 times greater than at Kenvil, shows what inadequate provision had been made for guarding such a tremendous quantity of explosives. The total guard at the time, in fact, comprised the regular pier watchmen reinforced by a few private detectives.

The safeguarding of munitions plants and their workers by every possible means is vital to the national defense.

Damaged Symbols

The bombing of Buckingham Palace and of the Houses of Parliament and the unsuccessful attempt to destroy the famous residence at No. 10 Downing street were obviously deliberate and no doubt carefully planned. Those attacks seem to explain the wide publicity given in Berlin to the supposed bombing of the Reichstag by the R. A. F.

The attack on the palace was carried out by dive bombers operating in daylight. They certainly could not have mistaken it for an airdrome or a fortress. Obviously, then, it was an effort to demoralize British morale by destroying the most celebrated and most honored symbols of the British power.

It is a strange and yet comforting irony that the Mother of Parliaments should have survived nearly all of her children. As England was the first it is also the last home of parliamentary government in Europe.

Of course to destroy the famous edifice at Westminster is not at all the same as destroying Parliament any more than to kill the King and Queen would be to destroy the British crown. These institutions can be destroyed only when the will of the British people to preserve them has been destroyed. That will to resist is being subjected to one of the most fearful tests in all recorded history, but there is yet no sign that it has crumbled.

A philosopher says there's nothing like adversity to make a man think. Perhaps so. When Rodin's "Thinker" went into such heavy conference with himself, he had run out of clothes and had nothing to sit on but a stump.

Again Peace And Quiet

From the Des Moines Register.

City folks who fled to the mountains and lakes for the summer to rest their ears from city noises are now returning gratefully to the din of town. They have learned that the mountains and lakes are not as noiseless as they are cracked up to be, but are the habitat of sleep-murdering fauna in great variety and profusion. Owls hoot, whippoorwills make whoopee, bullfrogs bellow for their jug o' rum all through the so-called stilly night, while fiddling crickets, tree-toads, and katydids have no closing hour whatsoever.

And when these performers in nature's night club have ceased their hullabaloo through sheer exhaustion, the morning shift comes on. The early-rising crows hold caucuses; the assertive chanticleer, the amorous dove, the repetitious phoebe, and the hungry calf wake the echoes and the summer visitor.

Safely returned to the sound of the city's symphony after such an ordeal, one discovers that the noise of the streets and the town isn't very nerve-wracking after all.

Willkie's Choice

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The maneuver of Candidate Wendel Willkie which gave the people of Elwood, Ind., instead of his distinguished neighbors of Fifth avenue, New York, the opportunity to hear his acceptance speech, will go down in history alongside the mysterious and unexplained moves of Admiral Sampson at the Battle of Santiago and Gen. Von Kluck before Paris in 1914.

Many guesses have been hazarded. One commentator ascribes it to the irresistible pull which Indiana has on all its Hoosiers. He claims they inevitably return to their native State for all the important events of their lives.

The most intriguing and plausible reason, however, has to do with Mr. Willkie's former experience as a teacher of history. As is well known he once taught history and it must therefore be assumed that he learned some lessons from history which were missed by the ordinary man.

For instance, he undoubtedly learned from our own history that of the 31 men who served the Nation as its President no great President was a business man and no great business man was ever President. He must have been struck with the oddity that the country throve, grew great and prospered without ever having been administered by a business man from a big city.

Conversely, he undoubtedly learned that all our great Presidents came from the small town, the prairie and the back country.

Now it is well known that Mr. Willkie aspires to be a great President, and herein may lay the solution of the mystery. What is more reasonable and logical than that he rushed back to Elwood to give his ambition a fair start?

ALBERT A. VOLK.
New York, Sept. 11.

Reply To Lindley

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Ernest Lindley asks "What is wrong with Willkie?" After his Western trip he seems to think Willkie is slipping. He enumerates the criticisms by, as he states, Mr. Willkie's supporters, one of these being "He is too much like Roosevelt." He further points out that Willkie might have made a major issue of Roosevelt's foreign policy. He adds, "Roosevelt, meanwhile, has tucked out of view several of the favorite targets in his Administration." Corcoran, Hopkins, et al., are mentioned. . . .

Well, Mr. Lindley, I'm wondering if all the readers of The Post detect the admission I do in your article of September 11? Now, lest you worry yourself too much regarding Mr. Willkie's shortcomings in the Roosevelt well known political technique, I beg to advise you that it will surprise you one of these days to learn just how many people in this country of ours are determined that they will not trust our country ever again in the hands of a political genius, and, incidentally, it would require a no less genius than a dodger, such as used to take a chance on his physiognomy at the amusement places, to dodge the duality employed at the moment, confusing defense and politics.

We do not expect the author of that acceptance speech at Elwood to dodge anything. The fact that he is a straight shooter, determined to follow the American way, has aroused a confidence that loose statements on the part of anyone can neither discourage nor destroy. In conclusion—nothing is the matter with Willkie. KAY RAY.
Washington, Sept. 12.

Mr. Pegler's Column

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Westbrook Pegler is a typical everyday example of a good "current news" columnist "cutting a hog," in his quest for versatility. I refer, of course, to his article in the September 6 issue of The Post, called "Marriage Bonds."

I fail to see how such an educated gentleman as Mr. Pegler, one who is frequently quoted in our Congressional records, can be so unlogical on such an important part of our life, unless he doesn't believe in God and His teachings via the Bible.

That marriage is a binding bond is really beyond sensible refute. The state is discussed at length in the Bible and Jesus Christ was too explicit on the sacredness of marriage to be misunderstood. His words are as follows:

"Every one that putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery; and he that marrieth her that is put away from her husband committeth adultery."

Still our Mr. Pegler calls the marriage bond "the archaic superstitution" . . . and implies that it is not sacred. His citation is silly and the falseness of it is too obvious to debate upon. Marriage is the conjugal union of a man and a woman who are naturally and legally fit to marry. It was raised to the dignity of a sacrament by Jesus Christ.

Society is most thankful to Jesus Christ for having established this inviolable sanctity of marriage, by which numberless scandals, family strife, and miseries, are prevented, family happiness more universally secured, and the weaker sex and the children greatly protected.

JACK RUSSEL DUNN.
Washington, Sept. 6.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Westbrook Pegler's columns are always my first venture into the morning papers. I love him. In fact I have put aside two of his columns to hand down to my children—the one about Italy's entrance into the war and the one about the silly Americans who spend their money abroad and suddenly get homesick when war breaks out. But all that is beside the point of this letter.

This morning's column comes on the heels of a party given by a Hoosier friend of ours. I was asking him last night why they call "you-all" that. He explained "Hoosier" to us in a humorous, interesting way and I was perfectly satisfied until Pegler's article this morning on "Those Hoosiers." Now I'm all up in the air again. Our friend has always been a model of what a well-dressed man should be.

Incidentally, I didn't miss the crack at Virginia. No matter who is supposed to be getting the razz, Virginia has at least to get side-swiped. Why do you-all hate us so much, honey chile? Anyway I know how to spell Taliaferro! And I ain't one of 'em. I'm just the common garden variety of Virginia varmint who still reads and likes Westbrook Pegler. SARAH C. LACY.
Silver Spring, Md., Sept. 8.

Congress And President

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What this country needs is a Congress! Not a vascillating, wheezy, paunch-bellied institution, ducking this way and that, and dodging one responsibility and surrendering another; but one able and ready to exercise its constitutional functions for the American people regardless of when and where personal retributions shall fall. This is a campaign year; but there is a hell of a war raging in Europe. While the debate waxes warm in terms of keeping this Nation out of the war, the President without advice or aid of Congress has already led us into the front line trenches! Whether wise or unwise, whether wanted or not wanted, let us not be dumb: when we undertake to fortify English soil whether in this hemisphere or in another, we have definitely joined the British. The firing may not begin until the enemy can get around to that situation, but potentially we are on the firing line, and unprepared: and the situation is as definite as if the bombs were already falling.

Of course it was a Congressional function to say whether all this should have been done, but while it gabbed and gobbled, Mr. Roosevelt exercised the powers of the Congress for it. That it may have been a perversion of his authority was of small moment: has he not done as much on other occasions? So let's be sensible. We are in; and being in, why delay the draft? The Democratic donkey seems separated between the head and tail—one end in and the other out. The American people have got to knock one end in the head, or we are lost!

Are we afraid of dictatorship? You betcher life we ain't: we are shaking hands with it every day from the White House steps.

In the meanwhile, will someone please forward to Mr. Willkie the words and music to the well-known ditty, which starts like this—

"Little Boy Blue, come blow your horn;

Washington, Sept. 11.

Germany, 1898

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In looking over the files of The Post covering the Spanish-American War period, I found the following item from Berlin in the issue of August 16, 1898:

OPINION IN GERMANY.
Contrast Between Her Course and That of Russia and France.

"Berlin, Aug. 16.—The papers here are commenting upon the interviews between United States Ambassador White and the Berlin representative of the New Yorker Staats Zeitung on the relations between Germany and the United States, which the Nord Deutsche Zeitung reproduces in big type.

"The Vossische Zeitung comments upon the fact that France is openly espousing the Spanish cause and that the Russian press is displeased with the American victory. It says:

"'Public opinion in Germany, on the contrary, though somewhat enraged at the outset by American ruthlessness, made no secret of its desire that America should win. Today the German press not only gives praise to the warlike deeds of the American Nation, but recognizes also the moderation of the victors.'"

The italics are mine. What a difference 42 years makes in the point of view of a nation—Germany.

The Post Impressionist

Writers In Conference

BY NOW the little librarian who came all the way by bus to Bread Loaf, Vt., has returned by bus to North Dakota, and another series of summer writers' conferences has passed into the personal history of several hundred aspirants to write and their teachers. Writers' conferences, born in the middle of the bootleg era, have survived the 1929 crash, the slough of the depression and the first year of World War II—and have become an institution. The birth of the institution was largely an accident, but, like the summer theater, it is firmly established.

It appears that about fifteen years ago Middlebury College received an awkward bequest of a summer inn and several thousand acres of virgin forest situated 10 miles from its campus. What to do with it? Why, put the Summer School of English out there. But summer school sessions traditionally end the middle of August and inns traditionally keep open through Labor Day, and in this gap a tidy sum of money can be dropped unless an inn is kept full. The idea that spanned this gap was, I believe, Robert Frost's notion of a very informal outdoor literary academy in the Green Mountains; it was translated into action by energetic John Farrar, Vermont boy who was then the editorial sparkplug of the publishing house of Doran. Farrar lined up a group of editors and writers, prospectuses were sent out, about 60 students were attracted to the fortnight of lectures and round tables, and thus the first Bread Loaf Writers' Conference successfully occurred.

Bread Loaf was quickly imitated. Writers' conferences have been held in Montana, Colorado, Michigan, North Carolina and New Hampshire, and my account is incomplete. The pattern is pretty much the same. Each is non-academic and features professional writers—like Sherwood Anderson, Fletcher Pratt, Margaret Peale Bishop, Hervey Allen—on its teaching staff. Each invites students to bring a load of manuscripts which are read by these specialists and criticized in private interviews. Each has morning classes on practical aspects of writing, afternoon round table discussions, and evening lectures by celebrities like Archibald MacLeish, James T. Farrell and Herbert Agar.

During the 13 years I taught at Bread Loaf and one summer at the Rocky Mountains Writers' Conference I was often asked by literary hopefuls if such conferences are any good. This year, having retired from from teaching at them, I feel free to answer emphatically that they are remarkably good, without incurring the suspicion of drumming up trade. The reason why they are good is simple: the writers and editors on the teaching staffs are allowed to be themselves. They are not expected to doff their office and professional personalities and put on an unbecoming professional dignity. They are not expected to pull their punches in handling students' manuscripts. They can smoke and they have been known to cuss in the classroom. At the cocktail hour they can be as convivial as at the Algonquin and when Louis Untermeyer is present as quipy. At one of these parties Alexander Laing, the Dartmouth poet, silenced (temporarily) the intellectual aggressor, Bernard DeVoto, by improvising a quatrain running:

Bernard DeVoto,
A fellow of noto,
Went down to defeat-o
Because of Pareto.

To a devout Paretian like DeVoto it is mandatory to pronounce the "o" in Pareto like the "a" in potato.

On one occasion a guest-lecturer perhaps exceeded the limits but he escaped detection by the dear old ladies of his audience, the only ones likely to take offense. He—a novelist of the hard boiled school—had become pretty boiled himself in preparing to face his ordeal by lecture. When it came he manfully stuck to reading his paper on the short story, but the big words tripped his tongue and he shambled unsteadily around the lectern. Nevertheless with my own ears I heard a little old lady behind me at long last say sympathetically to her neighbor, "he seems a very uncoordinated young man," and that was the nearest to criticism the performance received.

Perhaps this indicates what is true, to wit, the students have themselves already acquired some of the tolerant attitude toward manners that distinguishes the literary world. As conference succeeded conference, I have seen the students become younger, livelier, better looking, more sophisticated, more intelligent about their work. And some of them have later become so successful as to convince this instructor at least that perhaps he should be the instructed. For instance, Allene Corliss. She started from scratch, attended three Bread Loaf conferences, then began publishing light novels, a few summers ago she "reuned" joyously with the Bread Loaf staff after she had cleaned up 30 grand in one year. Copping 30 grand is something I have certainly never been able to teach myself and so I doubt if I imparted to her the secret. Which confirms me in a favorite aphorism; writing is never taught, it is always self-taught. However, I am positive that it does help beginners to rub pens with other addicts at Bread Loaf and similar conferences.

GORHAM MUNSON.

Text Of Roosevelt's Message

The National Defense Advisory Commission on September 6, 1940, unanimously agreed to and adopted general principles governing the letting of national defense contracts. On August 31, the commission also unanimously adopted a statement of labor requirements as a guide for contractors who have received national defense orders from the United States Government.

I consider these two documents to be of such importance as to justify my sending them to the members of the Senate and the House of Representatives as a matter of information. The values of these policies and principles to the Government, to industry, agriculture, labor and to the country, sectionally and as a whole, will be seen at once.

THE GENERAL principles governing the letting of defense contracts follow:

"The essence of the preparedness program is the getting of an adequate supply of materials of the proper quality in the shortest space of time possible. Considerations of price alone are highly important, but in the emergency are not governing.

"1. Speed of delivery of all items on the defense program is essential. This means:

"(a) That orders should be placed in such a manner as to insure the most efficient use of each particular facility from the point of view of the program as a whole;

"(b) That proper consideration should be given to contributory industries, such as the machine tool industry, to avoid creating underlying bottlenecks;

"(c) That once delivery dates are fixed, assurance be given that they will be met by the supplier.

"2. Proper quality is also of prime importance. It is, therefore necessary to determine first of all whether or not the supplier can meet the quality requirements, as specified. There should be a willingness on the part of both the Army and Navy, on the one hand, and the supplier on the other, to adjust specifications on a cooperative basis in order that such specifications may come as near as possible to meeting commercial standards while at the same time fulfilling the military requirements.

"3. Price, while not the sole consideration, is of outstanding significance, and every effort must be made to secure a fair price. This must take recognition, among other things, of determination of propert cost factors.

"4. The impact of the defense program upon the consumers must be recognized. This relates to such factors as:

"Due regard to the necessity of protecting civilian needs and morale.

"Proper health and housing conditions among employes.

"Consideration to possible off-season production in order to dovetail the military program into production for civilian requirements. Off-season production should also lead to lower overhead and consequently to lower prices for both the consumers and the Government.

"5. Adequate consideration must be given to labor. This means compliance with the principles on this subject stated by the commission in its release of August 31, copy of which is attached hereto.

"6. Undue geographic concentration of orders should be avoided, both as to procurement districts and as to industrial sections within any such procurement district. Reasons for such decentralization relate to factors of military strategy, as well as avoiding congestion that will slow down production.

"7. Financial responsibility of the supplier should be examined. Ability to post a bond does not necessarily dispose of this problem. The probability should exist that the supplier will be able to continue in business, at least long enough to complete his contract satisfactorily. Further, an ability to finance himself through private sources should take preference over necessity for securing Government aid.

"8. The avoidance of congestion of transportation facilities should be sought. The same applies to warehousing facilities.

"9. Due consideration should be given to the adequacy of power facilities, particularly where furnished by public utilities.

"10. A general preference should be given to firms having experience with so-called educational orders.

"11. The moral responsibility of the supplier is important, and, in some respects, fundamental. There should be evidence of honest and sincere desire to cooperate with the Army and Navy in producing what is called for, and on time, without profiteering; to assume some risks himself rather than attempting to shift all such risks to the Government, and to furnish a correct statement as to his capacity and his experience. The supplier's general standing and reputation among reputable businessmen (as distinct from his financial rating) is one index of such qualifications.

"12. The commission recognizes, that competitive bidding is the better procedure in some types of industry and circumstances. However, it is often impossible to make sure that the principles outlined above are followed when contracts are placed on the basis of price alone and are let to the lowest bidder. Therefore, in cases where competitive bidding will not fulfill the above-stated needs of national defense, the commission recommends that the use of the negotiated contract be authorized where necessary in order that these objectives be obtained in making defense purchases."

FOLLOWING IS the statement of labor policy adopted by the National Defense Advisory Commission.

"Primary among the objectives of the Advisory Commission to the Council of National Defense is the increase in production of materials required by our armed forces and the assurance of adequate future supply of such materials with the least possible disturbance to production of supplies for the civilian population. The scope of the present program entails bringing into production many of our unused resources of agriculture, manufacturing and man power.

"This program can be used in used in the public interest as a vehicle to reduce unemployment and otherwise strengthen the human fiber of our Nation. In the selection of plant locations for new production, in the interest of national defense, great weight must be given to this factor.

"In order that surplus and unemployed labor may be absorbed in the defense program, all reasonable efforts should be made to avoid hours in excess of 40 per week. However, in emergencies or where the needs of the national defense cannot otherwise be met, exceptions to this standard should be permitted. When the requirements of the defense program make it necessary to work in excess of these hours, or where work is required on Saturdays, Sundays or holidays, overtime should be paid in accordance with the local recognized practices.

"ALL WORK carried on as part of the defense program should comply with Federal statutory provisions affecting labor wherever such provisions are applicable. This applies to the Walsh-Healy Act, Fair Labor Standards Act, the National Labor Relations Act, etc. There should also be compliance with State and local statutes affecting labor relations, hours of work, wages, workmen's compensation, safety, sanitation, etc.

"Adequate provisions should be made for the health and safety of employes;

"As far as possible, the local employment or other agencies designated by the United States Employment Service should be utilized;

"Workers should not be discriminated against because of age, sex, race or color;

"Adequate housing facilities should be made available for employes.

"THE COMMISSION reaffirms the principles enunciated by the Chief of Ordnance of the United States Army, during the World War, in his order of November 15, 1917, relative to the relation of labor standards to efficient production:

"'In view of the urgent necessity for a prompt increase in the volume of production . . ., vigilance is demanded of all those in any way associated with industry lest the safeguards with which the people of this country have sought to protect labor should be unwisely and unnecessarily broken down. It is a fair assumption that for the most part these safeguards are the mechanisms of efficiency. Industrial history proves that reasonable hours, fair working conditions, and a proper wage scale are essential to high production. . . . Every attempt should be made to conserve in every way possible all of our achievements in the way of social betterment. But the pressing argument for maintaining industrial safeguards in the present emergency is that they actually contribute to efficiency.'"

Johnny Brown

THE MOST HIGHLY civilized man I know is a sallow young Georgian of 28 years or so who was born in a log house chinked with mud, such as may be seen from the highways and the train windows there. He quit school when he was 8 years old to help out around the poverty-stricken patch on which his family lived and, a few years later, joined out with a building contractor to earn a little cash money and learn a trade.

He lives in a small Connecticut mill town where squalor considerably hides its unsightliness by huddling along a side road beside a stream which could be beautiful and in some of its reaches is undeniably lovely. In this particular stretch, however, the river is badly fouled with crumbling industrial outbuildings and the familiar clutter of old tires, oil cans and all such.

The settlement around the mill, which manufacturers wire and wire products—a historic industry in this particular section—depends on the mill for much of its living, but the wages are low, the work is intermittent and there is no margin. My friend has a wife and little boy, and he works in the mill as assistant machinist now, which means that he continues to work during layoffs in the mill, because that is the time when the machinery is tightened up and repaired. I won't attempt to go into details about that, because I don't know much about it and, anyway, that isn't my story.

MY STORY is that my friend is the most reliable and resourceful man that I ever have known. He is a carpenter and cabinet maker; he can mix plaster and concrete, build a chimney, take down and reassemble an automobile and mend an old job with parts picked up at the wreckers' yard. He is an electrician, plumber and steamfitter and a farmer, and he can butcher his own meat.

He can build a whole house starting with the excavation and foundation, and if I give an impression that he is just a typical old-time, rural handy man or tinker I have done him an injustice and mauled the story. That kind can't do anything well, whereas my friend does everything with the expert touch. That is why I say he is the most civilized man I ever have known, although he never really went to school but just dropped in for a couple of those short winter sessions, in a rural seat of learning in a backward Georgia county, during which, nevertheless, he learned to read and write and to reckon up figures well enough for his purposes. Put him down on a frontier and he would get by where other men would freeze and starve. Isn't that civilization?

MY FRIEND is honest, too, and, although he will take a dram, it doesn't come to much, and he is always on the job in the morning.

When he joined out with the contractor down in Georgia the latter was building a house three stories high, and my friend—just an immature boy at the time—was set to work pushing sand up to the first story, then to the second and finally to the third in a wheelbarrow along inclined planks.

The first few weeks he thought the work would kill him, and colored casual laborers on the same job would work a day or two, draw their pay and wander off, but he stuck it because the contractor had told him he would teach him all about building houses if he would stick around. He worked with the contractor four or five years, sending part of his money home, and when he finally decided to come North he had all these new skills added to the others, which he had acquired farming the patch at home.

THERE ARE A LOT of potential munitions plants around our part of the country, but they say these places can't produce munitions because the machinery doesn't exist. But I tell you what they can do. They could turn my friend loose in an automobile boneyard or a town dump with a fair quota of old washboilers and baby carriages on it and he would come up with a workable antiaircraft gun or tank in due time.

And if a special kind of machine was wanted to bore the tube of a special kind of cannon you would not have to bother with blueprints. Just give him a rough idea and a couple of weeks to work on it in his spare time. Then one night he would be around at the door saying: "I got that machine for you to make cannon with. Where shall I put it?"

Believe it or not, my friend's name is Johnny Brown. I don't know why they haven't called him down to Washington.

The Defense Against War

THERE WOULD be no deep difference of opinion about foreign policy today if for more than a hundred years American foreign policy had not been so immensely successful. The results have been so good that many among us have forgotten, and our schools have ceased to teach us, how thirteen small and feeble colonies along the Atlantic coast of North America managed to insulate themselves against the empires of the world and to grow great without being attacked, without being compelled even to become a mighty military power. In the unique security which we have enjoyed we had come to take our security for granted, like the air we breathe, as something which has been ours as a matter of course. In fact, we owe it to the diplomacy of great men. And in so far as we have forgotten the statesmanship which won and consolidated our security, we are in danger of losing our security.

Without a clear grasp of the basic and unchanging principles of American security, we shall never be secure no matter how much money we appropriate, no matter how many ships, airplanes and guns we make, no matter how many men we conscript. We shall be like a race of city-dwellers who eat food but have forgotten how to farm, who wear clothes but have forgotten that clothes are not made in department stores, who use daily but cannot themselves build or repair the complicated machinery by which they are provided with water, light and heat. Our century of isolation from the wars of Europe, our unchallenged independence and our unexampled security against all external threats were the product of a greatly successful foreign policy. And unless we can recover the knowledge which guided that policy, we shall lose the security which the policy produced. In fact, we have already lost much of our old security; the net result of the deadlock, the paralysis, the confusions and the contradictions of foreign policy in our generation is that for the first time in our history we feel compelled to organize a great conscript army.

WE MAY WELL begin by remembering that when the War of Independence had been won, the American Nation had no such isolation from the empires of Europe as it later achieved. The British were in Canada and Canada was not then a self-governing dominion. The Spaniards were in Florida and in the Mississippi Valley, in Central and South America. The French were in the West Indies. The Russians were in Alaska. The Western Hemisphere was as much involved in the imperial rivalries of Europe as is Africa today.

The task of American diplomacy was to get rid of these imperial rivalries because these rivalries meant perpetual war on the American continents, and perpetual wars meant that the United States would have to become a military power and might in the course of affairs be defeated and lose their independence. Yet the American States were weak as compared with the great empires all about them, and their leaders could never have liquidated the imperial rivalries in this hemisphere if they had not been as shrewd as they were bold.

They had begun, naturally, by ousting the British Empire from the colonies themselves. To do this they not only went to war, but also they took advantage of the long-continuing rivalry between Britain and France. They made an alliance with France. Without this alliance the War of Independence would not have ended when it did, nor perhaps as it did.

Having gotten rid of the British within the colonies themselves, the next chapter came when France, then under the conquering military dictatorship of Napoleon, became by cession from Spain the owner of the Mississippi Valley. Taking advantage of the fact that Napoleon was still at war with Great Britain and could not, therefore, occupy the territory, Jefferson bought Louisiana.

Thus France was ousted from what is now the United States. A little later the Spanish Empire collapsed in Europe, and promptly the United States obtained Florida, thus ousting Spain from the frontiers of the United States. A little later still, the empires of Russia, Austria, Prussia and France began to form plans for the reconquest of empire in this hemisphere. Russia began to move down the Pacific Coast from Alaska; the so-called Holy Alliance began to threaten to put down the rebellion of the Spanish colonies in Latin America. To prevent all this, Monroe consulted with Canning, found that Britain and the United States were both of them opposed to the revival of European imperialism in the Americas. Having been assured that Britain would fight if the reconquest of Spanish America was attempted, Monroe announced the Monroe Doctrine which warned off Russia on the West Coast and Russia, Prussia, Austria and France in Latin America.

These were the stages by which the thirteen colonies, which had revolted from Britain, made themselves independent and secure in the Western Hemisphere. They did it by seizing their opportunities and by collaborating with Britain against all the other European empires whenever they saw that the British interest and the American were the same.

THE GREAT PRINCIPLE of their foreign policy was to make the United States independent and secure. The means they employed were to oust the empires which, if they had been allowed to remain established over here, would have caused perpetual rivalry and endless war. They chose to work with the British against all the other empires because they found that in spite of many irritations and quarrels, the British and American interests in this hemisphere were most nearly the same.

The genius of their policy lay in the clarity with which they saw that the successful defense of the United States must lie in keeping the threat of war at a distance. They never made the cardinal mistake of thinking that the place to defend a country is on its own frontiers and that the place to fight wars is at home. The whole principle of their policy, which is generalized in the Monroe Doctrine, was to prevent war by depriving potential enemies of a base from which to attack, and to fight, if it was necessary to fight, at a safe distance from their own homes and workshops.

NO ONE who contemplates the position of Britain today can have any doubt, it seems to me, about how desperately and dangerously mistaken are those who think that a nation should defend itself on its own frontiers. For if a nation adopts such a policy, or unhappily is forced into it as the British have been, the result is to bring the war over the frontiers and into the country which is practicing a purely defensive strategy. Yet there are Senators who tell us that we must defend ourselves at home when we are attacked, nowhere else and not before. That was not the view of the founders of this Republic. They saw quite clearly, and they acted boldly on it, that to be secure a nation must push war away from its frontiers, and not let its own territory become the battlefield.

They would have been astounded at the men who say that the way to be secure is to do what the British are now doing, to fight alone without allies and to fight at home where, win or lose, the defender is devastated. The founders of our isolation took exactly the opposite view from that of the isolationists today. For they knew that the only way to enjoy isolation is to practice a diplomacy which pushes war away from the homeland, never to wait until war invades it.

Gas Buggies Of Yesterday

ALFRED P. SLOAN, jr.'s, memoirs mentioning some of those early gasoline buggies, and subsequent comments in this column, continue to revive memories of the cars of yesterday. Remember the Chadwick, the Walters and the Cartercar? Recall the Owen Magnetic, the Regal Underslung and the Alco?

Warren Boyer does, and he also digs up the Case and the Autocar. "How about the Knox and Stevens-Duryea with their bolted-on tires?" he asks. "And the Searchmont with its back door? And the Chadwick with a hood that seemed a mile long?

"Then there was the Cartercar with the funny clutch, the Elmore, the E. M. F. and the Rambler, that later became the Reo. The Owen Magnetic, Haynes, Case, Lozier, Regal and American Underslung, Metz, Saxon, Simplex, Alco, Cunningham and so many more," he continues.

"The six-cylinder Ford, about 1905, with its 34 by 4½ tires, and the many two-cylinder jobs like the Maxwell, Buick, Franklin and Autocars were still doing duty when the 1914 war broke out in Europe.

"For several years I was with one of the tire companies, and in 1910 it was my lot to go on the Munsey Tour, a contest—endurance contest to both car and passengers—that started in Philadelphia and took us to Portland, through the White Mountains, Green Mountains, Saratoga, Binghamton, Wilkes-Barre, Harrisburg and ending in Washington. The following year I did the Glidden Tour, which took us from New York to Jacksonville.

"There were 34 cars starting out of New York, but three days later, after a cloudburst that broke loose during lunch at Natural Bridge, 12 cars didn't check in at Roanoke for the night stop. Next day, with the aid of a couple of mules, we had to ford a stream to get to the checking station at Rocky Mount.

"Roads 'was roads in them days.' There were no windshields, no top and nothing more than was necessary. Under the back seat, however, there was a spare magneto and other important spares, while bolted on the underside of the running boards were extra springs."

Remember the Palmer-Singer? Well, listen to Henry S. Downe:

"Maybe this is a letter to end all such letters, but I can conjure up, out of my own memory and without benefit of research the names of Chalmers-Detroit, Premier, Moline, Case, Simplex, DeLaunay-Belleville, Saxon, Northern, R. C. H., H. A. L., Elcar, Woods Electric, Baker Electric, Flanders, Lozier, Mercer, Rambler, Rainier, American, Winton, Chandler, Mitchell, Pathfinder, Roamer, Wills-Ste. Clair (or Wills-St. Claire), Velie, Jordan, National, Dorris, Durant, Star, Moon, Cole, Peerless, Stutz, Stearns, Thomas Flyer, Oakland, Stoddard-Dayton, Reo, Stanley Steamer, White Steamer, Palmer, Singer, Dupont and the first Lafayette.

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett

OUR SCHOOLHOUSES are our modern temples; they are the major expressions of American community life. Drive across the land anywhere in Europe, and the towers of the churches dominate the landscape. Drive across America today, and the most impressively recurrent sights, in all the 48 States of the Union, in city and in country alike, are the great modern schoolhouses into which the taxpayers have poured their money, more willingly than for any other purpose unless it be the building of roads. If we have a national religion, a common American faith, they express it. So a book like "Schoolmaster of Today," the story of three generations of Indiana schoolmasters, by Millard Fillmore Kennedy and Alvin F. Harlow (Whittlesey House, $2.75), should have a larger significance than the country doctor, lawyer, editor, books with which it might seem to belong.

"Schoolmaster of Yesterday" does not quite measure up to its opportunity. Too much of it consists of trite pioneer stories, of the conventionally picturesque picture of our forebears. Yet wherever Schoolmaster Kennedy, who retired in 1921 after 38 years of country school teaching, sticks to his last, of describing the schools in which his grandfather, who began teaching in 1820, and his father, who taught from 1856 to 1899, and he himself taught, the book is warm, alive and rewarding.

GRANDFATHER KENNEDY began teaching in community schools in Kentucky, but in 1836 migrated to Indiana, where his son and grandson taught. His first school was a one-room log cabin with a dirt floor, backless seats made out of split logs adzed smooth, and a central chimney made of split oak sticks covered with clay. The only desks were a split log set under each window. the school term was three months, and the teacher was paid from 50 cents to $1.75 a pupil, by the children's parents. Indiana was more progressive: a State law of 1824 insisted that all schools must have floors built at least 1 foot above the ground, and that the ceilings must be at least 8 feet above the floors. But a law of 1833 forbade any town to pay a schoolmaster more than $60 for a three-month term. And in 1848, when the Legislature voted for a referendum on the establishment of free, State-supported schools, the big taypayers howled in protest, much as those opposed to public relief howl in our own day. The referendum barely carried, by a vote of about 7 to 6.

GRANDFATHER KENNEDY, of course, never went to college, but he was a famous teacher. So was Father Kennedy; his pupils still gather each year for an Uncle Ben Kennedy Old School Reunion. For two years he walked 6 miles to Indiana Asbury University, now DePauw, as preparation for his life work.

Questions Before U. S.

By Mark Sullivan

'Could (Not Would) Hitler Attack?'

THIS CAN be put in the form of a question. The question is one for experts to answer. But it is a question for evefybody to think about.

The question begins with two "ifs:"

(1) If Germany conquers England; and

(2) if Germany gets possession of the British fleet.

In that situation, could Hitler attack the United States directly—attack New York or some other seaport city?

Hitler would have: his own fleet, the British fleet, the Italian fleet, the part of the French fleet which he already has control of. And he would have practically all the great shipbuilding facilities of Europe outside Russia.

SUCH AN AGGREGATION of naval strength would be enormously greater than what the United States today has. We could hardly pretend to offer opposition on the sea. Neither would our present airplane strength offer serious opposition.

In short, the question here posed amounts to asking, is America in immediate danger? Is America's immediate safety involved in the battle which is today under way in Europe? Is America only slightly less concerned than England herself?

Many will answer the broad question here posed by dismissing the second of the two "ifs." They will say it is idle to speculate on Germany getting possession of the British fleet. They will admit, for the sake of argument, that Germany might conquer England. But they will add that even if that happens, Germany will never get possession of the British fleet. They say the fleet will either be sent across the sea to the American continent, or be sunk by the British themselves, scuttled.

FOR THIS assumption, comforting to America, there is some basis. The British government does not contemplate that its fleet will ever be either surrendered or sunk. Prime Minister Churchill said so, formally, on June 4:

"If during the course of this present war . . . the waters surrounding the British Isles should become untenable for British ships of war, the British fleet would in no event be surrendered or sunk, but would be sent overseas for the defense of other parts of the empire."

That statement, when made, was addressed to the world in general. Subsequently it was made into a statement directed to the United States. In late August, Secretary of State Hull formally inquired if that statement "represents the settled policy of the British government." In reply, British Ambassador Lord Lothian said it "certainly did. . . ."

This exchange of letters was given out at the same time as the agreement between Britain and the United States covering transfer of destroyers and naval bases. But this statement of policy was not a part of that agreement. It is not an agreement at all. It is merely a one-sided, voluntary statement of policy by Britain. If Britain should be obliged not to live up to that policy, we would have no ground for reproach. Britain, of course, would try to live up to the policy. She has every reason to save her fleet if she can, including the reason of protection to Canada and other outlying parts of the British Empire. But if Britain cannot or does not live up to that policy, it is merely America's hard luck.

BRITAIN WOULD want to and try to save her fleet. But we must consider the condition which would exist at the time when Britain must act. That condition would be, actual conquest of England. That would be a condition of chaos in which many things would happen and be done which are not now contemplated. Men, and nations, might not be able to do what they had intended to do.

The condition of England at the final moment of conquest would be like the condition of France at the corresponding moment. In the moment of conquest of Britain, as in the moment of conquest of France, the former government is succeeded by another one, necessarily subservient to Germany. There would be other conditions of confusion, impossible to anticipate.

France had contemplated that in the event of being conquered, her fleet would be turned over to the British. But the French fleet was not turned over to the British. It was put, as an incident of surrender, in the control of Germany. Britain got only so much of the French fleet as she seized by force.

GOING BACK to the broad question here posed, bear in mind that the question is, "Could Hitler Attack the United States?" Some will try to answer that question by answering a different question. They will say, "Oh, Hitler would never attack the United States." But the question is not, "Would Hitler . . . ;" the question is Could Hitler . . . ?"

Many answerers say that Hitler "would" not attack, for various motives or reasons, which the answerers point out. But to answer that way is optimistic, and fatuous. To guess what Hitler "would" do, is to speculate upon a very strange and unguessable mind. For our enlightenment we had better stick to the concrete question, "Could Hitler attack."

What has been written here may seem to imply that Hitler could attack. But that may not be the true answer at all. The question, and all the factors involved, is technical. The only persons from whom a worthwhile answer can be had are military and naval experts. We ought to get the answer, and guide ourselves accordingly.

U. S. Baptists to Send $53,000 to Britain

Richmond, Va., Sept. 13 (AP).—Dr. Charles E. Maddry, executive secretary of the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board, announced today that an additional $53,000 was ready to be sent to the British Baptist Missionary Society and that it was hoped $200,000 would be forwarded to the society by mid-October.

Appreciation for the $100,000 sent last week by Southern Baptists was expressed in a message read to the foreign mission board yesterday. The English society's London headquarters were wrecked in a recent Nazi air attack.

WARREN SIEGEL, son of Mrs. Rose Siegel, 3330 Georgia avenue, in the new two-pants suit he will have when he starts the term at Park View School. There is a pair of long pants (his first) as well as knickers. Miss Joanna H. Anderson fits the suit while little sister Sybil watches. The coat is a single-breasted sack model

THE LEOPARD COLLAR on this green wool, double-breasted winter coat was what took the eye of Jacqueline Ristig, aged 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ristig, 3516 Twenty-fourth street northeast. Jacqueline is in grade 3-B at John Burroughs School. Miss Betty Head is showing the coat

WINNER of a competitive $4,000 scholarship award to Rosemont College, in Pennsylvania, Margy Bryan, daughter of Mrs. L. M. Bryan and the late Dr. Bryan, 1322 Massachusetts avenue, selects a "date dress." It is black wool, with bouffant skirt trimmed in tiers of grosgrain ribbon. With it she tries on a fur and velvet hat, matching a black needlepoint coat with silver fox trim. Naomi Ulman is waiting on her.

. . . And Those Older

THE CAMPUS COAT is a "must" in college outfits. It is three-quarter length balloon-lined gabardine with zipper front. Preston Weaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Weaver, of Rockville, Md., a freshman at Georgia Tech, selects his at a local store while a school friend, Virginia Blair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ulysses E. Blair, 2227 Otis street northeast, looks on. Virginia is a student at McKinley Tech

Time to Get Your Schoolwear

THAT'S RIGHT, they just fit. Donald Kauffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Kauffman, 1252 Evarts street northeast, now has sturdy brown oxfords to match a new brown corduroy knicker suit. Miss Doretta Popka fits them. Donald is in grade 2-A at Crosby Noyes School

Years ago, before the District supplied them, textbooks had to be bought for the opening of school. Now school buying means not books, but clothes—and what a gay job it is this year.

Stores are crowded with boys and girls of all ages, Washingtonians and those from nearby Virginia and Maryland being fitted out for the opening of the fall semester.

Sports togs lead. Girls from the primary grade to senior year in college are wearing them. There are clan plaid skirts with English boxer sweaters which are the "Sloppy Joes" of last season under a new name. The sleeves are worn pushed up halfway to the elbow for no good reason except that "they" are all wearing them that way. "Beanies," like the caps knitted by the Red Cross for soldiers, are perched on the back of the head.

Pork pie hats may be bought in matching corduroy. The Flemish sailor is another popular and becoming model for the schoolgirl.

Low-heeled oxfords, many of them sideties, are being worn by both little girls and their older sisters. The sports shoes are known as "ponies."

STANDING BESIDE the wishing well, Lucy Ann Christman, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Christman, 2919 Mills avenue northeast, can wish for nothing better for cold days than this knitback fleece coat with detachable velvet-lined hood, and lined, zipper leggings held by suspenders. Lucy Ann is in Grade 3-B at Langdon School

MARY BARBARA McNALLY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. McNally, 3654 Warder street northwest, likes these side-tie sports oxfords. Mary Barbara is 9 years old

BETTY ARDEESER looks on while Anna Mae, her twin, tries on a red corduroy jumper. It will have to be a pair for the girls, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Ardeeser, Cheverly, Md., dress alike. They are 16 years old and attend St. Patrick's Academy. Mrs. Bermeta McCormick is showing the jumper, ideal for school wear

NOTHING COULD PLEASE a little miss more than this Burgundy velvet frock with Irish lace at the neck and sleeves. Diane Marie Newnam, on whom Miss Anne West is trying it, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Newnam, 1714 E street southeast, and is a beginner at Buchanan School

More important than the picture in which they play the costellar feminine roles, were the four personal appearances made by Lucille Ball and Maureen O'Hara yesterday on the stage of the RKO-Keith Theater as an added fillip to the Washington premiere of RKO-Radio's production of "Dance, Girl, Dance."

BELL

With a large and eager crowd awaiting their first entrance behind the footlights at about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the Misses Ball and O'Hara swished onto the stage and submitted to such pandemonium as you have rarely heard. They had a task of some difficulty in getting into their unpretentious routine, but they had a more difficult chore trying to discover some way in which gracefully to leave their admirers, clamoring for more of their tomfoolery.

Tomfoolery is about all the "act" amounts to. It consists principally of "cross-fires" among Miss Ball, Miss O'Hara and their erstwhile "master of ceremonies," Hugh Conover, of Station WJSV. Owing to certain inexorable stipulations of certain interests powerful in the theater, the girls were without musical accompaniment. Miss Ball, however, manager to pitch-pipe her own brief parody of "Oh, Johnny," to the huge amusement of all present. The lyrics were altered in a manner slightly uncomplimentary, but good-naturedly so, to Mr. Conover.

It would be difficult to hit upon two more strikingly contrasted personalities than Miss Ball and Miss O'Hara. That is evidenced on the screen and it is made conclusively clear on the stage. Miss O'Hara is a young woman of distinctly serious mien; Miss Ball is a happy-go-lucky young person, with a keen and infallible sense of humor and an utterly carefree manner of "putting it over." They team with extraordinary effectiveness. This is true also in the picture.

"Dance, Girl, Dance"—without the physical presence of its distaff costars to pump vitality into audience interest—is no great shakes as a backstage filmusical. It is loosely integrated—occasionally it seems not to be integrated at all—and frequently loses its romantic developments in a welter of burlesque theater experiences in which "Bubbles" and Judy are involved. "Bubbles" (Miss Ball) is the gal who has what the smoker circuit likes; Judy (necessarily Miss O'Hara) is employed as her "stooge," in a classical ballet number to "build up" enthusiasm for her companion's less subtle appeal to the artistic senses. There is a dancing school, night club background to all this that furnishes a vague and nebulous source of romance. It is a little difficult trying to keep track of all this heart-throb business and coordinate it with the rest of the goings-on.

There isn't anything much that can be blamed on the cast in all this. The fault seems to lie with Tess Slesinger and Frank Davis, the screen adaptors of the original Vicki Baum story. Possibly we have said enough already about Maureen O'Hara and Lucille Ball. They do excellent jobs. So does Mme. Ouspenskaya, within the limitations of a comparatively small role. But there are others who do their bits, too. Foremost among them are Ralph Bellamy, the ballet impresario, who finally discovers Miss O'Hara; Louis Hayward, in a poorly drawn role of a bibulous young man, who also plays a part in the lives of all the women in the cast, with one or two trifling exceptions; Mary Carlisle, one of Ouspenskaya's struggling troupe; Walter Abel, as an understanding judge—after the whole thing gets into night court, as it eventually does—and Vivian Fay, as a premiere danseuse, who is precisely that. Katherine Alexander, Ed Brophy, Harold Huber, Emma Dunn and numerous others also contribute in varying degrees to whatever it is you will be able to evolve from this spacious and largely specious panorama of only remotely related events.

The supplementary features of the new Keith bill include a new issue of the Pathe News, an issue of "Information Please," with Clifton Fadiman presiding over John Kieran, Oscar Levant, Franklin P. Adams and Actress Ruth Gordon as his quartet of experts, and a considerably attenuated millinery comedy, "Sheila Barrett in Hats." Miss Barrett, it seems to me, is much better in her character impressions than she is in fantastic headgear. You know from the start that the bonnet she is going to wear out of the shop is the one she wore in. Nevertheless, Sheila Barrett is Sheila Barrett. But from today on, "Dance Girl, Dance," will miss the personal presence of the young stars who started it off with such a bang yesterday.

'The Howards of Virginia' Draws Vivid Parallels at Earle

By Richard L. Coe

"THE HOWARDS OF VIRGINIA." Columbia picturization of the novel by Elizabeth Page, "The Tree of Liberty," adapted to the screen by Sidney Buchman, costarring Cary Grant and Martha Scott, with Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Alan Marshal, Richard Carlson, Paul Kelly, Irving Bacon, Elizabeth Risdon, Ann Revere, Richard Alden, Phil Taylor, Rita Quigley, Libby Taylor, Richard Gaines and George Houston. Music by Richard Hageman. Produced and directed by Frank Lloyd. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Earle Theater.

Adapted from Elizabeth Page's novel, "The Tree of Liberty," this splendid film opened yesterday at the Earle. A story of colonial America, it is effectively directed by Frank Lloyd, who gave us the screen "Cavalcade," eloquently played by Cary Grant and Martha Scott and has ideas of striking interest today.

"Understanding," explains one of its characters, "is pity for the way others can't help feeling." This compassion is what makes "The Howards of Virginia" more than a mere outline of Revolutionary America. Through the lives of a handful of people, we see the struggle against tyranny. Their backgrounds vary and their reactions are always true to character.

Its pace is deliberate and slow. There may be some who dislike this trait, but it is inherent in a story with a sweep of 40 eventful years, years that take rough Matt Howard and his patrician wife from the Indian Wars to the triumph of Yorktown.

A Striking Parallel

Emphasizing for the first time in many screen plays the parallel of the present with Revolutionary days, "The Howards of Virginia" brings a young man of the frontier to visit his boyhood chum, Tom Jefferson, in proud Williamsburg. There he meets a daughter of the partician Peytons, sweeps her off her feet, carries her to plebian Albemarle County. But while the girl's respect for tradition lasts through the Revolution itself, Jane Peyton has guts and spirit as well as love for her man. Together they build a beautiful home, raise a family and face the surging unrest of the 1770's.

"You can't have peace and dignity," Matt tells his lass, "unless the rest of the gol-darned world behaves." What a commentary on you needn't be told what!

Her family's distaste for the forthright Matt is personified in Sir Cedric Hardwick's unyielding brother, Fleetwood. Symbolically this crippled brother reappears in Jane's and Matt's first-born son, whose birth is one of the film's most moving moments. Always alienated from his father until events show his sturdy courage, this lad is seen by his parents as an ultimate peace to their opposing natures.

Jane's amazement at the backwoods which was to become her home, her pride in doing her duty, her pluck in creating a home as she had been brought up to know a home, her steady belief in her own training, all these things make a character at once honest and admirable. Here is no unconvincing discarding of principle in the grand movie manner. Instead, here is a courage that is gripping and fine.

Not Without Humor

Cary Grant has never been finer than he is as Matt Howard. In a role completely different from those he has played lately and one which might have been conceived for Spencer Tracy, Grant is always credible and strong. Martha Scott, whose only previous film was "Our Town" is superb as his gentle wife.

Despite the ponderous tone of this review, there's humor and a lot of it in "The Howards of Virginia," humor which emphasizes the contrasting characters. While the Patrick Henry sequences smack of the pontifical, Matt's remarks on freedom and tolerance certainly do not.

The Earle's stage accompaniment is brief, pretty and pleasant. Honoring the film, it's titled "Colonial Days," with a pleasing backdrop of Williamsburg and a finale of Indians a la Roxyettes. June Forrest brings her charming radio voice to "I'll Never Smile Again" and a Jerome Kern medley. Sunny Rice dances and there are slick adagio doings by the Dolores Dancers, an agile blonde and three toss-her-uppers. Bob Hall, he of the spontaneous versification, headlines, with ingenious rhymings for anything anybody might suggest.

WARM SPRINGS FOUNDATION, beneficiary of the President's Birthday-Ball Receipts, is scheduled for complete reorganization shortly . . . The State convention of the C. I. O. will mark a break between Sidney Hillman and John L. Lewis, with each faction complaining that the other is paying the back-dues of deliquent members, to get out the vote . . . Chaim Weitzmann, who discovered TNT during the last war, now has presented to Britain his new formula for making cordite out of orange peel, which makes Palestine a vital source of supplies . . . The Senate's wire-tapping committee will subpena a woman detective. Among the revelations will be a case involving a famed comic, who tapped the phone of his estranged wife.

ROBERT MORLEY, who won acclaim here in his portrayal of "Oscar Wilde," is in London now, directing the new J. Priestley play. Morley, who still is stout, cannot carry his air-raid knapsack at his side. Instead, he wears it around his neck, so that his girth will not impede his using the gas-mask and helmet, in the event of emergency . . . During a recent rehearsal of the play, the air-raid warning was given. All, except Morley, descended to the shelter. The air-raid warden advised Morley to find refuge, but the actor ignored him . . . "What is it, sir?" asked the warden. "What would you have?" . . . Morley struck his Oscar Wilde pose, and said: "I should like nothing better—than some absinthe."

SOME MONTHS AGO, when Moss Hart completed his new play, he discussed it with Edith Atwater, the ingenue now featured in "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Hart told her that Gertrude Lawrence would be starred . . . Miss Atwater suggested that she, perhaps, might be suitable for the role. "You can't play it," said Moss, "because this requires someone who can sing—and you've never done any singing" . . . Miss Atwater assured the playwright that she could learn to sing—and that before October 1, she would sing on the stage of a New York theater. All summer, therefore, she took singing lessons, and practiced diligently. And two weeks from today, after the performance of "The Man Who Came to Dinner," before a one-man audience consisting of Moss Hart—Edith Atwater will sing from the stage of the Music Box Theater.

MAYOR LaGUARDIA'S broadcast in support of President Roosevelt comes as no surprise to Wendell Willkie . . . Last spring, at a dinner attended by Willkie, Taft and other aspirants for the Republican nomination, Fiorello mounted the platform and directed a speech at them. "I see all you men here, hoping to get the Republican nomination for the Presidency, but you're all out of luck," said LaGuardia. "Frankly, there's only one man in this room who has a chance of winning the election—and I'm just too modest to mention his name."

AN AMERICAN OBSERVER who visited Chungking, provincial capital of China, returned with this first-hand report: When the Japanese airmen completed their bombardment of the city, they followed it by dropping leaflets which read: "When the sun rises, Japanese bombers come. When the moon rises, Japanese bombers come again. The golden city of Chungking will soon be in ruins, unless you surrender. Wake up. What do you say?" . . . The next morning the Chinese defenders made reply—an unequivocal gesture which entailed no needless expense. For the owners of the Chinese junks, moored in the river which flows near Chungking, arranged their little boats in a formation clearly visible from the sky where the enemy raiders rained their death. That formation of boats spelled out an obscene word.

EDDIE DAVIS, the former cab driver whose passengers included Eddie Cantor and Al Jolson, has written a new musical comedy in which Cantor agreed to appear. It will be called "Not Tonight, Josephine." Davis, who wrote the Jolson show which opened Wednesday night, was congratulated by Al upon its success. "What will you do with all the money you'll make?" Jolson asked. "I'm going to buy my own cab," said Davis. "I can't depend upon you for the rest of my life" . . . Eleanor Holm, who has been ailing, will return to the Aquacade show.

EDNA FERBER recently realized an ambition unfulfilled for many years—an ambition to act upon the stage. In her autobiography, "A Peculiar Treasure," Miss Ferber confessed the longing she had to become an actress, and of her plan to run away from home to join a troupe. Writing, she felt, was inconsequential when compared to the thrilling moment when an actress utters her first words from behind the footlights . . . Miss Ferber finally agreed to accept a short engagement at the Maplewood Theatre, in "The Royal Family," the play she had written with George S. Kaufman . . . Her actress niece, Janet Fox, asked Edna: "Well, how did you like acting?" . . . The writer's reply was clear and definite: "I hate it."

'I Love You Again' Bubbles Into Fourth F Street Week

A husband's amnesia may be a headache to him, but a lovely dream come true to his wife, according to "I Love You Again," now entering its fourth hilarious downtown week.

A stuffed shirt and a penny-pincher is William Powell, as the normal hero of the picture. But a hearty clout on the ear releases his other self, a loveable scamp with few inhibitions and a practically chloroformed conscience.

Is wife Myrna Loy delighted! Instead of her nickel squeezing, convention intimidated William, whom she's on the point of Renovating, she has a brand new husband and a good-time Charley, at that. He looks like the old model, but how differently he performs! He sugars her up with compliments, pours out money like a geyser, insists on buying her all sorts of expensive doodads, climaxes a lovely day by giving an imitation of love-bird.

It's all too wonderful to be true. Perplexed Myrna quite understandably bursts into annoyed tears. Here she is planning to divorce the fellow and he turns around and acts like her dream man. She figures it must be a low plan of his to stave off divorce and save his face in the community.

"I Love You Again" easily ranks as one of the season's bubbliest comedies. Stars Powell and Loy perform with aplomb and gaiety, and Frank McHugh and Edmund Lowe add to the fun as promoters of an imaginary oil well. Freckled Alfalfa, of "Our Gang," blossoms out as a boy ranger.

Battered but undaunted London is shown in the newsreel. The Fiji Islands appear in color in a travel short. The chemical adventures of a bookworm and a raven, who choose Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde as their physician, appear in the color cartoon. Do they get a fine dose of electrotherapy!

MARY HARRIS.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, Sept. 13.

When I lunched with Sam Goldwyn the other day, he gave me a lot of dope on that trip to Texas where he'll open "The Westerner" in Fort Worth the nineteenth, in Dallas the next night. The Gary Coopers, the Walter Brennans, Fred Stone, Leo Carrillo, Eddie, Arnold, Jon Hall and Frances Langford will go along, and leading members of the press.

HOPPER

Sam's done such a fine job as chairman of the Red Cross the industry has made him chairman of all our charities, because we're asked to give for everything, and it should be under one perfect management, and organized as the Red Cross is organized. He's put a member of every guild in the business on his board, and is really doing it up brown.

With summer still in the air, it's time for fall clothes. And did the girls flock to see Howard Greer's new collection. Irene Dunne looked like a fashion plate herself, in a black suit, vagabond hat, and the largest diamond pin I've ever seen—an ostrich plume in yellow and white diamonds, made from a couple of old necklaces.

The silliest sight of the week was Jack Barrymore pushing his puss into a gob of soft cement so they could have an imprint of the great profile with Marie Dressler's footprints in Grauman's Chinese Theater forecourt. When it was over, Jack said, "Gee, I'm glad it wasn't a hunk of marble."

Wee Bonnie Baker and Orrin Tucker are making the grandest tests at Paramount. Neither of them knows much about acting, but they're bending backward co-operating. Tucker, blindly following the director's instructions, fell backward over a table. Bonnie's cute as the dickens, and it doesn't take a Philadelphia lawyer to tell they're madly in love.

When "I Wanted Wings" company landed at Randolph Field, Tex., Constance Moore never thought her family would get their faces in the camera, but they did. Her mother plays mother of two cadets, and two half sisters, Shirley, aged 12, and Betty, aged 10, were picked for cadets' sisters.

New dresses are stunning—one white affair that's called "My Fortune"—if you didn't have it when you bought it, you would after you wore it. After the show, the whole crowd went next door to Frederics' and bought him out. What hats! By the way, girls, when your husband goes hunting, have him save the heads of ducks and animals, have them stuffed, then put 'em on your hat. It's the latest craze.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Sept. 13 (INS).—Just to give you a rough idea of how proud Para is of Preston Sturges, the invitations to his "Christmas in July" preview bills him as Preston ("The Great McGinty") Sturges. What a riot "McGinty" has been all over the country. Even the aloof New York critics let down their back hair to rave—and just to prove that McGinty Sturges is going to get the best casts Paramount can angle for him, none other than Henry Fonda has been borrowed from Twentieth Century-Fox for the male lead in his next, "The Lady Eve."

PARSONS

The girl in the case is Paulette Goddard, who goes to New York first for the opening of "The Great Dictator," which will be sometime within the next two weeks. It will be interesting to see if Writer-Director Sturges turns out as good pictures with names in his cast as he did with "McGinty," the starless hit. He certainly put Brian Donlevy in the front row—so much so that I heard two producers wager Donlevy would be a star before 1941.

Joan Fontaine has walked out of "Back Street" because she felt she did not want to play the type of woman in Fannie Hurst's novel. Joan is now in New York and Universal is without a leading lady for their most valuable property, the picture which brought fame to Irene Dunne. It is never right to take sides and I suppose each has his own argument, but David Selznick, who brought fame to Joan in "Rebecca," feels that she should trust his judgment enough to make this picture which will have the direction of Robert Stevenson. At Universal they said they had not been notified that Joan had stepped out of the picture and they still have a contract with her and will hold her to it. So it looks to me like fireworks unless she is persuaded by David, who is also in the East, to return to the cast.

Alan Mowbray, head of the British war relief, was very excited today at the promise that the Dionne Quintuplets and Charlie Chaplin would appear on the radio the twenty-ninth of this month in a world-wide broadcast from Canada appealing for help for England. The second time for Charlie and the first for the famous sisters. The Quints will talk from Calendar, Ontario, and people all over the world will hear the voices of these widely publicized little girls. Alan didn't know whether they would talk in French or English. Alec Templeton will cut in from Virginia and every well-known British actor will do his part to help this cause so close to all their hearts.

Lillie Maria Seiber, Marlene Dietrich's daughter, came over to Sylvia Fairbanks' war relief exhibition at the Beverly Hills Hotel and changed the dress on the figure representing her mother. "I don't like that dress for my mother and I don't like her hat. Also, she isn't standing correctly." So Maria dressed the Marlene Dietrich figure, putting a cigarette holder in her hand. I stopped again to chat with Sylvia. Everybody drops in for tea to take a look at the movie figures. The likenesses of Hedy Lamarr and Norma Shearer are extraordinary. Greta Garbo, Marion Davies, Vivien Leigh, Mary Pickford, Joan and Constance Bennett, Bette Davis, Merle Oberon are all there wearing the clothes they wore in some special production.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Lucille Fairbanks and Owen Crump have set October 12 as their wedding day; Deanna Durbin and Vaughn Paul will wed before 1941, and that comes from an authentic source; Peter Arno and Tanya Wildrin, New York model, doing the Hollywood night spots; Jane Wyman and Ronald Reagan have completed the furnishings of their nursery and are now waiting for January when the stork will deliver the Reagan heir.

Pat O'Brien is taking his little daughter to South Bend for the "Rockne" opening; Franchot Tone arrived by plane and checked in at Universal; Prudence Penny, our famous food expert on the Los Angeles Examiner, will play herself in the next "Dr. Christian" picture; Bruce Cabot and Georgia Carroll, a New York model, are keeping the telephone busy; Bing Crosby has bought a race horse and named it "Madame La Zonga" after Jimmie Monaca's song.

The Nat Deveriches have adopted a baby. The Mark Hellingers hosted a party there; Robert Light and his bride, the former Doris Donaldson, are not seeing eye to eye these days; William Keighley, well-known director, has enrolled for the Spanish course at U. S. C. He and Genevieve Tobin go to South America in a few months and he wants to know the language.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Yugoslavia Seen Next for Carving

Balkan Unrest Mounts With New Revisionist Fever

By C. L. Sulzberger
Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Sept. 13.—There is no reason to believe that the pangs southeastern Europe is suffering from the birth of Germany's new order, will be ended when the Hungarian occupation of northern Transylvania is finished this week. If anything, the revisionist fever is mounting.

Until the dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia the traditional motto of the Magyars was "No! No! Never," referring to the acceptance of the Trianon frontiers. The award of Ruthenia was too small a bait to encourage extensive ambitions immediately, but now the clamors are daily increasing and a new war cry of "Everything back" greets the army of occupation as it enters each new Transylvanian village.

It is the undisguised hope of the army and Hungarian officialdom that Arad and Brasov may be recovered before too long a period lapses and at the same time there is a growing interest in the former possession of Banat, which was divided between Rumania and Yugoslavia at Trianon.

Unrest Increasing

Reports of increasing unrest are received from Timisoara, the province's capital, and a few thousand Hungarians have fled to northern Transylvania, bringing their revisionist hopes with them. The Rumanian section of this territroy comprises 18,500 square kilometers, with about 1,000,000 inhabitants. According to the last Rumanian census it included 54 per cent of Rumanians, 24 per cent of Germans, 11 per cent of Hungarians and remainder of mixed Serbians, Jews, etc.

Whether any revisionism directed at securing Banat will formally crystalize at Budapest is not yet certain. This might run counter to German aims since there have been reports that the Reich may seek to create a semiautonomous state there.

Either way the question would affect Yugoslavia as well as what remains of Rumania. There is an increasing belief that this country is slated to be the next subject for the Axis surgery and in that case a general overhauling of the Banat question would certainly be included.

Simultaneously it is learned that one of the highest Axis statesmen recently told a friend that a new crisis in the Greco-Italian relations should be anticipated, and it may be pointed out that this, too, would affect Yugoslavia as she is Albania's neighbor also.

Greeks Aid British

This statesman said Italy considers Greece virtually in the same position as Egypt as she is giving active aid to England even though not in the war. He asserted that 7 of 13 Italian submarines sunk by the British were lost as a result of information given the British admiralty by Greek sources. He also claimed that the flotilla which sank the cruiser Bartolomeo Colleone was harboring in Greek territorial waters.

If Italy means to go ahead with the claims which she voiced unofficially last month it is not unlikely that Yugoslavia will be threatened by a carefully fostered Greater Albania movement. Many observers predict that this phase of the Balkan difficulties may commence soon, now that the Egyptian campaign has begun in earnest, since both are regarded as part and parcel of the eastern Mediterranean question.

Bulgaria can be counted on to remain quiet until South Dobruja is occupied but this will be completed in ten days. Bulgarian sources forecast a raising of claims against Greece soon thereafter.

Incinerator Purchase Urged In Montgomery

The need of a public incinerator in Montgomery County was emphasized at a recent meeting of the allied civic groups of Silver Spring, Md., held at the home of the chairman, Frank J. Felker, at his home in Woodmont.

Dr. C. A. Weigel was appointed cochairman at the meeting. Dr. A. L. Brueckner was appointed secretary, and George H. Shaw a member of the executive committee.

Plans were outlined for obtaining a public incinerator and municipal collection of trash. It was pointed out that under the present plan trash is collected by private contractors who must charge their current rate because of mileage to privately owned dumps. The group went on record stating that all open dumps are "health menaces."

Dr. Brooks to Preach On Topic 'Our Church'

Dr. Seth R. Brooks, minister of the Universalist National Memorial Church, will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Our Church," a topic suggested by Thornton Wilder's play, "Our Town." The National Capital Choir, under the direction of Miss Jessie Masters, will sing, and H. Jerome Graham will be at the organ.

The combined groups of the older young people and the young people's Christian Union will meet at 7 p. m. in the Aisle Chapel for a devotional and song service conducted by Dr. Brooks, after which the groups will assemble in Perkins Hall for refreshments and a program of motion pictures of Yellowstone, Glacier and Bryce National Parks.

Dr. Pierce Returns To All Souls' Pulpit

After a vacation at Chautauqua, N. Y., and in New England, the Rev. Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, minister of All Souls' Unitarian Church, will return to his pulpit tomorrow and preach on "Religion: A Load or a Lift?"

The church school will resume its sessions on Sunday, September 22. A meeting of the teachers and officers is scheduled for Friday evening. The Evening Red Cross Sewing Group will meet at the home of Mrs. Alfred Montzka Tuesday evening. The apron committee will resume its weekly meetings on Thursday.

A husband volunteered here and there and several sons, of college and high school age, contributed some of their vacation time. Among them were Mrs. Lorenz's son, Julian (standing); Mrs. Francis Walters (right) and Hugh Duncan, son of a league member

Bible Institutes Merge; Will Open Classes Monday

The Washington Bible Institute and the Bible Institute of Washington have merged, and will open fall classes on Monday at 7 p. m. under the name of the Washington Bible Institute, at 1316 Vermont avenue northwest.

Glenn W. Wagner, recent graduate of the Dallas (Tex.) Theological Seminary, and who during the summer has been conducting a tent revival here under the auspices of the Laymen's Evangelistic Association, has been appointed president.

Classes will be held on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 1316 Vermont avenue northwest, the institute's offices will be located at 1509 Rhode Island avenue northwest.

Twelve men comprise the faculty of the institute and the following courses are given: Bible Doctrine I, Romans and Galatians, Greek I, New Testament I, Dispensations, Greek II, Old Testament I, Gospel by John and Acts, Bible Introduction, Revelation, Personal Evangelism, Christian Evidences, Missions, Outline of Prophecy, Church History II, Homiletics.

Diplomas and certificates are offered for courses completed in the institute. The institute is prepared to organize Bible classes where desired in Washington and outlying territories.

British Seek Big Argentine Trade Credit

U. S. Cash-and-Carry Policy Blamed; Need Loan for Food Buying

Copyright by New York Times

Buenos Aires, Sept. 12.—Great Britain is negotiating with Argentina for a credit which may reach £40,000,000 sterling to facilitate purchases of meats, cereals and other products during the second year of the war.

Although no official announcement has yet been made, it is reported in well-informed financial circles that the British government has requested a credit of not less than £5,000,000 and not more than £40,000,000 and that details are being studied by Finance Minister Federico Pinedo, of the Permanent Inter-Departmental Commission for the study of economic questions.

Blames "Cash-Carry"

The British have explained that credit is made necessary by the United States "cash and carry" policy which requires the British government to pay cash in gold for war supplies purchased from the United States, making it impossible for Britain to comply with the agreement that Argentina's blocked balances in London be converted into gold for remittance after the war.

Argentina already has a large balance of blocked funds in England as a result of the agreement signed October 25, 1939, in which it was agreed that sterling arising from British purchases of Argentine products should be blocked. The agreement was originally for three months, but it has been renewed at the expiration of each three-month period. The agreement provided that whenever Argentina's credit balance exceeded 1,000,000 pesos, this sum should be converted into gold and held for Argentina's account.

Since huge sums of gold which formerly could have been earmarked for Argentina under this arrangement are now required for war purchases in New York, Britain has proposed to pay off any balance due Argentina by returning Argentina's own bonds. There is now approximately £46,000,000 of these bonds in the hands of British investors.

Credit Helped Greatly

During the last war Argentina opened a credit of 100,000,000 gold pesos under wich Great Britain and France purchased meats, cereals and other products. At the exchange rate at that time this was equivalent to approximately £20,000,000 sterling, or about half the sum now sought. This previous credit helped greatly to maintain the normal development of Argentina's basic agricultural and livestock activities, which then, as now, were threatened by a crisis as a result of the loss of European markets.

It is admitted in well informed financial cirlces that the proposed credit would put a heavy financial burden on the Argentine government. The government has just committed itself to pay 300,000,000 pesos for the purchase of the entire maize crop, which is not salable in world markets, at a price to cover the farmers' cost of production.

Bishop Wins Church Approval Of Part in Parachute Wedding

Pleading Cause of Indigent Young Lovers, He Wins Followers to His Side Who Had Demanded He Be Unfrocked

By the United Press

Cleveland, Tenn., Sept. 13.—Bishop Homer A. Tomlinson, of New York, The Church of God, stood before thousands of his brethren and pleaded the cause of young love in explanation of his having performed a "parachute wedding" at the New York World's Fair last month.

The bishop so well expounded the plight of indigent young lovers—those who find their efforts to get married thwarted by a lack of money—that it appeared his church would not discipline him for performing the ceremony while he and the bride and bridegroom rode high in parachutes at a concession in the fair's amusement section.

"The bridegroom told me, and in this was supported by the bride, that they had planned a secret wedding, but had been thwarted," Tomlinson told a congregation of 10,000 members of The Church of God who gathered in their hall here for an annual convention.

"The resourceful young bridegroom then went to the other extreme, and proposed the parachute wedding to the World's Fair. This was not, then, any stunt at all for either of the pair, or myself, but a young Lochinvar come out of the Bronx who did several things that I consider notable.

"First of all he got a brave and lovely bride . . .

"Unknowingly and unwittingly he helped make known to the world the rising tide of The Church of God, and God bless him . . . A Park avenue glamour girl wedding attracts more attention than this, a wedding this young couple could not afford."

Before the bishop made his explanation, many of the church had thought he lowered the dignity of his position by performing the "parachute wedding." Some had wanted the bishop unfrocked.

Wearing a pin-striped, blue serge suit, Tomlinson, a vigorous, wiry, middle-aged brunet, made the explanation directly to his father—Bishop A. J. Tomlinson, of Cleveland, Tenn., overseer of the church—in the presence of the annual assembly.

The overseer indicated the incident was closed with his son's explanation. The aged man quoted Daniel 11:32—

New City Gas Process Speeds Metal Making

Technique Revealed At Convention Of U. S. Chemists

By Howard W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Editor

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 13.—Discovery of new, fast, cheaper methods of making metals for land, sea and air fighters by use of the common "city gas" of the housewife's cookstove was reported to the American Chemical Society here yesterday.

For this war purpose the gas is not burned. It is used literally as atmosphere. It takes the place of air in the huge ovens making steel, brass and bronzes for armor, guns, planes and ships.

These hobgoblin atmospheres are rich in hydrocarbons. Carbon monoxide, hydrogen, ethane, methane and other hydrocarbons both protect the forming metal and combine with it in small amounts to add special strength, bright finish or good wearing quality.

Several phases of this new American development were described at a symposium. Many of the details came from papers by W. A. Darrah, of the Continental Industrial Engineers, Chicago; C. G. Segler, American Gas Association, New York, and C. R. Cline, American Gas testing laboratories, Cleveland.

City gases are produced from four sources, so that the exact mixture of hydrocarbons is likely to be different in each big center.

In the World War, the speakers said, the moving, gas-fired oven solved a critical munitions making problem.

"Today," it was added, "a second opportunity looms. The special atmospheres are ready to speed up production by eliminating time-consuming, inefficient steps required in the past to produce the quality needed for military use."

Furthermore, the hobgoblin atmospheres are also coming into use for making plastics and resins, which are foreseen as useful for wartime mass production. Strangely enough with these materials the city gases are used to prevent fire.

The Regatta Queen Chooses—

Marcy Morgan, Queen of the Regatta which starts today, is not only slim, blonde and piquant, but has a 100 per cent District background. She is a descendant of Col. Thomas Johnson, one of the District's first Commissioners appointed by George Washington, and a great-granddaughter of Thomas P. Morgan, early District Commissioner. Besides that, she's an agreeable fashion model, as her picture above indicates. She poses in an appropriate gown for the many festivities which end when she receives her crown September 28. It's a debutante dress of white net with silver bands circling the bodice and the graceful shawl

High, Firm Bust Now A Beauty Must

Curved Figure Has Displaced Boyish Form

By Ida Jean Kain

IT has taken 20 years but we have come a long way from the boyish form. The naturally curved figure is definitely the fashion and women everywhere are interested in the measures that will improve the contour of the bust. Besides, with a firm, high bust, the waist looks slimmer!

Normally, the bust should be about five-ninth or a little more than half the distance from the middle of the shoulder line to the waistline. This position is the most youthful. The very heavy bust, however, should be somewhat lower.

The factors which influence position and size are weight, vitality and muscle tone. The abnormally large bust is usually due to excessive deposits of fatty tissue. Excessive weight places a strain on the delicate tissues and the ligaments are stretched. This explains the increased tendency to sagging.

Loss of Weight Reduces Bust

To reduce the size of the bust, the weight must be reduced. While these tissues are particularly susceptible to fatty deposit, this area is one of the first portions of the figure to show a weight loss.

As the weight is reduced, muscles and skin must be toned through exercises so that the contour will be improved. The breasts are glands but they are attached to and supported by muscles. Therefore, muscle tone is an important factor in contour.

The too thin girl often has a poorly developed bust with a sagging contour. She needs a good diet to increase weight and to build up vitality. And in addition she must exercise to improve skin and muscle tone. Exercise for this purpose markedly improves the posture.

Many women seem to believe that growing older or having a family is to blame for the loss of a youthful figure, but we know a woman of 50—with a grown family—who has as lovely proportions as any girl of 20. She has been doing special exercises for the past 20 years and credits them with her perfect figure. Here is one of her favorites:

Exercises For Developing Breasts

Hold the arms straight out at the sides, shoulder level, then bend the elbows so that the hands are in front of the chest, palms down. Now, jerk the shoulders backward vigorously. The elbows move briskly back, but the actual work is done with the shoulders. Continue jerking the shoulders for 12 counts, gradually increasing to 25. This exercise is marvelously effective in maintaining the high position of the bust. It is also valuable in straightening rounded shoulders.

The back stroke, as used in swimming, can well be added to your exercise program. Fling alternate arms backward in wide, sweeping strokes. This exercise will help to normalize the position of a sagging bust.

Fortunately the muscles of the arms, chest and shoulders are correlated in action and all arm exercises are valuable in perfecting the bust contour.

There are no creams which will develop the bust for nourishment cannot be absorbed through the skin. The astringents which are supposed to firm the tissues do little more than help to tone the skin. Cold water has the same effect.

A Woman's Washington

By Jean Brownell

Avoid Bare Knees, Is Fashion Adviser's Warning to Coeds

A COLLEGE GIRLS' wardrobe is a highly individual proposition, believes Helene Warren, director of one of Washington's most successful department-store college shops. "Her choice of clothes," said Miss Warren, "should be governed by her choice of school—whether it is coeducational or just for women; whether its location is the country or a city; whether she plans to find recreation in sports or in dancing. As an example: We advise girls going to coed schools not to buy the new short skirts and knee-length socks; men don't like the sight of bare knees."

To make sure each customer gets the right wardrobe, Miss Warren and her three college-graduate assistants ask the girls to fill out cards which would do justice to a registrar's file. Blanks are provided for everything from "major course" to "personality." Next step is to go over the girl's present wardrobe, retaining as much of it as possible, before making new purchases.

Miss Warren awards Washington girls an A in clothes sense. "They know more about clothes, spend more conservatively and use better judgment in assembling a well-harmonized wardrobe than do their mothers," she finds. The girls return the compliment by going to her for advice in planning their courses and, later, their careers. One "alumna" of the shop wrote from Ohio asking her to select a wedding dress, trousseau and living-room draperies.

Driving home alone from the recent convention of the American Psychological Association in State College, Pa., a local delegate gave a lift to two middle-aged women who were walking to the next town. He is young for his Ph.D. and associate professorship, and looks younger than he is. Small wonder, then, that the women took him for a mere college lad and talked down to him all the way. When they reached town, one of them said to him archly, "Goodbye, little fellow; we'll dance at your wedding!"

Washington Girls Praised for Clothes Sense

CORRESPONDENCE—A lady who read the piece about the difficulty of dusting the State Department library's gold-leaf trim writes that it is possible to clean the leaf after all. "I have an old painting in a gold-leaf frame, made in 1640 and still bright and lovely," she says. "Every month it is cleaned with a soft artist's brush dipped in a solution of bicarbonate of soda and water. Pat dry with Canton flannel dust cloth." State Department charwomen no doubt will be grateful for this solution to their problem.

Kitchen Plan Should Invite Hospitality

Modern Entertaining By Youth Shows Innformal Trend

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

THE MOST swish and sophisticated parties these days aren't considered real hits unless they end in the kitchen with scrambled eggs. While many a solemn businessman is a gourmet in his off hours with a flare for sociable cooking, and of course, to the high school crowd fudge and welsh rarebit are as important a part of growing up as algebra and Latin verbs.

Plenty of Chairs

All such festivities put quite a strain on the kitchen, unless it has been planned with its social status in mind. The main lack in most kitchens are places to sit, and standing around, even for fun, gets pretty tiresome. So if you plan on doing much entertaining in the kitchen, consider ways of seating the bunch without cluttering the place up with furniture in the meantime. Folding bridge chairs will do, but there's nothing very romantic about that solution. Folding camp stools have more glamor if less comfort. But built-in wall benches, upholstered in leather, are festive, practical, hospitable to sit on. With a table on wheels to roll up to these benches for serving, this can be a very useful corner for all the time. Less expensive are long trestle benches that set against the wall or slide under a trestle table which is a very sociable idea itself). On the tricky side are built-in seats that flip out of the wall when needed; otherwise they're entirel yout of the way.

Hospitable Stove

The next most important thing for kitchen hospitality is the stove—it wants to be plenty big because there are usually several culinary experts on hand at kitchen parties. The best idea we've encountered along this line is a new electric range with a top 60 inches long, which means six burners, three on each side, with a working space in the middle. Then there are two ovens, with a warming oven in the center and special brailing compartments. Lights, clock control and all the gadgets are included. A big refrigerator is another "must"—most of us buy a smaller model than we ought to have, so we should be grateful for trade-in practices.

The final grand gesture in the way of kitchen elegance is the electric sink which includes a dishwasher and a garbage-disposal unit. And don't let anybody talk down the electric dishwasher—it's wonderful! With a complete electric sink, the last frontier of unpleasantness is banished from the kitchen and it becomes a room truly worthy of your best parties.

To Tip or Not to Tip

MY, MY, MABEL! You must be trying to put on airs or else you're terribly confused. Where in the world did you get the idea of tipping the maid for serving you dinner in a private home? This certainly isn't an American custom. Though it is the practice in many European households (not English) to tip servants when you call or dine.

For the most part, you can forget about tipping entirely when you dine in the average American household with friends or acquaintances. You do not tip at all unless you are there for a week-end or longer. And even then in the average household of moderate means you do not tip at all. Now if you run the maid's legs off pressing your clothes or doing errands for you all the time, you certainly should give her an ample tip.

If you are week-ending with somebody like the Astorbilts or any of the other very rich, you would tip only the servants who serve you. Then you would tip in proportion to the service rendered and your own means. If you have your maid with you, you should give her $2 or $3 to give the cook and $1 for the maid, who looks out for her in the kitchen.

In many homes of the rich, tipping is abolished entirely. (Some servants will not accept them.) And in the average American home the tipping system has never been started.

Fruit Loaf Good For Sandwiches

This fruit loaf makes grand sandwiches. It will keep several days in the bread box. It requires only soft butter for filling, but nobody would refuse it if you mixed some white cream cheese in with the butter. Simmer 10 minutes, stirring frequently, 1 cup chopped dates 2/3 cup chopped raisins, 1 2/3 cups water and 2 tablespons fat. Cool and mix in 1 cup light brown sugar, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3½ cups flour and 1½ teaspoons soda. Include 2/3 cup broken nuts for extra nutriment, but they are really not needed for flavor. Pour the mixture into a loaf pan lined with waxed paper. Let stand 10 minutes and bake an hour in a moderate oven—about 350 degrees.

Bureau of Home Economics Gives Pickling Pointers

SCIENCE is now explaining the hows and whys of making pickles. The Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, gives the following suggestions about the ingredients in home pickling.

First, choose fresh, high quality fruits and vegetables. If used whole, fruits and vegetables should be of uniform size so the pickling liquid will season them evenly. Spices should be of the best quality. Those left from last year will not have the full flavor unless they have been kept in airtight containers. Good quality vinegar is best; and cider vinegar has the most flavor. For most pickles, granulated sugar is better than brown. Use common salt in making a salt brine.

Pickled peaches, pears and crabapples belong in a category of their own. They are made in much the same way as preserves, except that the sirup is sweet-sour. Here is a recipe for pickled pears or crabapples that has been worked out in the Federal Bureau of Home Economics.

Pickled Pears or Crabapples

8 pounds prepared fruit
4 pounds sugar
1 quart vinegar
1 pint water
10 two-inch pieces stick cinnamon
2 tablespoons whole cloves
2 tablespoons whole allspice
More spice, if desired

Seckel pears. Wash pears, leave on stems and scrape off blossom ends. Boil pears for 10 minutes in water to cover, and pour off the water. Prick skins of pears. Boil for 5 minutes the vinegar, water, sugar and spices tied loosely in cheesecloth. Add pears and boil 10 minutes or until tender. Allow fruit to stand in sirup overnight. Drain, remove spice bag and pack pears in sterilized jars. Bring sirup to boiling, pour over fruit, seal and store in a cool place.

Kieffer pears. Wash pears, pare, cut in half or quarters, and remove hard centers and cores. Boil pears for 10 minutes in water to cover. Use 1 pint of this water to dilute the vinegar for the sirup. Finish in same way as Seckel pears.

District Debutantes, Beaux Frolic As June Noble Makes Bow in Conn.

Subdeb Joan Dodd, Zeva Fish Among Those Present; Affair an Elaborate One; Debutante to Enter College This Fall

DEBUTANTES, out of the local news since the many festivities in their honor early in the summer, had a reunion last evening in Greenwich, Conn. Several from Washington gathered there to attend the supper dance given by Edward John Noble, former Undersecretary of Commerce, and Mrs. Noble to introduce their daughter, Miss June Noble.

Among the guests was Miss Joan Dodd, of Washington, daughter of Mrs. Jouett Shouse. Miss Dodd will make her debut this winter, probably at a party during the Christmas holidays. Originally she had planned to come out later, but so many of her friends are making their bows this year that it seemed a logical time. Mr. and Mrs. Shouse are still at Wolf Trap Farm, their Virginia place, and their length of stay there depends on the weather. However, both plan to open their home in Georgetown by October 15 at the latest.

Another attractive Washington guest at the Noble party was Miss Zeva Fish, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Hamilton Fish. Zeva has had a busy summer, with a stay at a Western ranch, a vacation at Narragansett, and a trip to Newport. She went to the Rhode Island resort for Tennis Week as the guest of the Robert Goelets. Mrs. Fish, who spent a month at Narragansett, is now at their home in Garrison, N. Y., but expects to return here next week after putting her young son, Hamilton, jr., in Kent School.

Though Mr. Noble recently resigned from the "Little Cabinet" to return to business, his popular daughter is expected to make frequent trips back to Washington. She was to have come out here this winter, but doubtless will not have a party in the Capital now. However, she's sure to be asked down for a lot of the debutante festivities.

Miss Noble returned just in time for her dance from Sheridan, Wyo., where she summered on a ranch. She will enter Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, N. Y., this fall.

For her party, one of the most elaborate of the year, the deb chose a gown of candlelight tulle with a bodice of gold lame touched with mauve pink and a band of the lame on the skirt. She carried pale orchids.

Elaborate Program Entertains Guests

Mrs. Noble, who received with her daughter, wore blue lace run with silver thread and carried a mauve pink bouquet. She and her daughter stood in front of the large living room fireplace, which was banked with mauve pink flowers and delphinium against a cascade of green smilax. Trellises on either side of the receiving line were hung with flowers and three large urns of blossoms further carried out the pink-blue tones.

In the garden a spacious pavilion had been erected just for the party. It had a ceiling of azure taffeta from which hung clusters of iridescent balloons. Around the edge of the pavilion were small tables, where guests shared a buffet supper. The trees and shrubs looked glamorous in indirect lighting, and over the low hedge framing the pavilion could be seen the lake on which floated a gondola. Singing gondoliers added to the color of the scene.

For the guests' amusement there were Hildegarde, famous chanteuse; Henry Dick, tap dancer, to say nothing of a pantomime artist, handwriting expert, fortune teller, caricature artist and even a tintype photographer.

Miss Beth Kean In House Party

Pretty Beth Kean, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Robert Kean, of New Jersey, was among the guests. Others staying with Miss Noble for the party were Stephen Elkins, of Washington; the Misses Hilah White and Betty Burgess, of Charlottesville, Va.; Nancy Eliot, of Boston; Did Sharples, of Haverford, Pa.; Virginia Solley, of Washington; Morgan Hebard, of Chestnut Hill, Pa.; Peter Garvan, of Roslyn, Long Island; Edward Hicks, of Winnetka, Ill.; Donald Brown, of Hartford, and John Deans, of Buffalo. Miss Noble and all her house guests were honored at a dinner given before the dance by the deb's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Noble, of Greenwich.

Another out-of-town debut of interest to Capital society will be that tonight of Miss Elizabeth Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burdette Shields Wright, of Buffalo, N. Y. Miss Wright is well known to members of the younger set here, as she is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Campbell, of Washington.

Pearl Buck To Give Scroll To Dr. Hu-Shih

Pearl Buck, famous novelist, who lived most of her early life in China, will come to Washington the end of the month to present .. tribute to the Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Hu-Shih. This is an enormous scroll filled with signatures of contributors to the Women's Committee, Tribute to China, which was organized to send medical aid to that war-torn country.

The ceremony will take place Thursday, September 26, in the embassy. A small group of Washington officials will be invited to witness it, and it is reported that Mrs. Roosevelt herself will head the guests.

Dr. Hu will leave next week to attend the bicentennial celebration of the University of Pennsylvania. He will make an address there on Thursday and on Saturday will receive another honorary degree to add to his already impressive collection.

Patricia Prochnik To Croon With Davis Orchestra

The chance most 1940 debs long for—an opportunity to sing with a major orchestra—has come Miss Patricia Prochnik's way. Either this evening or Monday night, exactly which hasn't yet been settled, she will croon for Meyer Davis at a big debutante dance in Philadelphia.

It happened this way: Last week, at Miss Virginia Watkin's coming out party at the North Wales Club, Warrenton, Miss Prochnik sang a few numbers with the orchestra. Meyer Davis was there in person and immediately asked her if she wouldn't sing with him. She said she feared she wasn't good enough, but he insisted on offering her a trial appearance.

Miss Prochnik, who was a deb last winter, has been singing informally with the orchestra at local parties for some time now. Very pretty, with a pleasing personality, she should be a big hit with Mr. Davis' outfit.

Miss Prochnik was among the members of the Washington set who motored over to Baltimore last night for Miss Peggy Morgan's debut dance at the country club there.

Herberts Are Hosts To Family Party

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Herbert, jr., and Mrs. A. Gronna Cowing are entertaining a family house party in their home on Fulton street.

Judge and Mrs. Arthur J. Gronna, of Williston, N. Dak., are visiting them, also Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Lewis and their daughter, Miss Eleanor Lewis, and their son, A. Kingsley Lewis, of Grand Forks, N. Dak.

Judge Gronna and Mrs. Lewis are brother and sister of Mrs. Cowing and Mrs. Herbert.

MRS. EDWIN BARNES LAWLESS

Alice Leake and Fred Lawless Wed at Calvary Baptist Church

Reception at Burrell Hall Follows Ceremony; Couple to Make Their Home In the Great Falls Road, Langley, Va.

The wedding of Miss Alice King Leake, doughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Payton Leake, of 2733 Ontario road, to Fred Sliter Lawless, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Barnes Lawless, of this city, took place at 8 o'clock last night at the Calvary Baptist Church. The Rev. William S. Abernethy officiated in a setting of palms and white flowers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of corded lace with a fitted bodice and full net skirt. Her veil fell from a coronet of braided net and she carried white roses and valley lilies.

Miss Emy Lou Worrilow, maid of honor, was dressed like the bride in delphinium blue lace and net. She wore a coronet of flowers in her hair and carried a nosegay to match. The bridesmaids, the Misses Hester Root and Ida Jeanne Dagger, wore shell pink with similar coronets and bouquets.

Edwin Barnes Lawless, jr., was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Robert L. Sammons, William N. Petterson, Fernand Landry and Hillman Harris.

A reception at Burrell Hall followed the ceremony. Mrs. Leake was attired in dusty rose lace and net with a corsage of gardenias, and Mrs. Lawless, sr., wore deep purple crepe with a cluster of orchids.

As her going-away costume, the bride chose a three-piece tweed suit of a light blue and dark-brown mixture and a corsage of orchids. The couple will live in the Great Falls road, Langley, Va.

Louise McNutt Gives Luncheon For Carolyn George

Miss Louise McNutt, daughter of Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, was hostess yesterday at a small luncheon in honor of Miss Carolyn George at the McNutts' Shoreham apartment.

Miss George, who recently came here from San Antonio, Tex., is the step-daughter of Capt. Joseph Mitchell, of the Selective Service Board. She will attend George Washington University this year.

Other guests were Miss Louise Ely, Miss Frances Cox, Miss Joan Sayers and Miss Patricia Grady.

Official and Residential

The Polish Ambassador, Count Potocki, entertained informally at luncheon yesterday for Lady Abingdon. She returned to New York yesterday after a brief stay at the British Embassy.

Senator Imai, of Tokyo, Japan, will arrive in Washington today from New York and will be at the Carlton.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Gosnell have taken an apartment at the Wardman Park while their new home is under construction. Their two sons, Clarence, jr., and John, will resume their studies at the Cathedral School on Wednesday.

Maj. and Mrs. Bradford W. Kunz, of Fort Bragg, N. C., are at the Wardman Park. Also stopping there are Capt. and Mrs. J. W. Gates, of Los Gates, Calif., and Col. and Mrs. H. F. Wanvig, of New York.

Mrs. Jack Stearns Gray and her son, Newcombe Gray, of Chevy Chase, Md., have returned from a trip to the World's Fair and a stay at Ocean City, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Milford have moved here from San Francisco and are at the Broadmoor. Mrs. Milford is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Meyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Massey have as their guest at the Wardman Park their granddaughter, Miss Betty Hinemon, daughter of Col. and Mrs. John H. Hinemon, jr., of Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. Leah Loeb will return tomorrow after a stay of five months at Berkeley Springs, W. Va., and Atlantic City.

Miss Marian Chase will be the hostess at a tea Monday afternoon from 4 to 7 at the Sixteenth street studio of the Marian Chase School of the Dance. Her pupils and their parents will be on hand to celebrate the opening of the school year.

Debs No Longer Butterflies, Go In for Learning

Many Sandwiching Debuts Between Business Courses

By Elizabeth Henney

Whether the war abroad has any bearing on the subject or whether the debutante set is going practical under its own steam, the fact remains that current capital belles are concerned with more important matters than plans for the next party.

Many of the pretty young things are wedging a debut whirl between business and home economics courses. One of the outstanding misses to sign up for the latter subject is Miss Elizabeth Stuart-Richardson, who will take the new homemaking and home economics course offered this year by Holton Arms.

Now Moving to Couzens Home

This serious side of her life will be lightened from time to time by a party here and there, and a quiet debut later in the fall. She is the daughter of Maj. R. M. Stuart-Richardson and Mrs. Stuart-Richardson, of London, England. For the past two years they have ben making their home in the United States, living quietly on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

Last June, Maj. Stuart-Richardson was called to assist with special work at the British Embassy and shortly afterward the family came to town, first taking Mrs. Henry Flather's house at 3306 O street. Now they are in the throes of moving into the home they have leased for the winter at 2850 Woodland drive, the residence of the late Senator Couzens.

Mrs. Stuart-Richardson has planned to present her daughter to society on the day after Thanksgiving, if the date of that holiday is ever finally determined, and the party probably will be a tea-dance.

Enjoying Whirl In Baltimore

At the moment, Miss Stuart-Richardson is taking in debutante festivities in Baltimore, where she is the house guest of Mrs. W. R. Bushnell. Accompanied by Miss Peggy Tuckerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Miss Stuart-Richardson left Washington a couple of days ago for Baltimore, where they attended parties on Thursday evening and last night. Miss Tuckerman will return home today, but Miss Stuart-Richardson will not be back in town until Tuesday.

Another deb who will specialize in home economics is Miss Muriel Maddox, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Charles Hamilton Maddox, of 2446 Belmont road. Her presentation party was one of the highlights of this last summer season at Newport, and this fall she will settle down in New York and concentrate on the study of dramatics and the domestic arts.

Peggy Tuckerman will be off to Bryn Mawr soon, and Lucy Marbury, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William B. Marbury will leave shortly for Antioch College. Miss Barbara Beale, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lewis Beale, will be off shortly to Smith College, and so the list goes.

Envoy to Mark Mexico's Birth

The Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera will entertain at an informal reception tomorrow night in celebration of the 130th anniversary of the independence of Mexico. The party will take place at the Mexican Embassy at 9:30 o'clock.

At midnight tomorrow, the Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera will leave for New York where a number of Mexican independence celebrations are scheduled for Monday.

One of the outstanding fetes in this connection will include a ceremony at the Court of Peace at the New York World's Fair. At 7 o'clock the Ambassador will speak at the Pan-American Pavilion, and the program will be broadcast to Central and South America. Later, there will be a large anniversary dinner and ball, at which the Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera will be honor guests.

Charlene Graddick, To Be Wed Today, Honored at Dinner

Miss Charlene Graddick, whose marriage to Richard Duvall will take place today, was honored at a dinner given last night by the Misses Tille Graddick and Lois Dasher, members of the wedding party. The dinner followed the wedding rehearsal, and took place at the Shoreham.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Graddick, the bride's parents, and Mr. Duvall were in the party. Other guests included Miss Martha Totty, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sammons, Miss Babbette Garvey, Miss Sara Jane Reese, Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. North, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Zane, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Reese, Miss Frances Brewster Miss Ruth Sherier, Steadman Prescott, jr., Bucy Prescott, Alec Prescott, Charles Abert, Woolvin Patten, Al Dieffenbach and William Cox.

Dinner at Australian Legation Honors Departing Keith Officer

Counselor Is to Leave Soon for Tokyo; Diplomats Attend Gay, Informal Party With Minister and Mrs. Casey as Hosts

Complimenting Keith Officer, retiring Australian Counselor, who will leave this month for his new post in Tokyo, the Australian Minister and Mrs. Richard Casey entertained at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon.

From 5 to 7 o'clock, a number of Mr. Officer's friends dropped in to the fete, which was one of those galy informal get-togethers that are all too rare in Washington's diplomatic circles. The spacious drawing room of the Australian Legation, 3117 Woodland drive, was the scene of the party, at which guests arrived early and stayed as long as possible.

Huge bouquets of Easter lilies, brightly colored gladioli and red roses added a festive note to the setting. Receiving informally, Mrs. Casey wore a smart black frock, cut on simple lines with softly draped sleeves, and a small matching hat set off with a cluster of field flowers on the front.

Many Diplomats Attend Party

By special request of Mr. Officer, those in the company were friends to whom he wished to say good-bye before leaving Washington. A group of about 60 made up the guest list.

Among those seen in the crowd were the Minister of Sweden and Mme. Wollmar Bostrom, Mme. Martins, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador; the Peruvian Ambassador Don Manuel Freyre y Santander, who recently returned from a summer at Eaglesmere, Pa.; the Minister of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph William Close and the Canadan Minister Loring Christie.

Still others there included the Hungarian Minister John Pelenyi; Sir Owen and Lady Chalkley, Captain and Mrs. G. C. Pirie, and Angus Malcolm, all of the British Embassy; Ray Atherton, of the State Department, Mrs. Sol Bloom, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss, Miss Pat Jarrett and the Second Secretary of the Australian Legation P. R. Heydon.

Other Dinners Ahead For Departing Guest

Yesterday's party was one of a number planned in honor of Mr. Officer. The British Ambassador feted him at dinner earlier this week. He has been complimented at several cocktail parties, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss have planned a dinner for him.

The Australian Minister and Mrs. Casey will give a farewell dinner for him on September 19. Later that evening he will leave by plane for the West Coast and will sail from there directly to Japan.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

GAYETY in the hunt country has been centering around the young people, who are enjoying a final fling before they return to school and college.

Mrs. Amory Perkins and her son, C. E. Perkins, jr., have been entertaining a house party at Journeys End in Middleburg. Among their guests were the Misses Cynthia Burrage, of Boston; Julianna Clark and Pamela Amory, of Baltimore, the latter Mrs. Perkins' niece, and Tom Hardie, of New Orleans and Baltimore. Mr. Perkins will return to V. P. I., Blacksburg, Va., to continue his courses there.

Miss Heimerle Becomes Bride On Friday 13th

Defies Superstition To Be the Wife Of H. C. Sumner

Evidently not superstitious are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Catlin Sumner, for they chose yesterday, Friday, the 13th, as the date of their marriage.

The bride is the former Miss Theodore Frances Heimerle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis William Heimerle, of Kingston, N. Y., and Mr. Sumner is the son of Mrs. Sarah E. Sumner, of Williamsburg, Va.

The couple was wed at 5 o'clock in St. Ann's Church, the Rev. Henry D. Collins officiated. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a Lelong model of ivory satin made with a fitted basque, sweetheart neckline, long sleeves and full skirt and circular train. Her veil of Chantilly lace, arranged mantilla style, fell from a lace halo.

Marie Maloney Is Maid of Honor

Miss Marie Maloney, the maid of honor, was attired in blue taffeta made on bouffant lines. She wore a Juliet cap of the same material and carried Johanna Hill roses and delphinum.

Egbert F. Tingley was best man and the ushers were Norman Hagen and George Perry.

To Make Home In Washington

After a wedding trip through the South, the couple will live in Washington. When she left for her honeymoon, Mrs. Sumner wore a Como blue suit with saddle brown accessories, accented with a corsage of brown orchids.

The bride attended American University and belongs to Alpha Phi. Mr. Sumner studied at the University of Maryland and is a member of Phi Delta Theta.

Supper Honors Miss Mitchell And Her Fiance

Miss Maxine Mitchell, of Silver Spring, and her fiance, Robert Haven Willey, whose marriage will take place at the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints this afternoon, were the guests of honor at a buffet supper given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. William Haven Willey, parents of the bridegroom-elect.

The party, which followed the rehearsal, included the members of the wedding party and Miss Mitchell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester H. Mitchell. Mr. Mitchell, who is an adviser for the United States Bureau of Reclamation, has just returned from a tour of the West.

Parents to Give Party For Mrs. Lathrom

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith will give a birthday party this evening, at the Fairfax Country Club in honor of their daughter, Mrs. Donald Lathrom, who is leaving shortly for New York to join her husband. He is connected with the Democratic National Committee.

Among the guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Doderidge, Mme. Orlicz-Dreszer, Dr. Vladimir Ryber, and Judge and Mrs. Walter Maloney.

Under Pressure, Man Finally Tells Parents He Has Been Wed for Two Years to Girl of Different Faith; Their Icy Reaction Unnerves Him; Girl Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been in Washington nearly six years, having come from a small town in the West. I have a good, secure position here. Since the age of 18, I have fallen in love (or what appeared to be love) several times. I seriously considered marriage with two or three young men, but fortunately the intention wore off in time.

About three years ago, I met a young man who seemed to be everything the others were not. We fell deeply in love and after six months' courtship, were married. He is now 30 and I am 26. It wasn't a "marry in haste" affair. We had planned it for a month and I had a wedding gown and an attendant. It was a small church ceremony. But his parents were not informed.

We had agreed to keep it quiet because they, like my husband, were of a different religious faith. We knew they would be opposed to our marriage. It was my husband's plan. He believed that after they knew me (as his wife) they would learn to like me. My close friends and family knew about and approved of the marriage. Everyone likes my husband immensely and I felt I was very fortunate to be his wife.

Our immediate living arrangement was this: He continued at home with his family and I remained in an apartment I had been sharing with other girls, where I had my own room. He works several nights a week, which gives me other things to do, and we see each other three or four nights a week, when we go out a great deal and see many mutual friends. He has been most generous with me, giving me everything I want, taking me all the nice places, and spoiling me in general by raising my mode of living beyond my salary means and getting me accustomed to the "better things of life."

Two years have passed and there is no change in the arrangement. In the meantime, there was an illness and death in his family, which made it seem inadvisable to deal any more shocking blows in that direction for a while. On the other hand, my family, having long since announced the marriage back home, was growing more and more impatient for a clarification of our position. So, just recently, under pressure, my husband told his family of the marriage. His mother's reaction (she has scarcely spoken to him since) has upset him terribly. She says she will never accept me, although she has never seen me.

In the first throes of our dilemma, he suggested that I go away somewhere and make new friends and new contacts and see if I can't forget him. He says his family never will let us be happy; that he can't be happy if there isn't perfect accord between us, and therefore couldn't make me happy. He insists I deserve something better than what is in store for me in these circumstances. We are deeply in love with each other, and the mere suggestion of parting brings tears from both of us; desperate tears, because we honestly feel that we are "right" for each and we can't imagine a life apart.

What shall I do? Shall I forget pride and continue to be kicked around until such time as he can make a place for me in his life? Or shall I leave here, bag and baggage? (I took our marriage vows seriously, but I can't set up housekeeping by myself—or can I?) Leaving should settle the issue one way or the other. Either he would bring me back, post-haste, or he would let me go, thinking it was best for me. And that would settle it, although it would break my heart completely. I know from past experience tha time heals heartbreak, but I doubt that time would heal this wound. It has gone too deep.

Incidentally, my husband is in business with his family and does very well. So there would be no such thing as "living our own lives" apart from his family, as they are in constant contact. And he says he can't come to live with me until there is some sort of reconciliation between himself and his mother.

If I should go away, there would be no financial want. He would be most generous. Also, I have contacts in other cities and feel I could get another job in a short time. There is much more to say, but these are the main facts. Please advise me in the very near future, as I feel I must take immediate action. BEWILDERED.

If Man's a Coward The Union Is Doomed

DEAR BEWILDERED: For all his business acumen, fine qualities and prepossessing personality, your husband is a pretty poor creature. I suppose "immature" (in the psychological sense), is the word for him. That he should have reached marriageable age without the courage to act a man's part is perhaps not his fault, since training in unquestioning filial obedience to parental authority is a characteristic of the religious tradition which cradled him.

However, once he had reached a crossroads in his affairs, where he must make a choice between claiming a free man's way of life, or remaining a slave to parental bias, he should have begun to develop that courage. His first mistake, of course, was in concealing the marriage from his family;—a mistake in which you shared, by consenting to it, even though it was not your suggestion.

His attitude should have been—and should be today—"come hell or high water, this is the woman I choose for my wife. My family may take her, or leave her, but I mean to have her, if she's willing to gamble on me. If my parents don't approve, I am sorry. But this is my life and I am obliged to lead it in accordance with the dictates of my own intelligence and my own strongest and finest feelings—which tell me to cleave unto her, even though it means forsaking all others."

When preparing for marriage, he should have been animated by Shakespeare's advice. "To thine own self be true, and it shall follow, as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man." What he has been trying to do is keep everybody happy, to some degree; and no more hopeless assignment was ever attempted by any man. As the old saying goes, "Try to please everybody and you please nobody, which is exactly the predicament in which he finds himself. Everybody concerned is miserable; himself most of all, no doubt.

As I see the situation, courageous action on his part is absolutely indispensable if you are to know any happiness in the marriage. If he wants you, he should be willing, at a minimum, to live openly with you here, apart from his family, meeting his mother's icy disapproval with equally icy disregard, while giving you a compensatory tender and loyal devotion. And if this doesn't give the marriage sufficient insulation against "in-law" interference, he should be willing to go farther and take you away to another city, where he can make a new start in business, at the very bottom of the ladder, if need be.

If he will not face up to the problem in this manner, then I think you should, as you say, leave here, bag and baggage, washing your hands of his craven muddling and the intolerable situation it has created. M. H.

Beauty Secrets

By CAROLYN ABBOTT.

Campaign Coiffures

DEMOCRAT or Republican—It matters not which way you throw your sentiment or vote. For in the beauty world you're on par. Both parties have inspired campaign coiffures for the coming season.

These two new hair styles, one inspired by the G. O. P. elephant and the other by the Democratic donkey, entered the arena last week as the latest fashion fads at the American Fashion Previews held recently in New York City.

The G. O. P. style features "ears" of hair brushed outward at the side while an "elephant trunk" pompadour in the form of a French roll descends from the crown of the head to the forehead. The Democratic version has the hair combed high on the sides and swirled into upstanding ears (just like a donkey's) with the center brushed down smoothly into a turned-under bang on the forehead.

Charles of the Ritz's New York hair stylists designed these new coiffures for those whose political enthusiasms have gone to their heads. Right now these are fads. However, they may develop into a trend as the season advances.

1,000 See Exhibition Of Mercy Endeavors At Walsh Mansion

While this year's Roll Call opens September 23, a score of persons yesterday "jumped the gun", and registered, officials said.

The yellow costumes of the staff assistance corps, the blue and white of the production department members, the pink dresses of health aides, and olive grey uniforms of the motor corps splashed with color the demonstration rooms of two floors of the house where large crowds came and went.

Under the skillful hands of members of the home hygiene department large dolls showed how the well-bred baby should act. Demonstrations were given in care of the sick. Miss Caroline E. Thomson, head of the year-round active branch of the service, was in charge of the demonstrations.

All types of first-aid equipment were shown by the division headed by Robert Duncan. Mrs. M. D. Rosenberg and Mrs. Marion Tribble were in charge of a demonstration of braille work for the blind. Braille name cards were run off for visitors requesting them.

sioners are always given careful consideration," said Mahon, asserting, however, that he was not familiar enough with the laboratory subject to discuss it in detail.

The appropriations bill proviso has been repeatedly eliminated by the Senate, but has always been reinstated by the House. Members of the House have contended that Bureau of Standard tests are more efficient and cheaper.

Cheaper, Whitehurst Holds

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, reported that the District has lost more than $90,000 since the local laboratory was closed in 1933. At the city's plant—erected in 1931 at a cost of $100,000—the tests can be conducted for far less money and with greater speed, Whitehurst declared.

Cost of th ebureau tests has averaged $28,000 a year and Whitehurst contends the job can be done locally for approximately $13,000 annually.

Representative Case (Republican), South Dakota, another member of the appropriations subcommittee, also expressed belief the subject would be reopened next session. Municipal heads said yesterday they were determined to press the matter.

Capt. Whitehurst revealed yesterday that the cost of material examinations at the Bureau of Standards prohibits the District from making as many tests as should be made each year.

Fewer Tests Made

"For instance," he said, "when we receive two or three carloads of building materials under contract, we can afford to send samples from but one car for testing at the bureau. With our own plant in operation, we could make tests on the entire shipment—cheaper and quicker."

Curran Forms Prosecutor's Detective Squad

Investigative Unit, Long Needed, Headed By Sergt. J. W. Shimon

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

Investigative facilities for the Washington district attorney, long needed by the prosecutor's office here, will be provided by a Department of Investigations and Complaints established yesterday.

District Attorney Edward M. Curran announced organization of the new unit through cooperation of the Metropolitan Police and Commissioner J. Russell Young. Detective Sergt. Joseph W. Shimon will be in charge of the department.

The work of the prosecutors here has often been made more difficult in past years by lack of investigators operating as part of the district attorney's own staff. "This is probably the only local prosecutor's office in the country which does not have its own agents to complete preparation of cases," a former district attorney commented when he was forced to turn one of his assistants into a detective in an important case.

"Understanding Service"

"It is not enough," Curran said, "for my office merely to secure indictments and prosecute cases in court. I believe it should render a broader, a more understanding service to the people. There should be as an integral part of the office the machinery to investigate, analyze and report on complaints.

"No person should be turned away from this office who has come for whatever reason to lodge a complaint or report the commission of a crime. On the other hand, such complaints or reports cannot be efficiently and thoroughly handled without an efficient investigative division.

"Experience in other cities has taught that complaints and reports of this kind can be handled best and much time saved when the investigative unit is an integral part of the prosecutor's office and responsible as such to the United States attorney."

Curran assured citizens that the department would provide "private, confidential conferences and assistance as a part of the service we owe the public."

Sergt. Shimon is 34 years old and joined the Metropolitan Police May 17, 1929. The veteran detective, Sergt. Harry Britton, was his colleague in many investigations. On one occasion, Shimon recovered $350,000 in stolen jewels. He was given the temporary rank of lieutenant when the pickup squad was established after a crime wave here and directed its activities for more than a year, with much success.

Traffic Costs Three Lives In D. C. Area

Baltimore Boulevard Crash Kills Man, 60; Street Car Collision Fatal to Another

Two men and a 17-year-old boy were killed in traffic accidents in and near Washington yesterday.

In a head-on collision with a street car Charles W. Johnston, 35, of 3605 Eighteenth street northeast, last night became the District's fiftieth traffic victim of the year. He was driving an automobile east at Ninth and Monroe streets northeast when the accident occurred shortly before midnight.

Deputy Coroner Christopher Murphy, who was driving about a block away when he heard the crash, arrived to find Johnston pinned behind the steering wheel. Murphy pronounced Johnston dead immediately.

The Capital Transit car which struck Johnston was driven by Ralph Sullivan, 37, Shady Side, Md. The motorman told police he saw the oncoming car and expected it to pass on the eastbound right of way. Sullivan was shaken but uninjured. No passengers were reported hurt.

Johnston was a salesman for the American Petroleum Co.

A man, about 60, tentatively identified as a Mr. Menke, of East Riverdale, Md., was killed in a three-car crash on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard last last night near Riverdale. Witnesses said the victim's automobile was struck from behind by a second car which rammed it into the rear of a third.

Richard Honig, 17, of 601 Bunker Hill road, Cottage City, Md., injured when knocked from his bicycle on the Baltimore boulevard Thursday, died yesterday of internal injuries at Casualty Hospital.

According to police, the boy was riding on the highway at Cottage City when he was struck by an automobile operated by Francis Gray, colored, 23, of Brandywine, Md., who was released on bond pending a coroner's investigation.

Miss Bernadetta McKinney, 20, of Arlington, Va., was treated at Casualty Hospital yesterday for a bruised vertebrae following a two-car collision in the 200 block of Constitution avenue northwest.

She was riding in a car operated by Ellen M. Amos, 22, of Seat Pleasant, Md., which was in collision with one driven by Dr. Calvin B. Spencer, of the U. S. Quarantine Station, Curtis Bay, Baltimore.

Earlier in the day Leonard Fagan, 15, 1403 H street northeast, was hurt in an accident with a truck at Bladensburg road and Maryland avenue northeast. He was treated at Casualty Hospital for fractures to the right ankle and right ribs. He also suffered injuries to the chest, right arm and legs. His condition was reported not serious.

B. P. O. E. Plans Safety Drive in District

A committee from Washington Lodge of the Elks last night discussed plans for a public safety drive in the city which would include cooperation of other fraternal orders.

Declaring they were "in line" with the safety drive now under way here, members of the committee stated they were seeking the cooperation specifically of the Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Columbus, Knights of Pythias, the Columbia Typographical Union and the Allied Trades Council.

Points in the proposed program are:

Prominent speakers to address students of the public schools.

Aid in the campaign from the Board of Trade, Federation of Citizens Associations, the Lions, Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs.

The Leary and Babbitt, two United States Navy destroyers of the same type as those traded to Great Britain, cruised into Washington yesterday with trainees from New Jersey.

The sleek gray ships slipped up the Potomac early yesterday after giving their 150 fledging seamen a chance at some target practice off the Chesapeake capes.

Each is manned by a skeleton crew of 60 regulars and 75 trainees—some of them college men on vacation and other civilians on leave for the cruise. Many of those from Perth Amboy are receiving the difference between their Navy pay and regular wages from their employers.

Scheduled for 11 a. m. today is a whaleboat race between the crews of the two ships. Each destroyer carries a "whaleboat," a large double-bowed vessel, as a lifeboat.

This afternoon, two other reserve destroyers of the Atlantic Fleet will arrive here from New England to week-end in Washington.

Captains of the destroyers which arrived yesterday are Lieut. Comdr. E. Watts of the Leary, and Lieut. E. T. Goyett of the Babbitt.

Sightseeing for the gobs was out for yesterday. All afternoon they swarmed over the two destroyers, repainting the 4 guns and 12 torpedo tubes each vessel carries, swabbing down the decks, shining brasswork, and generally looking very unlike sailors.

Less than half an hour after the Leary docked, a messenger using the ship's bicycle had called for and delivered a large batch of mail for the young trainees. Between climbing smokestacks and swarming over the ship's sides, most of the sailors were seen grinning over letters from home.

Visitors were not in evidence, as recent Navy Yard regulations bars everyone not on official business from the docks.

Four trainees, Howald Staneck, William Lucas, W. T. McCoy and Matthew J. Chionchio, are employes of the Hercules Union Powder Plant at Parlin, N. J., 25 miles from the branch plant in which an explosion occurred Thursday.

Neilson Urges Uniform Fine System in D. C. Traffic Court

33-Year-Old Judge Discusses Proposals To Put Tribunal on 'More Human' Basis; Favors Mail Payments in Minor Cases

By John Singerhoff
Post Staff Writer

Plans for the possible installation of several reform measures designed to make District Traffic Court a "more human" tribunal were revealed by Judge George D. Neilson at an interview yesterday.

The District's youngest jurist said he chiefly would like to see a system of uniform penalties installed in the traffic branch. Suggestions for the payment of fines and collateral by check and by installments are also being studied, he asserted.

A fourth departure from ordinary practice under consideration, he said, is a plan by which motorists may post collateral by mail in less serious traffic offenses.

Judge Neilson, a former assistant corporation counsel, was appointed to the Police Court bench April 26. He has adopted a system of uniform penalties in his court and said it is his aim to "sell" it to Presiding Judge John P. McMahon, Judge Walter J. Casey and Judge Hobart Newman, his associates.

To Consult Associates

He will present his proposals for discussion before the other judges at a meeting in the near future, he said.

Uniformity of penalty in traffic cases is possible, Judge Neilson pointed out, because of the similarity of traffic law violations.

Where it is "possible and practical," Judge Neilson said, he believes his system would be effective, particularly in cases involving moving violations, such as speeding and driving through traffic lights and stop signs.

Since he has been on the bench, the 33-year-old judge stated, he has adopted the following schedule of fines: In speeding cases up to 35 miles, $5 fines; 35 to 40 miles, $10 fines; 40 to 45 miles, $15 fines; 45 to 50 miles, $20 fines, and more than 50, the maximum penalty of $25.

This schedule, he said, applies only to first-offense speeding cases. In second-offense cases, he inflicts fines beginning at $25, he said.

Favors Fines by Mail

He said he has adhered to the rule of fining motorists $10 for passing red lights and $5 for driving through stop signs.

The idea of permitting motorists to pay fines by check and by mail has been adopted, Judge Neilson declared, by a traffic court magistrate in New York City. He said he thought such a system could be worked out to advantage in the District.

"Motorists pay for their cars by check, buy gasoline by check, why not post collateral in lesser violations by check," Judge Neilson questioned. "Of course, in major offenses, the defendants would be required to appear in court."

"I believe suggestions of this kind, if put into effect," the judge continued, "tend to make traffic court a more human institution and probably will result in closer cooperation toward traffic safety on the part of drivers."

Judge Neilson pointed out that in some instances Police Court judges permit a defendant to pay a fine in installments. He stated he favored expansion of this system.

Maryland Hangs Slayer of Farmer

Baltimore, Sept. 13 (AP).—Arthur H. Collick, colored, convicted of slaying an elderly Eastern Shore farmer, was hanged at two minutes past midnight today in expiation of one of Maryland's most brutal crimes.

Flanked by guards and the prison chaplain, Collick, 27, walked into the gloomy State penitentiary death chamber and before the 70 or more spectators had stopped shuffling for places Warden Patrick Brady ordered the trap sprung.

Collick was convicted of murder in Baltimore County Circuit Court, August 1. He was charged, but not tried, on a criminal attack count. Charles Manuel, 15, tried separately on a murder charge alone, was convicted a day later and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Annie Pilchard, 60, widow of the slain farmer, was the State's star witness.

Competitive Tests Set

Hagerstown, Sept. 13.—Representative William D. Byron announced that he will hold competitive examinations for appointments to the Naval Academy and West Point on October 5. He said that any youth in the Sixth Congressional District should notify him by September 19.

Seal Denies Obstructing Milk Probe

Replies to Charges Hurled in House By Rep. Schulte

Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal yesterday denied there was any "selling down the river" of the 1939 milk investigation, in reply to an accusation hurled at him by Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana.

Seal, who has resigned his post effective November 1 to become general counsel of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association, said Schulte's "present attack upon him is only a continuation of his efforts to divert attention from violations of the Act of Congress relating to the importation of pure milk and cream into the District."

Seal said it was his duty to enforce the act.

"I did and I have no apologies to make," he added.

"At the time of the investigation no request had been made of me to represent the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association as its general counsel or otherwise."

100 Student Pilots Expected to Train In Hagerstown

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Sept. 13.—More than 100 student pilots are expected to be in training here by early spring, William Tobias, manager of the Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce, said today after receiving word from the Civil Aeronautics Board that Hagerstown airport, 4 miles north of here, had been designated as a pilot-training center.

Twenty student pilots, mostly college youths, who have had preliminary flying training this summer, will arrive here in the next week, said Tobias, to begin training. The Henson Flying Service, headed by Dick Henson, test pilot for the Fairchild Aviation Corporation here, has been given the contract to give the pilot course. Tobias said that he was informed by the CAA that additional students would be sent here until about six times the number arriving next week will be in training.

While training here, the student pilots will be quartered at a local hotel, their expenses paid by the Federal Government.

Residents of Woodlawn Village, Arlington, Va., who have suffered severe property damage in recent rains, last night asked county authorities for bigger sewers.

A resolution adopted by the Woodlawn Village Citizens Association demanded the county board take immediate steps to install adequate storm sewers in that section. The meeting was in the home of J. L. Young, North Sixteenth street.

Naval Reserves Of Washington Lead Nation

Highest Efficiency Rating in U. S. Is Won By District Battalion

The Navy Department announced yesterday that the Washington naval reserve battalion had attained the highest rating for efficiency during the past year of all the naval reserve units in the United States.

Lieut. William C. Jennings, commander of the local battalion, has been awarded a letter of commendation from Secretary Knox for the group's achievement, it was said. The battalion will receive a trophy presented annually by the United States Naval Reserve Officers Association.

Two other local officers have been commended by the Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, Rear Admiral Chester M. Nimitz. Lieut. Francis S. Kirk, commander of the third division of the Washington battalion, was so honored because his unit placed second among the divisions of the Reserve throughout the United States.

Lieut. Paul E. Kerset, commander of the first division of the local battalion, was also commended for the division attained third place in efficiency in the country. The third division, first battalion of Boston, led all divisions. There are 136 divisions formed into 35 battalions in the Naval Reserve.

W. A. Mitchell Leaves G. P. O. After 38 Years

Executives, Employes Present Veteran Purses Totaling $190

Behind him was 38 years of service that found him in a dozen jobs, from proofreading to heading the G. P. O. planning force. Ahead of him—retirement.

To get his retirement off to a good start, associates yesterday placed two purses in his hands. One from office executives, contained $150; in the other, from friends among employes, was $40.

"That will be more than enough to get us to Florida," Mitchell said last night. He and Mrs. Mitchell entrain for the South tomorrow morning, and plan to be away all winter.

Born in Graham, N. C., in 1876, Mitchell first saw service in the printing office as a compositor in 1902. He has been there ever since, except for a short interval in 1904.

In 1923 he saw a need for more coordinated handling of jobs that came to the office and developed his ideas, with the result that he became the G. O. P.'s first superintendent of planning. He held the position until his retirement yesterday.

"I wouldn't be leaving, except for my health," he declared, "but work down there has been getting steadily heavier in the last three or four years. I decided I'd better lay off."

Boy, 11, Convicted Of Manslaughter; Appeal Planned

Amherst, Va., Sept. 13 (AP).—Counsel for Artie Hamilton, 11-year-old boy facing a five-year penitentiary sentence on a conviction of voluntary manslaughter, made plans today for seeking a writ of error from the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

Young Hamilton was convicted of killing Richard S. Staton by an Amherst County jury Wednesday night and Judge Edward Meeks overruled a motion to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial.

The boy contended that Staton had been cursing his mother and throwing rocks at her.

King Names Reorganizing Inquiry Head

Senator McCarran Appointed Chairman Of Subcommittee To Hold Hearing

Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, yesterday was appointed chairman of a subcommittee to conduct hearings on the District reorganization bill passed by the House following an executive session of the Senate District Committee.

Chairman King also named the following members to serve with McCarran: Senators Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland; Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina; Capper (Republican), of Kansas, and Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire.

Senator McCarran said he would decide when to start hearings after conferring with his colleagues and District officials. It is expected that they will be held early next week.

Criticized by Donovan

Chances for Senate approval of the bill appeared to hinge upon the date of adjournment. Members of the Senate District Committee were in general agreement that hearings should be held because of the importance of the legislation.

The only persons who have indicated a desire to testify, however, are District officials. Auditor Daniel J. Donovan, who has criticized provisions of the bill, is expected to be the principal witness.

Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, while holding to the opinion that ample hearings have been held, said he probably would appear before the Senate subcommittee.

Reynolds Moved for Hearing

Maj. Donovan and Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen are understood to have criticized the House bill at the executive session of the committee. The auditor, under questioning, made what he termed a rough estimate that reorganization would add approximately $200,000 to the District budget rather than effect any savings.

Chairman King, following the meeting, cited the figure and explained on the basis of the new jobs proposed, such as the administrative assistant to the Commissioners, the personnel director and the director of finances. All of these new officials, he pointed out, would require staffs.

Senator Reynolds made the motion that hearings be held on the House bill.

Tom Bridges Limits N. Y. To Six Hits

Fading New Yorkers Crushed by 16-Hit Barrage; Greenberg Connects for Circuit

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Briggs Stadium, Detroit, Sept. 13.—

Here lie the Yankees' pennant hopes,
Crushed, not to rise again; how sad it.
Four-time champions of these slopes
A great ball club—when they had it.

What may have been the Yankee epitaph for 1940 was written here today in a six-hit pitching performance by Tommy Bridges and a 16-hit attack that fetched the Detroit Tigers an 8-0 victory and sent the New York club reeling three games behind the lead.

Amid wild demonstrations by 25,514 pennant-scenting Detroit fans, Bridges defanged the Yankees with a superb pitching job that permitted only one runner to reach third base. And Rudy York, with four hits, led a Tiger stampede that produced runs in five different innings.

The Yankees' pennant rush bogged down to a fumbling halt today. Losers of their last three games in the West, the New York team was dismal in defeat today, harebrained on the bases, uncertain in the field, and powerless at bat.

Pulled No Punches

The Tigers, seizing on the Yankee retreat, poured it on thickly. They knocked Maurice Russo out of the box in the fourth inning and heaped grief also on his successor, Steve Sundra. Hank Greenberg checked in with his thirty-third home run of the season and big Rudy York fattened his average with three singles and a double.

They pounced on Russo for three runs in the first inning to stagger the Yanks, and Bridges held to his lead as if it were sacred. He stopped the batting spree of Joe DiMaggio, who went hitless.

Tonight the Yanks are not only three games behind the league leading Tigers, but 2½ games to the rear of the second place Indians. And they are faced with a new threat from behind, what with the rampaging White Sox only 2½ games to the rear.

The Yankees invited defeat in the first inning when Joe Gordon lost his bearings on the bases with two on and one out. The only man in the park who didn't think that DiMaggio's long fly to McCosky would be caught. Gordon heedlessly dashed for third and was a double-play victim.

Betty Jameson, Marion Miley In Golf Finals

By the Associated Press

Seattle, Sept. 13.—Betty Jameson, national champion, set new women's course record today in defeating Muriel Veatch, Longview, Wash., in the semifinals of the Women's Western Amateur golf championship.

The San Antonio miss shot a 74, two under par, for the 18-hole Seattle Golf Club course and won her match, 2 and 1.

She meets Marion Miley, Lexington, Ky., in the finals tomorrow.

Miss Miley came from behind to defeat Mrs. J. K. Priebe, Seattle city champion, 3 and 2.

She shot one-under-par golf on her second nine to wipe out a one-hole deficit. Mrs. Priebe was one up until the twelfth when her game began to go to pieces.

Browns Beat Sid Hudson, Nats, 7 to 3

Hurler Given Poor Support by Teammates; Monteagudo Relieves

Special Dispatch to The Post

St. Louis, Sept. 13.—Sid Hudson, victimized by weak support, dropped his fifth decision to the St. Louis Browns this season as the Washington Senators bowed in the second of a three-game series, 7-3. As the Senators defense crambled, Bill Trotter steadied after a wild four innings and settled down to pitch his seventh win of the season, his first of the season over the Senators.

The Harris crew pounded Trotter for nine hits, six of them in the first two innings but only 16 Senators went to bat in the last five frames and not a single hit was recorded during that period.

Three errors, all of them figuring in the early scoring of the Browns, didn't help as St. Louis reduced the Nationals' sixth place margin to three and one half games.

Hudson Removed in Fourth

Hudson gave up seven hits in the first three innings as the Browns assumed command, 6-3 and was finally removed in the fourth inning for pinch-hitter Jake Early. René Monteagudo finished for him and the little southpaw was effective as he held the Browns to five hits and a single run in the last five frames.

Doubles by Buddy Lewis and Gerry Walker and a single by Cecil Travis put the Senators out to a 2-to-0 lead in the first inning, but the Browns tied the score in their half on a double by Johnny Lucadello, Jimmy Pofahl's error, Walter Judnich's single and an infield hit by Johnny Berardino.

Singles by Rick Ferrell, Hudson and George Case put the Senators in the lead once more in the second round, but when Walker attempted a shoestring catch of Joe Grace's drive and missed, the Browns tied the score. Grace's blow went for a triple and he tallied later as Radcliff forced Lucadello.

After a wild threat in the third inning, the Senators relinquished

Cards Slug 3 Bee Pitchers, Win Game, 9-3

Warneke Allows 8 Hits; Errickson and Sullivan Are Pounded

By the Associated Press

Boston, Sept. 13.—The St. Louis Cardinals rebounded behind the veteran Lon Warneke today and regained some of their lost ground by hammering three of four Boston Bees' pitchers for 11 hits and a 9-3 victory.

Despite their impressive success against the Cardinals yesterday, the Bees were unable to threaten at any stage, for Warneke kept most of their eight hits well scattered.

The Cardinals pounded Starter Dick Errickson for eight hits and five runs before he was replaced by Joe Sullivan in the sixth and that lefthander was effective until the ninth, when the Cards got two more tallies on two passes and Don Padgett's single. St. Louis then belted Nick Strincevich for their last two tallies.

The Cards opened their scoring in the first inning on singles by Jimmy Brown and Enos Slaughter and Johnny Mize's infield out, added two more in the fifth when Mize tripled with two mates aboard, and another pair in the sixth when Joe Orengo and Warneke singled, Brown grounded out and Terry Moore doubled.

Kayak II Injured, Will Be Retired Until February

New York, Sept. 13 (U.P.).—Kayak II, the Argentine-bred horse who won the 1939 4-year-old championship, has been thrown out of training with a quarter crack and probably will not race again until the middle of the Santa Anita season next February.

Trainer Tom Smith reported the son of Congreve had aggravated an old injury. The crack must be cut away and the hoof given time to grow before the handicap star can be heavily trained. Assignments in the $25,000 Narragansett Special and $50,000 New York Handicap probably will be canceled. Kayak II has earned $37,750 this season.

Amateur Baseball World Series Opens

Havana, Sept. 13 (AP).—A record crowd of over 20,000 fans is expected to attend the inaugural games of the third World Series of Amateur Baseball, opening tomorrow at Tropical Stadium.

Seven teams representing the United States, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Venezuela, Nicaragua, Mexico and Cuba are entered in the event, organized by the National Sports Commission under the auspices of the International Federation of Amateur Baseball.

Baseball Heads Name Oct. 2 As Starting Date for World Title Play; Prices Remain the Same

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 13.—As all baseball watched the closest pennant battle in the American League's 40-year history, the opening date of the 1940 World Series was fixed today as Wednesday, October 2, in the home park of the team winning the National League flag.

This was decided at a meeting before baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis—a session attended by Representatives of no fewer than five American League clubs and two from the national circuit.

The first two games of the fall classic will be played in the National League city, with the scene shifting to the American League park for the third, fourth and, if necessary, fifth contests. If the last two games of the 4-out-of-7 series are necessary, they will be played in the home park of the National Leaguers.

Travel Time Allowed

All games will start at 1:30 p. m., standard time.

Should either the New York Yankees or Boston represent the American League against Cincinnati—which has a big lead in the National League race—one day will be allowed for travel between the second and third games. No travel days will be required provided Detroit, Cleveland or Chicago are the American League representative.

Prices will be the same as last year at Chicago, Detroit, New York and Brooklyn—box seats, $6.60; reserved grandstand seats, $5.50; unreserved grandstand, $3.30, and bleacher seats at $1.10. Prices will be slightly higher in Ohio to meet State taxes.

Baltimore Stadium Seats Condemned

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Sept. 13.—About 20,000 seats in Baltimore's Municipal Stadium—where the Navy-Notre Dame football game is scheduled November 9—were declared unsafe and condemned by the municipal bureau of buildings, it was learned today.

Buildings Engineer J. A. Clarke recommended that 250 rows of seats in the "X" sections forming the upper edge of half the stadium "horseshoe" be rebuilt before the sections are used.

C. Markland Kelly, park board member, said that in view of advance ticket sales for the Navy-Notre Dame game, the board had declared the condemnation was an "emergency," and the board of estimates would be asked to approve reconstruction Tuesday.

Clarke said investigation showed the framing for the "X" sections was unsafe. A high school game (Polytechnic Institute vs. Southern) was scheduled in the stadium next Friday.

Bagby Allows 2 Hits, but Loses, 1 to 0

Milner Is Victor In Mound Duel; Weatherly Scores On Double Play

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Sept. 13.—Young Jim Bagby threw a sterling two-hit performance at the pennant-hungry Indians this Friday the 13th and still dropped a 1-to-0 decision.

The reason was Al Milnar. The big Cleveland southpaw granted the Boston Red Sox three singles, but kept them scattered to give the Indians their third straight triumph.

Roy Weatherly scored the solitary run. Opening the fourth inning, he singled through shortstop on the first pitch. Jeff Heath followed with a one-baser to right which put the fleet Cleveland centerfielder on third.

Twin Killing

Lou Boudreau, next up, grounded into a double play at second and first. Weatherly scored while it was being manufactured.

Bagby, son of the Jim Bagby who pitched the Indians to their only championship 20 years ago, settled down and stifled Tribe war clubs the remainder of the way, but it was a losing cause. Each pitcher fanned four and walked two, Bagby getting Ray Mack on strikes three times.

The only blows off Milnar, who now has won 16 and lost 8, were Jimmy Foxx's single with two out in the first, Joe Cronin's one-baser to center to lead off the eighth and Roger Cramer's single with one down in the ninth.

In the last two sessions, Milnar really pitched his way out of trouble. He killed Boston hopes in the eighth as Bobby Doerr popped to Beau Bell, and Charlie Gelbert flied high to Weatherly. Gene Desautels, catching again in a line-up switch, sent Foxx back to first base, walked, but Bagby could do no better than force Desautels at second.

Bagby's Best Work

In the ninth Foxx, after a dangerous line drive to rightfield which was barely foul, popped to Boudreau and Ted Williams flied to Weatherly.

That made it 14 victories in 21 starts for Cleveland against the Red Sox, with one more game remaining.

It was Bagby's best mound work of the season, but earned him only his fifteenth setback against ten wins, and the Red Sox their third defeat in a row. In the two days of the Cleveland series, the normally-slugging Red Sox, with no close walls to aim at, have looked as helpless as a fan without a score card. They have made a total of exactly six hits in 18 innings.

Bo McMillin's Turnabout Is New Grid Huddle

By the United Press

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 13.—Now it's Bo McMillin's turn to invent a new huddle.

At Indiana's first scrimmage of the season today, Bo introduced a huddle in which the players all face the opposing team, although in huddle formation.

"We can cope with shifting defensive formations much better," McMillin explained.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Detroit, Sept. 13.—A rich man's toy is now very likely to win the American League pennant. The Detroit Tigers are the de luxe hobby of Mr. Walter O. Briggs, and the expense is no item whatsoever to the well-heeled automobile body builder who lavishes on his darlings one of the more brutally big fortunes of the country.

POVICH

Judge Landis had to step into the Detroit baseball picture a couple of years ago to shake a restraining finger at Mr. Briggs, who was pampering his ball players to what the Judge thought was an alarming extent. There must be more $125 suits of clothes for the Tigers at Mr. Briggs' tailors after they had won a victory that had especially pleased Mr. Briggs, Landis said.

That had been Briggs' habit, to send the boys around to his tailors for their wardrobes with Mr. Briggs picking up the tab. Mr. Briggs could not spend his money that way, Landis decreed. It was unfair to the poorer clubs in the league who could hold out no such additional incentives to their athletes. There was, moreover, the Judge pointed out, a rule in the book that said a club owner couldn't offer special incentives during the season.

Mr. Briggs hadn't meant any harm, he just had a kindly feeling for his boys. That has found expression in other forms, also. Other major league clubs each carry one trainer for the team who is, in most cases, a glorified rubber who probably graduated from a side-street gym, but Mr. Briggs had other plans for his Tigers after he bought the team. The Tigers still have their rubber, but in the Tiger dressing room also there are, surrounded by chrome gadgets representing almost every advance of medical science and appliances one (1) diploma-owning osteopath and one (1) grim-faced Swedish masseur.

One day Mr. Briggs took a look at his ball park and decided that he didn't quite like it. That decision precipitated the spending of $1,000,000 on park improvements, a very considerable figure in Detroit, where thousands of natives are on the pay roll of his body-building works. He prevailed upon the city to sell him a street that bounded Briggs Stadium in leftfield. It cost him only a few hundred thousand. He threw up covered grandstands in all directions and saw his park burgeon as the finest in all baseball.

The Tigers' dressing room—and the visiting club's, too—are palatial in contrast to the black holes of the rest of the league. Mr. Briggs ordered the new fittings. Next season his ground crew won't have to bother about dragging out the hose and wetting down the infield, or the outfield either. During the off-season the turf in Briggs Stadium will blossom with an automatic sprinkler system which, no kidding, drains as it sprinkles.

The invalid fans of Detroit also get a break from Mr. Briggs. Stationed at the entrances are special wheelchairs manned by park employes to tote the lame and the halt to their seats. And the poor, inkstained wretches who cover the Tigers home games also have come within Mr. Briggs notice.

"Go ye forth into the land and observe the finest press box man has built," Mr. Briggs recently cmomanded his press secretary, "and come back with plans for a better one." At this time, a de luxe lounge for baseball writers is being constructed in the rear of the press box where they may bury themselves in the thick upholstery and watch the game from a glass enclosure whenever the wind and the rain are in their hair.

It is not amazing, either, that the Tigers are the highest salaried club in baseball. When Briggs politely asked Hank Greenberg to play the outfield this season instead of first base, he accompanied the request with a $5,000 salary raise. Before he was manager of the Togers, Del Baker received $15,000 as a coach, more than some managers in the league.

Oh yeah, there's a special telephone, too, running direct from the Tigers dugout to the centerfield bullpen underneath the stands where the Tigers relief pitchers warm up. Mr. Briggs didn't like what seemed to him to be the senseless wig-wagging from the dugout whenever his manager wanted to call in a new pitcher. He might fetch the wrong man.

The dugout-to-bullpen telephone, incidentally, has been one of Mr. Briggs' shrewdest investments, because it has given Manager Del Baker ready access to one Al Benton, without whom the Tigers would not be leading the league at this time. Relief Pitcher Benton has pitched something like 70 innings for the Tigers this season. The records show that he has won six games for himself, but the important item is that he has saved 17 other games for pitchers who were credited with victories.

Benton's the fellow whose readiness to pitch has enabled Baker to rest his first-line hurlers like Buck Newsom, Schoolboy Rowe and Tommy Bridges. He is a mild throwback to Washington's Fred Marberry. He knows that he is not in the game for long, and thus gives the Tigers some plain, unvarnished fast ball relief pitching that has been extremely helpful.

Back in Wayne, Okla., the townsfolk think Al Benton is sort of wonderful. The fact is that they have a kind of proprietary interest in him. Because it was back in 1930 that they took up a collection for him, bought him railroad tickets and gave him some spending money to go to Oklahoma City for a tryout in organized baseball. He's been in it ever since.

Reds Chase Hubbell, Beat Giants by 5-2

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 13.—The Giants are fully convinced that Friday, the 13th, is a jinx—after losing a 5-to-2 decision to the league-leading Cincinnati Reds today.

The once-mighty Carl Hubbell was touched for the loss, his tenth of the season as against 11 won, and two errors by his pal, Mel Ott, at third base, cost Hub two of the runs scored against him, giving rise to the jinx belief.

Lefty Johnny Vander Meer, making his second start since his recall from Indianapolis, turned wild in the third inning and had to be relieved by Lefty Witt Guise, 32-year-old rookie from Columbia, S. C. He gave up in the sixth, when Joe Beggs came in to earn his eighth straight relief victory.

It was Ladies' Day and fair weather, but only 3,576 were present, probably due to the fact that the Giants had been eliminated from the flag race yesterday.

Ken Overlin Signs To Meet Belloise

New York, Sept. 13 (NEA).—Middleweight Champion Ken Overlin today signed to defend his title in a 15-round title fight with Steve Belloise, of New York, in Madison Square Garden on November 1.

The match was made by Promoter Mike Jacobs after Bellois won a decision over Ceferino Garcia, from whom Overlin took the crown, in a 10-round battleshere last night.

Dodgers Beat Pirates Behind Rookie, 8 to 2

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Sept. 13.—The Dodgers, paced by the fine pitching of Rookie Ed Head who chalked up his first major league victory—and by a six-run outburst in the sixth inning—made it three straight over the Pittsburgh Pirates today by an 8-to-2 score.

The victory helped tighten the Brooks' hold on second place in the National League.

The Dodgers got to Klinger in the sixth, chasing him to the showers while they mixed six hits, two walks and an error for their six runs.

The ladies day attendance was 7,834 of which only 1,769 was paid.

Harvard Gridders At First Practice

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 13 (AP).—Coach Dick Harlow welcomed 66 Harvard varsity football candidates today and immediately shifted Joe Koufman, his veteran end, to the running guard berth.

Then he assigned red jerseys, insignia of varsity rating, to Koufman and 12 other seasoned players, reserving two for Left Halfback Charlie Sprayer and Dick Foster, a guard, who were unable to make the opening practice sessions.

McCullough, Chapman in Amateur Finals

Wehrle Loses To Amazing Turn of Form

Chapman, Five Down After 9 Holes, Wins; Billows Loses to Consistent Stroking

By the Associated Press

Mamaroneck, N. Y., Sept. 13.—One of the strongest comebacks in the history of the National Amateur golf championship carried Dick Chapman into the final of the 1940 tournament today against Warrington Bannerman McCullough, jr., of Philadelphia.

Chapman was 5 down to Wilford Wehrle, of Chicago, after the first nine holes of their 36-hole semi-final match. He was hooking and smothering drives into traps and trouble, he was hitting sloppy second shots and his putter wasn't of any more use to him than 6 feet of garden hose. He was out in 42, six over par.

But he choked off what had all the earmarks of a frightful blowup right there. From the tenth to the eighteenth Wehrle didn't win a hole, and Chapman won six. That put him 1 up.

Wehrle Speechless

In the afternoon, before a gallery that swelled to some 3,500, Chapman kept to a steady par pace and came in the winner by 3 and 2. After the morning round Wehrle was bewildered. By the time the match was over, he simply couldn't talk.

Tomorrow morning Chapman will tee off against McCullough, the man who accomplished what all the experts said couldn't be done in this particular tournament. Without uncorking any sensational scoring except for a one-under-par 71 on his second qualifying round, the baldish Philadelphian, a 10-to-1 shot when match play started, plowed steadily through the field, knocking off two ex-champions on the way, and finally gaining the title bracket by beating Ray Billows, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., a finalist two of the last three years, 5 and 3.

No Duffer

When he was a youngster his dad used to call him the "little duffer." But "Duff" was no duffer today. He stuck close to par all day long.

So up and down were the two morning halves of the Chapman-Wehrle match they almost defied analysis. Chapman hit only one fairway with his tee shots on the front nine. But from the eleventh hole to the nineteenth, Wehrle didn't hit a single green in par.

Chapman played that back nine in 34, two under par, with 14 putts. He broke the Chicagoan's heart on the nineteenth by laying him a stymie from 12 yards after Wehrle had come out of the rough to within 5 feet of the pin. The crusher came when Wilford jumped the stymie perfectly, only to see his ball hit the back of the cup and spin away.

Chapman 2 Up

At the twenty-ninth, Wehrle laid an iron shot 8 feet from the pin for a conceded birdie, and was only 1 down. But he missed a 10-foot putt at the thirtieth, and at the thirty-second Chapman went 2 up with 3 to go, winning the hole with an almost unbelievable par as Wehrle took three to get down from the edge.

At the thirty-third Wehrle's approach hit a trap. He made a fine out, 6 feet away. But Chapman blocked the path by laying him a stymie. A half on the thirty-fourth closed out the match.

McCullough, 4 up at lunch time, won four holes to Billows' 3 on the first afternoon nine to make it 5. He hit his most spectacular shot at the short twenty-eighth, where he holed out over a trap from 60 feet away for a deuce. Billows won two of the next four holes, but on the thirty-third green, Ray missed a 6-foot putt and McCullough had proved how far a dark horse sometimes can run.

D.C. Champ Welsh Meets Everett In Net Exhibition

Harris Everett, North Carolina University tennis ace and recent conqueror of Welby Van Horn in the National singles, will meet District Champion Barney Welsh this afternoon at 4 o'clock in an exhibition at Edgemoor Club.

Young Everett, unranked nationally last year, probably will be among the first 20 amateurs in the country on the basis of this season's play. Besides eliminating the fourth-ranking Van Horn in the second round at Forest Hills, Everett extended newly crowned National Champion Don McNeill at Rye.

Following the Everett-Welsh match there will be a doubles exhibition in which Middle Atlantic Champions Hugh Lynch and Dabie Johnsen will participate.

Lyon Park and Cherrydale B. C. nines have moved their Monument Grounds baseball game Sunday to Ballston Stadium, where it will be played as the second game of a double-header. In the first, Barcroft B. C. and Ballston teams meet at 12:30. Arlington County Federation standings hinge on the outcome of both games.

President's Cup Regatta Races Start

Hains Point Action Today Involves 12 Classes of Sail Boats

The first of the outstanding events of the 1940 President's Cup Regatta takes place this afternoon over the Potomac off Hains Point where 125 trim, small boats will compete in the sailing races.

The registration deadline has been set for 10 o'clock this morning, with the Capital Yacht Club throwing open its facilities to the visiting skippers.

Twelve classes are in the races, with the first event to be run off at approximately 1:30. The boats will be entered in the following classes: Twenty-foot round bottom, 20-foot chine, comet, Hampton, lightning, snipe, sailing canoes, handicap A, handicap B, penguin, moth and Class C. All will go two laps, with the exception of the last two classes which go around once.

Sunday Action Listed

Competition will be resumed tomorrow, starting at 9:30 a. m. and 2 p. m.

Over a new triangular course of five miles the little yachts will be sent off. The committee, headed by Arthur H. Clephane has made arrangements to prevent conflict of boats interfering with the start of the last classes. This has been done by sending off the yachts at five-minute intervals for the first hour. As the leaders of the first division off return to the committee boat for the second time around they will sail around the far side of the Calypso.

Plenty of young talent will compete with the veterans. The youngest participant is 13-year-old Sunny McKnew, of Washington, who is entering her comet from Gibson Island fleet. This is her first attempt to win a President's Cup Regatta prize, her first participation in the comet class. Her boat is the Frolic.

Dr. Tony Leitner's Belle Aire, of Perth Amboy, N. J., Mac Lamborne's Arcoiris, to be sailed by Nora O'Neil, of Washington; Ken Grace's Needa Brez and Ward Bright's craft, both of Wildwood, N. J., are the veterans of the mid-winter regatta in San Juan.

D. C. Skippers Busy

Competing in the comet class are many outstanding skippers from the District. Ernest Covert is entering Scandal, Henry and Alan Brylawski the Nimbus.

America's outstanding one-design yachts will be competing in the two-day classes, and indications are that the competition will be keener than in the 14 years of the event.

Sutherland Leads Dodgers Against 'Skins

Former Coach at Pitt Gets First Taste Of Pro Mentorship

By the United Press

New York, Sept. 13.—The Dodgers—the football Dodgers, that is—depart their native environs tomorrow to meet the Washington Redskins Sunday in a contest almost without parallel on the professional gridiron. The debutante who will come out at this party is not a glittering All-America halfback or tackle, but a coach.

Jock Sutherland is a bit past the usual debutante age. He is the gentleman whose name once was synonymous with that of Pittsburgh. The good gray doctor built the Panthers from a third-rate team to the scourge of the college stadiums and in the end his very ability was his undoing. Pitt ostentatiously announced it was going "pure," and by so doing virtually asked for general and vigorous condemnations of past sins—most of them purely imaginative. The doctor took a rap in a manner true to his Hippocratic oath—in silence.

JOCK SUTHERLAND

Back in Money Ranks

Now the most famous coach since the late Knute Rockne has joined the pros, or rather rejoined them, since he played professional back in the days when he was an All-America himself. What makes him unique is that he is the first really top-niche college man to attempt the transition. Some have said that there will be little difference in coaching pros and coaching the Panthers, but that is neither true nor just.

The transition is doubly interesting because Sutherland in college was the symbol of team play. He polished his squads the way he polished a tooth and he was both apostle and disciple of blocking in all its surprisingly subtle nuances. Actually, Pitt elevens never were big and bulky either to team or man; they simply knew their fundamentals and assignments perfectly.

Now the pro fans are wondering what the doctor will do in a sport famed for hipper-dipper aerial circus acts. The answer is that Sutherland will adapt to his material. He told us the Dodgers would pass when a pass was in order, but warned that football teams of any variety aren't built in a day or a season. Like any other coach, Sutherland can use only what he has.

Doubtful Quantities

Well, what has he. The Dodger front office would have you believe he has the best of everything. True, he was given a new camp and some new players. But not too many new players. Regardless of his rating at Dun & Bradstreets or in the cafe society spots on Fifty-second street, Owner Dan Topping never has flourished a hair-trigger wallet when it came time to buy players. So the Dodger team not only isn't new from stem to stern, it is pretty darn familiar.

Look at the lineup. Waddie Young and Perry Schwartz at end; Bruiser Kinard and John Golemgeske at tackle; Jim Sivell and Steve Petro at guard and Louis Mark at center. Only Petro is new, although Red Heater, of Syracuse, and Bud Svendson are welcome additions. Ben Kish will replace the injured Ace Parker—half the offense last year—but even his best friends wouldn't tell him he'll replace Parker perfectly. Pug Manders, Sam Francis and Bill Leckonby are three old reliables at the other spots. Dick Cassiano and Banks McFadden may break in later.

Talent Still Untried

There is other talent to be tested: George Cafego, of Tennessee; Mike Gussie, of West Virginia, for instance. But at the writing only a career optimist would rate the Dodgers more than 15 per cent stronger than last year on material, and last year Washington rolled up telephone number scores. From all indications Sutherland is a doctor in more sense than one and he is expected to fill his prescriptions by himself as well.

Spencer Tracy To Help Open Field Day Card

Today's Policemen-Firemen Event May Draw 20,000 Fans

Spencer Tracy, Hollywood movie idol, will help inaugurate the afternoon festivities of the Police-Firemen's benefit field day at Griffith Stadium today before an expected 20,000 persons.

Tracy has volunteered his services for the seven-hour program, Lieut. John J. Agnew, athletic chairman, stated, and will assist "Carnation Jimmy" Lake in his master of ceremonies duties at the microphone.

The program will open at 11 a. m. with a "grudge" softball battle between Sonny Burdine's Firemen and Frank Watt's Bluecoats. At 1 o'clock the first of the afternoon events will be unreeled.

The track meet between the Police and Firemen promises to be packed with interest. Men of all weights, of all ages will vie for a raft of prizes. There will be 50-yard and 75-yard dashes, a running broad jump, shot put, obstacle race, shoe race and tug-of-war.

Wild West Rodeo

A Wild West rodeo show will be provided by Billy Gee and his Fire Boys. There will be exhibitions of fencing by Prof. Anthony Messineo and his class; novelty tumbling by Ray Weigand's eight daughters; gymnastic and tumbling exhibitions, and a jiu jitsu demonstration by Prof. Joseph Chiang of the Y. M. C. A.

Of particular interest is the appearance of Johnny Grimek, "Mr. America," as a member of an all-star Pennsylvania weight-lifting team, which will meet Johnny Dulin's District champions in a weight-lifting contest.

Those motorcycle daredevils—Ritchitt, Hensley, Ostermann, Kaskeski, Carmichael, Klein, R. T. Meyer, Yowalski and Davis—will display their stunts during a 45-minute exhibition. Capt. Milton D. Smith will be in charge. One of the stunts includes a plunge through a burning wall.

Life-Saving Lesson

From a specially constructed 65-foot tower the D. C. Fire Department drill team, under the direction of Chief Clement Murphy and Capt. H. F. Harding, will demonstrate the art of saving lives in a burning building.

Rudy Hard, local fireman, will ascend with a covey of 20 balloons, and when they start popping at an altitude of around 3,000 feet he hopes to bail out successfully.

Tim Hammack, concealed in 1,500 pounds of ice, will attempt to break the world's record of 51 minutes he set during the last field day.

Mystic Act

Harry Mystini will attempt an escape from a 55-gallon barrel filled with water, with the lid to be locked from the outside. Mystini will don bathing trunks to perform this act.

The Police Department drill team, headed by John C. Davis, will perform. Jack Parker will do some juggling. A surprise ballet act will be offered.

Eight bands, among them the Metropolitan Police Boys Club, National Training School, Chestnut Farms Dairy, Fred Harting's Swingsters, Almas Temple, Elks Clown, Hruby's Dutchmen, will provide the music.

A beauty contest, with entries sponsored by the Volunteer Fire Departments of Maryland and Virginia, also will be presented.

Lieut. Agnew states the show will go on—rain or shine.

The money will be turned over to the relief and retiring associations of the two departments.

Gopher Eleven Gets 2 Workouts

Minneapolis, Sept. 13 (AP).—Minnesota caught two doses of scrimmage today instead of the usual one as Coach Bernie Bierman drove his entire squad through two arduous workouts.

The morning workout was concentrated chiefly on pass plays and the afternoon drill found the Gopher linemen and line backers on defense against different combinations. The first all-out scrimmage of the season with actual game conditions prevailing is expected Saturday. Today's workouts were marked by the return of George Franck, although the star halfback did not get into action.

Chisox Sweep Pair From Philadelphia

Dykes Crew Capture Fifth Straight With 6-2, 8-4 Victories

Chicago, Sept. 13.—The ever-surprising Chicago White Sox swept their second straight double-header with the Philadelphia Athletics today, 6 to 2 and 8 to 4, to run their victory string to five games, remaining on the fringe of the free-for-all American League race.

Thornton Lee pitched a seven-hitter in the opener, and Rookie Jack Hallett, a big right-hander, making his major league debut, yielded only eight hits in the second game.

The Sox now are in sole possession of fourth place, 1½ games ahead of the Red Sox and 2½ games behind the third-place Yankees.

Larry Rosenthal, subbing for ailing Taft Wright, led the White Sox attack, collecting a triple, double and single off Ed Heusser in the first game and a triple and single in the aftermath.

The Athletics committed seven errors, three by Shortstop Al Brancato in one inning of the second game, tying the major league record. Brancato fumbled two grounders and dropped a throw on a potential double play, all in the fifth inning.

Ritzenberg, Smith Reach Tennis Final

Defending Champion C. Alphonso Smith and Allie Ritzenberg, University of Maryland student and veteran of local public park play, yesterday reached the men's singles finals of the Government tennis tournament on Potomac Park courts. They will meet for the title at 2:30 this afternoon.

In the semifinal Smith eliminated Hy Ritzenberg, Allie's brother, 6—1, 6—1, while Allie overcame stubborn opposition by Frank Shore to triumph, 7—5, 6—4.

At 3 this afternoon the women's finals will be held between Willie O'Steen Herbert, former District champion, and Mrs. Margaret Keever. This match will be a repetition in personnel of the finals of the D. C. Recreation Tournament in which Mrs. Herbert beat Mrs. Keever.

In yesterday's women's semifinals Mrs. Herbert subdued the tournament "upsetter," Peggy Keyser Smith, 6—2, 6—2, while Mrs. Keever defeated Dorette Miller, 6—2, 6—3.

Prizes will be awarded winners and runners-up at the Government employes' get-together soon after the conclusion of this tournament.

Yesterday's Results

MEN'S SINGLES—C. Alphonse Smith defeated Ky Ritzenberg, 6—1, 6—1; Albert Ritzenberg defeated Frank Shore, 7—5, 6—4.

WOMEN'S SINGLES—Willie O'Steen Herbert defeated Peggy Keyser Smith, 6—2, 6—2; Margaret Keever defeated Dorette Miller, 6—2, 6—3.

Schedule for Today

MEN'S SINGLES (final round, 2:30 p. m.)—C. Alphonse Smith vs. Albert Ritzenberg.

WOMEN'S SINGLES (final round, 3 p. m.)—Willie O'Steen Herbert vs. Margaret Keever.

MIXED DOUBLES, 4 p. m.—Peggy Smith and C. Alphonse Smith vs. Margaret Keever and John Smith. 5 p. m.—Willie and George Herbert vs. Charlotte Decker and Allie Ritzenberg.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Sept. 13.—REELING AROUND—Baseball: Sorry, but old Diz's 3-2 victory over the Dodgers was a mirage. "Nobody wants to see Diz come back more than I do," Leo Durocher told us after the game. "But he's slower now than he was before they sent him to Tulsa. I was coaching at third base and I noticed he hangs on to the ball longer. Won't let it go, like he used to. He'll never get his stuff back, no matter what they say. Maybe six or eight wins a year, if he stays up, but the old Diz is gone for keeps. I kept kiddin' him. Had him crazy, telling him that if he came back with that slow stuff I was going to play regular, and bat left-handed."

CONSIDINE

BOXING—That match the other night between Steve Belloise and Ceferino Garcia was something like one of those delayed fuse bombs. There was a lot of suspense about when the thing would start exploding, and there still was at the end. Garcia's famous bolo punch, the most sinister looking dud since Babe Ruth's strikeouts, went whizzing through the air at regular intervals without connecting with anything related to Belloise. And Belloise missed his best throws, though he gave Garcia's manager, George Parnassus, a heart attack.

It was a pretty good wn for Belloise, at that. It was his first 10-round fight, and he made up in enthusiasm what he lacked in experience. He should be the next middleweight champion. His style is spidery and unorthodox and he seems to be wide open for a straight right, for he holds his left low down and wide. But Garcia couldn't tag him, nor could any of his opponents this year. George Hughes, his venerable manager, plans to make no changes in his style. "It's his own and he's comfortable at it, like Al Simmons with his foot in a bucket," Hughes confided after the match.

GOLF—To his undisguised woe, Dick Chapman looked up while measuring a difficult shot in the United States Amateur early this week and found himself staring into the slightly hostile, if beautiful eyes, of his former wife. It happened several times thereafter, adding nothing to the retired crooner's disposition.

"Hmm," he complained to a marshal. "Basking in my reflected glory, that's what she's doing."

TENNIS—We bunked into Dwight Davis the other day at Forest Hills and asked him about his cup. "It's in safekeeping in Australia," the distinguished former Secretary of War told us. "And heaven knows how long it will stay there. It was there all during the World War, too."

He added, as a bit of Davis Cupiana, that under the original deed, outlined in 1900, he is permitted to take the thing back if it is not competed for five straight years. He also said that one of the original demands he made, at the time he gave the cup, was that his name never be associated with it, and that it be called the International Tennis Trophy.

TROTTING—The "handle" at Roosevelt Raceway, where harness racing is making a stab at establishing itself in the New York area, has averaged $38,000 a night. It is enough to get by on, and though Bob Johnson, the president of the group, says there will be no money made this season he has hopes for next year. He and his group plan to throw another $100,000 into the promotion next season when they get a week of grand circuit trotting.

Batson, Grady Shine In G. W. Grid Drill

By Jack Munhall

Stubby Ken Batson and "Tear In" Tom Grady, a pair of senior candidates for the tailback position, shared offensive honors yesterday as the George Washington gridmen had their first taste of punting scrimmage at the Polo Field.

Batson, standing 5 feet 6 and built along the lines of a fireplug, and Grady, a tall, slender kid with the speed of a greyhound, punted exceptionally well and proved most elusive on punt returns. Several times the underslung Batson, whose lowered neck and churning knees gave the tackler but small target, nerly got loose, although the scrimmage was strictly informal.

Grady Best Ball Carrier

Grady, a former blocking back who came into his own as a ball carrier late last season and in the Kansas game proved the Colonials' best ball carrier, was getting good trajectory and distance with every punt. On punt returns he was very difficult to bring down, mostly because of his great speed and quickness at reversing his field.

The Colonial squad was brought to near full strength and one of Head Coach Reinhart's worries was eliminated yesterday as End Johnny Picco and Tackle Tony Barauskas, both prospective regulars, reported for the first time. Both have been ill at their homes.

With the arrival of this pair only two members of the varsity squad are still missing. Scott Gudmonson, sophomore quarterback from Ogden, Utah, is expected in camp shortly. Einer Wahl, junior tackle and the other absentee, may not return to school.

Still in an experimental mood, Reinhart effected still more line-up changes. Sophomore Center Bob Kranich will be shifted to end to bolster that department, which was weakened by the loss through ap-

Rochester Wings Lock Up I. L. Flag Race, Wins by 13-0

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP).—The Rochester Red Wings clinched the International League pennant tonight with a 13-0 victory over the Buffalo Bisons. The triumph put them three games ahead of the second-place Newark Bears, who were idle, with a record of 95 wins and 60 losses against the Bears' 93 and 64. Each club has three games left to play before the season ends Sunday, but even if the Wings lose their remaining games and the Bears win the next three, Rochester will be one percentage point ahead, .601 to .600.

Havre de Grace Opens With $10,000 Handicap Race Today

Meeting Set For 13 Days At Mile Oval

Level Best, Filly Sensation, Entered In 6-Furlong 2-Year-Old Feature

As if to avoid the Friday the Thirteenth Jinx, yesterday was an off day in Maryland racing. However, today will bring the start of the Free State's major fall season and one that track officials freely predict will be the most successful since the lush days of the late '29s. The sport of kings, de luxe style, makes its first stand of the campaign, due to carry it along until the end of November, at Havre de Grace, up on the south bank of the Susquehanna River. Post time for the first race is 2:15 p. m.

For the past two weeks, bangtails of the No. 1 grade have been gathering at the oval, popularly called "The Graw," for the 13 days of whipping, driving and photo finishes. With three big stakes as a lure, some of the best thoroughbreds in the land will be ready to do or die for gold and oats. But sprinkled into the program, in those sixth and seventh races, as usual, will be Mamie's Lad, Chilly Bobie and some of our other half-mile friends, because the cheap platers are still useful to fill out the cards.

In all, upward of 2,000 thoroughbreds will compete for close to three-quarters of a million dollars during the Maryland season. Some will be distributed in the $1,000 claiming race parcels, but there will be chunks of the small-fortune variety for some of the events.

$10,000 Race Today

Havre de Grace will stage one of its three big events today. The $10,000 Eastern Shore Handicap, a sprint of 6 furlongs, will hold the center of attention. On September 21, the $10,000 Potomac will be contested over the mile and a sixteenth route by a group of 3-year-olds. On September 28, closing day, the biggest cash of the meeting will be distributed following the $15,000 Havre de Grace Handicap, set for a mile and a furlong.

In today's Eastern Shore, fans in this section will get their first look at Level Best, the 2-year-old filly sensation. She has won four of her five starts and has the unique, rather odd honor of being assigned top weight in a field that includes many colts. She must carry 122 pounds. Another star performer to be seen in the East for the first time is Porters Cap, longshot winner of the $20,000 added Washington Park Futurity. Magic Stream, another entry, won the Christiana Stakes at Delaware Park. In all, a field of ten has been named.

Two Strong Bidders

Two of the strongest bidders for the Potomac Handicap, a week from today, will be Mrs. Ethel Mars, of Chicago, and Mrs. E. Graham Lewis, of New York. Mrs. Mars is the Milky Way candy heiress who has been the brightest angel of the last half dozen yearling sales carnivals at Saratoga. Mrs. Lewis also has become a very generous patron of the Saratoga auctions.

Mrs. Mars will shoot in the Potomac with Gallahadion, a son of Sir Galahad III and Countess Time that cost her five grand at Bob Fairbairn's auction of 1938; Mrs. Lewis, with Jacomar, a son of Jack High and Gay o'Mar for which she paid Charles Nuchols nine grand at about the same time.

If these colts were to be racing for the first time since they were 2-year-olds, Jacomar, indubitably, would rule favorite over Gallahadion. For Gallahadion went out to California last December a five-time beaten maiden. Jacomar, on the other hand, had won three races under the training of Louis Feustel, the man who trained Man o' War in 1919 and 1920, and he had been a stout contender in several important stake revivals.

Won 1940 Derby

But it looks now as though Gallahadion will have the call. For the son of Sir Gallahad III is coming to the Potomac with the prestige of a Kentucky Derby win and an Arlington Park Classic, in both of which specials he licked the redoubtable Bimelech. Bimelech had scored six straight victories as a 2-year-old and won a Blue Grass Revival as a 3-year-old before Gallahadion humbled him at Churchill Downs. Sirocco beat the pair of them at Chicago, but Gallahadion licked fleet Bim easily for the place.

However, Jacomar is no slouch. Slow to pick up in the spring, he struck his gait at Saratoga in August and galloped 1 mile and three-sixteenths in 1:57 2-5 in a Huron Handicap in front of Asp, Snow Ridge, Call to Colors and two or three others and then came down to Aqueduct to breeze 7 furlong in 1:24 flat in front of those speed hounds Pictor, Roman, Dit, et al. N. C. Badwell will bring Jacomar to Havre de Grace. He is Mrs. Lewis' fifth trainer this year. The others were Feustel, Mrs. Elizabeth Cromwell Bosley, Alex Gordon and Hugh Dufford. Roy Waldron has been handling the Milky Way string for a couple of years and doing a first-rate job.

Bill Bennings

At the Post

Selections at Havre de Grace.

Dear Al:

Well, the big-time opens with a bang today. It's on to the Graw with new horses, new jockeys and a lot of high hopes. The half-mile season wasn't half bad, but the change will do us all good. The other day at Timonium one of the jockeys who had finished work for the day came up to the press box and sat beside me. "Did you see who's in the stewards' stand today?" he asked. I nodded, for the man to whom he referred was Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt. "Oh, my," sighed the jockey, "I'd like to have his bucks." So I asked: "Suppose Vanderbilt should say, 'Here, boy, take this million dollars.' What would you do?" "Man, oh, man!" exclaimed the jockey. "Why, I'd throw the biggest beer party tonight you ever saw!" Well, the passing of the half-mile season means a rest for Clymene. She might have taken that eighth race last Thursday, but Jockey Willie Kelly raced her on the outside fence all the way, and she was beaten less than two lengths. She had a tough season, and there isn't a race in the book that shows she wasn't trying. Just a good old honest mare. Trainer Cook is putting her out on his farm, and she will be taken up in time to get into action at Charles Town in December. Speaking of Charles Town, President Al J. Boyle has ordered Lombardy poplar trees to be a background along the backstretch. That makes me think of Timonium, which had the toughest background I have ever seen. The colors of the jockeys' shirts meshed in with the reds, greens of the merry-go-round, the ferris wheel and the signs in front of the shows of the fair. Some of the best publicity copy to come from a Maryland track is being put out by Laurel. The latest piece brings out the fact that the Laurel and Selima stakes are the only figures in Maryland run over a mile route. This will be the last year that the Selima will be a mile. Starting in 1941, the distance will be 1 1-16 miles. To W. M. H.: If you come to the track, see me in the press box, and I'll tell you some other angles on those Counter Pass flip-flops. See you on the rail today.

BILL.

First race—Patrol Flight, by High Quest, showed a good turn of speed in a race at Saratoga. Meets only juvenile maidens in this test and could be the right one. Large Mint has exhibited closing ability and with good handling could be prominent. Sherlock is bred for speed and probably will make a good showing.

Second race—Surprise Box has been training right here on the grounds and always was a hard horse to whip in company of this sort. Gets high weight but appears ready to carry it. Manny B. has plenty of speed and promises to do a lot of running. Flaming High should get into the money circle.

Third race—Jay Jay likes the track and is reported fit and ready. The sprint route suits and Jockey Mannie Berg is a capable pilot. I'm going to string along. Slow Motion has been brought along carefully and should be prominent. Rehearsal to take care of the others.

Fourth race—The Tall Tree Stable entry of Early Morn and Bill Farnsworth seems to have the edge in this field. Both are hard-running sprinters and are likely to turn back Pass Out. The last named is gifted with brilliant speed, but may be over-weighted at 120 pounds. Gay Balko's feather assignment gives him a chance.

Fifth race—I'm forced to string along with Level Best in the Eastern Shore Handicap. Winner of four of five starts while competing with the best, the Oglebay filly will have to be beaten despite that 122 pounds. Porter's Cap, surprise winner recently, has speed and is dangerous. Cavalier is a possibility due to light weight.

Sixth race—I'm going to the half-mile talent for the winner of this claiming event. Darby Du performed nobly on the little tracks and is deserving of attention. Dnieper has gone back, but is dangerous among these. Candle Ends for the show end.

Seventh race—The Jones-Oglebay entry of Hide and Bull Terrier seems the best suited in the day's finale. Braving Danger is always dangerous among cheap ones. West Sea to take care of the others.

Feature Race At Aqueduct To Little Risk

Favorite Finally Wins In Filly-Mare Race; Fairy Chant Second

By the Associated Press

Aqueduct Racetrack, N. Y., Sept. 13.—A favorite finally made good in a feature race for fillies and mares here today when Warren Wright's Little Risk scored a nose triumph over William Dupont, Jr.'s Fairy Chant in the Black Maria purse. The winner, recently nosed out in the New England Oaks, ran the gamest race of her career under Freddie Smith. The daughter of Stimulus paid even money and stepped the mile and a sixteenth in 1:45.

Fairy Chant, now second four straight times, beat her old rival, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Piquet, by four lengths. Pretty Pet was fourth and Phara Frost last. The race served as a warm-up for the $15,000 added, mile and a furlong Beldame Handicap, to be decided closing day. All in the Black Maria are eligible for that fixture.

A crowd of 9,397 viewed today's events.

Little Risk, winner of seven of her 10 races this season, ran into a wide early lead while Piquet and Pretty Pet were closest in attendance. Smith had the favorite under wraps into the stretch, where he and his mount were forced to give their utmost as Fairy Chant made her menacing move. The latter even gained a slight advantage inside the sixteenth pole, but Little Risk showed her courage and class by straining to the front again as they hit the wire. It was so close that the dead sign would have occasioned no surprise.

Ramases Wins Putnam Purse At Pawtucket

Rough Time Second To Favorite by 3 Lengths After Scramble

By the Associated Press

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 13.—After five consecutive favorites faltered, Hal Price Headley's Ramases gave the form players something to cheer about today by winning the Putnam Purse feature by three lengths from Yancey Christmas' Rough Pass at Narragansett Park. P. F. Gene's Donna Leona, in the contention most of the way, showed a half-length behind Routh Pass.

Ramases and Donna Leona fought for the lead as the field of ten broke from the starting gate and once the Headley horse gained his early command he held it throughout. Ramases had plenty of running left in him after covering the 6 furlongs in 1:11 4-5.

The victor returned $6.40, $4.60 and $3.70. Rough Pass, which came fast around the far turn, returned $8.50 and $5.80, and Donna Leona's show price was $4.30.

Bakers' Duckpinners Open League Today

The Bakers Bowling League will inaugurate its season this morning at Convention Hall alleys at 11:30 o'clock. There are several franchises still open and teams interested should phone Hillside 0799. Carl Heinzman is president, Earl Bean, vice president, and Chris Hutchinson, scorer and treasurer.

W. E. Miller's Trotters Take Two Events

Washingtonian Drives Symbol Gantle, Banner Hanover to Victories

By the Associated Press

Reading, Pa., Sept. 13.—W. E. Miller, of Washington, drove two of his horses to victory today in the closing events of the Grand Circuit light harness meet.

Symbol Gantle, 2:03¼, by Symbol S.—Forrest, won the free-for-all trot, the feature event while Banner Hanover, bay stallion by Peter the Brewer, took the 15-class pace in straight heats.

Symbol Gantle was off badly in the first heat, finishing sixth, but came back to win the second and third miles handily. The first brush went to Bonapart, by Kalmuck, owned and driven by Joseph Headly, in 2:04¼, breaking the horse's old record of 2:06¾.

Maxine Abbe, owned by E. C. Quinn, Blue Bell, Pa., driven by Harry Goodhart, won first and third heats to annex the 23 class pace. The black filly by Abbedale faded badly in the second brush, placing seventh, while Knight Dale finished on top.

New England Futurity Draws Seven Starters

2-Year-Olds Swain, Attention Given 122 Pounds to Carry Today

By the Associated Press

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 13.—Only seven of the 512 yearlings nominated back in November of 1938 were entered for the New England Futurity today and it appeared likely that the Narragansett Park management would discard this rich 6-furlongs event for 2-year-olds after tomorrow's fourth running.

The winner's share is expected to net about $38,000 and Mrs. Parker Corning's Attention and Cleaveland Putnam's Swain were regarded as the most likely threats for the largest part of the pot.

Since Attention won the United States Hotel Stakes at Saratoga and Swain accounted for the Arlington Futurity, they drew imposts of 122 pounds and were called upon to give eight to each of the other five thoroughbreds, whose owners also met the $500 final installment.

They were Benjamin F. Lister's Bull Brier, Hal Price Headley's Alaking, the Walmac Farm's entry of Bushwhacker and New Englander, and S. L. Kopald's Hermar.

When the first nominations were made almost two years ago, $10 fees were paid on 512 yearlings. Last January 1, owners of 195 youngsters paid second installments of $50 and on July 1, owners of 96 of those thoroughbreds each paid $100 more to keep them eligible. The added money totals $24,740 and in addition, the track management has put up a $25,000 purse.

Anderson Plans Few Scrimmages

Iowa City, Iowa, Sept. 13 (AP).—Coach Eddie Anderson continued to place emphasis on fundamentals as the University of Iowa football squad romped through another workout on fundamentals here today.

Indicating there may be little scrimmage in the Hawkeye camp again this year, Anderson said "We'll continue our present practice schedule for a while, but more time will be spent on signal drills and pass defense next week."

Another Strong Team Signed For Bike Races

Letourner and Audy Will Pair in Event Starting Sept. 22

Two of the smallest and most popular stars in six-day bicycle racing, Alfred Letourner, acrobatic Frenchman, and Jules Audy, platinum blond Canadian glamour boy, were paired off yesterday as competitors in the International Six-Day races to be introduced at Riverside Stadium a week from Sunday night, September 22.

Promoter Ray Alvis and his associate, Harry Mendel, previously had signed the internationally celebrated German team of Heinz Vopel and Gustav Kilian and are now busily engaged in selecting the eight remaining teams from 73 available combinations.

Audy and Letourner will be officially enrolled as the Red Devil team, a name adopted because Letourner and his partner invariably are attired in flaming red riding livery.

Letourner has gained international recognition while winning no fewer than 21 races in this country, Paris and London, while Audy has won 13 major races. Audy is far and away the handsomest of all six-day competitors and is certain to find favor with fair fans here.

Promoter Ray Alvis yesterday announced that several outstanding local amateur bicycle stars had asked to compete against the six-day stars and will be provided ample opportunity to qualify for the grind in special tests during public workouts at Riverside next week. Bill Cauffman and Louis Miller, two exceptionally able amateurs, were the first to make application.

Litchfield Takes Hawthorne Purse

Chicago, Sept. 13 (AP).—The Shady Brook Farm furnished a surprise winner in the feature race at Hawthorne today, when their Litchfield equaled the track record to score a length and a half victory over E. F. Bennett's Mingling, with Willie Crump's Night Lady third. Litchfield had Apprentice Bill Thompson up, and covered the 6½-furlong dash for 3-year-olds in 1:17 3-5.

Litchfield's prices were $21.20, $12.60 and $6.00. Place and show returns on Mingling were $7.40 and $4.00, while Night Lady paid $3.40 to show.

San Antonio Picked As Bees' Training Site

Boston, Sept. 15 (INS).—San Antonio, Tex., was selected tonight as the site for the 1941 Boston Bees spring training camp.

President Bob Quinn of the Bees said the Texas city was constructing a new playing field and that the St. Louis Browns, of the American League, would continue training there. This will provide the Bees major league opposition under favorable playing conditions.

Bill Busick's Passing Sparks Drill Against Navy 'Regulars'

First Eleven Unimpressive In Workouts

Coach Expresses Disappointment In Showing of First Line Team

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 13.—The tentative first eleven selected by Maj. Emery E. (Swede) Larson, Navy's head football coach, got anything but glory out of a stiff scrimmage session against so-called second team today. In fact, the latter simply played rings around and over the main team. Led by Capt. Dick Foster at end, with a demonstration of passing, end sweeps and line bucks that baffled the big fellows over a period of about 20 minutes, Larson frankly expressed disappointment at the showing of his "regulars."

Sparking the work of the "seconds" were the brilliant passes launched by Bill Busick, triple threat back of last year's plebe team. Bob Zoeller, another explebe and Sammy (Albie) Boothe, generally were on the receiving end. They seldom missed and moreover weaved their way through a group of would be tacklers for great gains, frequently getting completely in the clear. Added to this was some fine off tackle plunging by Boothe and Earl Rowse, second classman from Utah. Rowse, who packs 164 pounds in his 5 feet 8 inches stature, showed fine speed and elusiveness.

The early part of practice was featured by punting by Warner and Busick, with the other backs returning the kicks. In this connection "Wes" Gebert did some especially clever broken-field running. Werner and Busick will do most of the kicking in big games. Gene Flathmann, his 250 pounds making him the giant of the squad, worked out at left tackle on the main team in place of Ken Shean. Otherwise the make-up of the teams as selected by Larson a few days ago remains intact.

The junior varsity squad received two additions when Murphy, back, and Moore, guard, reported on the field. They were delayed as they were part of the crew that sailed the yacht Freedom to Annapolis. The yacht was presented to the Academy today by Sterling Morton, of New York.

Coach Larson announced a scrimmage against Johnny Wilson's plebe aggregation tomorrow afternoon, which may take the form of a regular practice game. It being Saturday, the Middies also will work out in the morning and another practice is scheduled for Sunday.

135 Pilots Set For National OutboardRaces

Lake Quimsigamond Scene of Three-Day Event, Starting Today

By the Associated Press

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 13.—The country's outstanding professional and amateur speedboat drivers gathered tonight for the opening tomorrow of the twelfth annual three-day national outboard championships on Lake Quimsigamond.

One hundred and thirty pilots have entered the regatta, which will include competitive racing tomorrow and Sunday, and time trials on Monday.

The outstanding professionals entered are Paul Wearly, Munice, Ind., former University of Indiana star, who last year took titles in Classes A and B; Claude Smith, Atlanta, Ga., Class C champion; Frank Vincent, Tulsa, Okla., 1940 Southwestern divisional winner in Classes A, B and C, and Thom Cooper, Kansas City, Class F, Southeastern divisional champion, and Fred Jacoby, jr., North Bergen, N. J., national high scorer during the last three years.

Morse's 'Puck' Wins Penguin Sail Title

Forbes Morse's speedy little Puck took one first and one third in the final series of the two-day National Penguin Champion sailing races off the Old Dominion Boat Club yesterday winning the title for her owner.

Morse's boat, which he brought from Manhasset, N. Y., amassed 38.3 points, placing him well ahead of the field to cinch the grand prize and three daily trophies. Second was Potlatch, owned and sailed by Walter Lawson, with 33.1 points, and Phelps Hunt's Goblin took third place with a 30-point total. Judy, William W. Heintz, was fourth with 29 and Ralph A. Youngs' Seabiscuit fifth with 28.

Only two of the scheduled three races were sailed, the other not being finished because of expired time limit when no boats had crossed the line due to light winds. Morse took the first race, followed in order by Lawson and Heintz, and the third was won by Lawson, with Youngs second and Morse third.

By the Associated Press

He points out that his line is likely to be too slow for the Notre Dame style of offense; that he has less than 40 candidates; that his starting lineup will include several sophomores, who must be counted on to make their share of bad plays; that he will lack competent reserves; that the tackle and guard positions may be weak; and that the schedule is weighted down with tough foes.

On the credit side of the leger can be put down the return of Al Grygo, 1938 backfield star who is as elusive as a loose ping-pong ball, and towering Alex Urban, brilliant sophomore center of two years ago who is slated to play an end.

With Grygo holding down the key left halfback position, Enright, despite his pessimism, should have the best backfield he has had since taking the helm here in 1938. To go along with this flash, he has such veterans as Harvey Blouin, who was a blocking and defensive star last year; Dewitt Arrowsmith, a fine field general of all-round ability who spent the 1939 season on the sidelines because of an injury, and a fair amount of other good material, which includes both lettermen and sophomores.

At the flanks, Urban and Sophomore John Leitner appear likely to get the first call. Leitner, a converted halfback, stands an even 6 feet and is the shortest of the rangy crop.

Only one letterman, Bill Applegate, is back at tackle and the sophomores will probably have to carry the burden.

Louis Sossaman, brilliant sophomore, seems to have taken the center position away from Ken Webb and Leonard Kanian, who did a fine 1939 job at the pivot.

The schedule:

Mrs. Wilda Martin Captures Golf Title At Washington Club

Mrs. Wilda Martin captured the women's club championship of the Washington Golf and Country Club yesterday by downing Miss Anne Reh, 2 and 1. Mrs. Martin was down until she won the fourteenth hole. The pair halved the fifteenth and sixteenth, and then Mrs. Martin clinched the match on the seventeenth.

Mrs. J. S. Connolly and Mrs. H. D. Smith won prizes as the semi-finalists which finished play on Thursday.

New Minor League Is Organized

Durham, N. C., Sept. 13 (AP).—A new minor loop was added to baseball today amid Shaughnessy playoffs and the season's closings. It is the California League.

The circuit has formally qualified for the 1941 campaign, President W. G. Bramham of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues announced. Anaheim Bakersfield, Fresno and San Jose are the members. Bramham said two more cities possibly would be added before the season opens.

The league will be Class C. W. C. Tuttle, head of the Pacific Coast League, is acting president.

Minister Appointed To Baseball Board

Durham, N. C., Sept. 13 (AP).—W. G. Bramham, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, announced today the appointment of the Rev. Harold J. Martin, president of the Canadian-American League, as a member of the board governing the "Junior World Series" between winners in the International League and the American Association.

Presidents of the contending circuits will be on the board with the appointee.

Draft Horses In Montgomery Horse Show

Hard-working draft horses, usually ignored in present-day horse shows, will come into their own today in the Montgomery County Horse Show, at T. A. Barnsley's farm near Olney, Md.

Ponies and hunters will likewise be given several innnigs, but most attention will be centered on the draft events, beginning at 9:30 a. m.

Classes are for draft mares, foals, mule foals, draft yearlings, mule yearlings, 2-year-old draft stallions, 2-year-old mares and geldings, 4-H breeding class, six-horse or mule teams, four-horse or mule teams and two-horse or mule teams.

At noon, events for hunters will start with a light breeding class, pony harness, open saddle, junior hunters, local hunters, hunter hacks, open hunters, ladies' hunters, pairs of hunters, touch-and-out and handy hunters.

Rough work having begun with yesterday's punt scrimmage, contact work will be the order for next week, Reinhart announced. From now on practice will be lengthened gradually until the Colonial squad is in shape for its September 28 opener with Mount St. Mary's.

C. U. Maps Strategy For Air Attack

Determined to meet fire with fire when air-minded Detroit is met October 4 in the Auto City, Coach Bergman yesterday began to intensify forward-pass drills at Catholic University. Charlie Moutenot and Pete Sachon will be the main triggermen in the Cardinals' aerial bombardment. Catching their heaves in yesterday's two-hour drill were ends Joe Carrig, Kenny Blackbird, Brendan Stynes and Marty Donovan. Gerry Strang, a veteran wingman and also an ace pass receiver, was still weak from a severe cold and remained on the sidelines.

Hoyas Battered From Scrimmage

The casualty list includes Jim Reichey, center, and Dominick Montanero, guard, infected teeth; Jim Castiglia, fullback, bruised shin; Mark Ostinato, guard, lame ankle; Augie Lio, guard, wrenched back and heavy cold; Ben Bulvin, halfback, pulled leg muscle; Mike Kopcik, end, lame leg, and Bill Nealon, tackle, body rash. (P. S. The Georgetown press release failed to explain how the scrimmage caused the discomforts of Reichey, Montanero and Nealson.)

Ed Brown, Army Back, Out of Line-up

Broken Ankle Bone To Keep Star Idle During Five Games

By the Associated Press

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Army football officials announced today an injury would keep Halfback Brown from at least the first five games of the season. The 6-foot-2 senior from Oakland, Calif., broke a bone in his left ankle during a team scrimmage last Saturday. Coach Bill Wood said it will be impossible to use Brown before the second week in November.

Any Ace Gridman Versatile, Contends G. W. Coach Reinhart

Colonial Coach Waives Credit for Successful Changes; Tackles Hardest Players to Transfer

By Jack Munhall

Wily William Reinhart, the George Washington coach who has been accused of communing with the spirits because of his singular success at shifting star players from one position to another, yesterday expounded some interesting theories on that strategy.

Puzzled that some critics were astonished at the apparentprescience that prompted Reinhart to make a great end of Halfback Bob Nowaskey and a fine quarterback of End Sam Babich, the rotund Colonial coach said it was all very simple.

Tackle Job Different

"Nowaskey and Babich are both fine football players. Any good player should be able to handle most any position in acceptable style. The lone exception I make is tackle. There, a certain physical type is demanded—a big, powerful boy who is fairly fast. Many players simply do not have the brute strength to handle that job."

In proof of his contention that it is not difficult for a player to change positions successfully, Reinhart can point to a long list of successful shifts he has made in the last two years.

Most notable of these in 1939 was the moving of Fullback Mike Monchlovich to center, where he won recognition as one of the outstanding sophomore stars of the District. In high school Monchlovich was chosen All-Western Pennsylvania State fullback.

Other Shifts Made

A partial list of other Reinhart changes: Frank August, currently the finest end on the Colonial squad, from guard; Walter Fedora, regular fullback, from end; Williard Blackburn, a leading center contender, from fullback; Don Siebert, from fullback to guard; Tim Sweet, from fullback to guard to center to tackle; Walter Welc, from halfback to fullback; Enrico Seeno, from tackle to guard, and Floyd McGlinn, from fullback to guard; Tom Grady, from blocking back to tailback.

Easiest transition to make, Reinhart says, is from fullback to center or vice versa. This is because the positions are almost identical defensively. Most important defensive duty of centers and fullback alike is to back up the line. Since that holds true, it follows that most centers and fullbacks are powerfully built and quick afoot. They must be strong to stand the beating they absorb behind the line and fast enough to move in all directions to thwart enemy strategy, especially quick reverses and sweeps.

And So, Vice Versa

Similarly, Reinhart believes that any smart end who is a good defensive end can also be made into a good quarterback.

"They execute the same kind of block, don't they? Why, then, should it make any difference whether the end blocks from his position or from the quarterback's position, which is a scant yard behind in the system we use."

Because Reinhart is a firm believer in versatile players, one of his current favorites is Tim Swett, a senior, who has already won letters as a back, guard and a center and who may this season be moved to end. The unexpected loss of Dan Douglas, No. 3 end, has left the Colonials shy of dependable wingmen, but Reinhart's worries are eased to a great extent by having available such a "handy Andy" as Swett.

Mexican Netter Is Eliminated

Los Angeles, Sept. 13 (AP).—Mexico's junior tennis champion, Rolando Vega, fell by the wayside in the first round of the Pacific Southwest Tennis Tournament today bowing to Robert Forbes, of Beverly Hills, 8—6, 4—6, 6—3.

In the Senior division, Robert Kelleher, New York, was the last entry to qualify for the 32 open brackets with a 6—3, 6—2 victory over Joe Hayes, of Los Angeles.

Mergenthaler Stock Leaps On Dividend

Bid Price on Local Exchange Hops 2½ On Surprise News

Directors of Mergenthaler Linotype Co. yesterday declared a dividend of $1 a share, first disbursement since 50 cents was paid in September, 1938. The dividend is payable September 30 to holders of record September 18. The company said the declaration was made following a full review of the company's current operations and the outlook for the ensuing year.

The stock, widely held here, is listed on the Washington Stock Exchange. On news of the dividend, bid price jumped from 15 to 17½ while offering price advanced from 16 to 18½. One sale was reported, 10 shares, at 17½.

Intricate Bank Problem

One of the biggest problems facing bankers is to develop a technique to work with the Government on one hand and to compete with it on the other. This was one of the points stressed by Dr. Harold Stonier, executive manager of the American Bankers Association at a dinner Thursday night of the Washington chapter of the American Institute of Banking.

"During the last 13 years," he said, "one of the outstanding developments in the banking field has been the growth of Government activity in the banking field. New agencies of government have been established—some to help banks, some to further supervise banks, one to insure deposits, and a number of agencies which directly compete with banks."

Pioneer educational work, he added, is necessary for banks to coordinate their efforts to new governmental methods. He stated that the American Bankers Association seeks to "crystallize our ideas" into a course on this subject which will be introduced experimentally at the Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University.

Students Reassured

Edward M. Blaiklock, president of the Washington chapter of the American Institute of Banking, stated yesterday that any student obliged to withdraw from local courses because of National defense requirements most likely will be given full credit or refund of tuition. The local board of governors, he said, will take definite action along this line in the near future. Meanwhile, he emphasized, no student should hesitate to continue his schooling.

Bond Trading Brisk

Brisk dealings in Capital Traction 5 per cent bonds of 1947 were reported yesterday on the Washington Stock Exchange. With the price holding steady at 102¾, turnover aggregated $16,500. Closing bid price was 102 with offering price at 103.

Bank Dividend Voted

Directors of the Security Savings & Commercial Bank have declared a semi-annual dividend of 4 per cent on the capital stock, payable September 30 to holders of record September 25.

Rail Export Freight Rises 88% in Month

By the Associated Press

Export traffic through Atlantic and Gulf ports last month was 88 per cent greater than that of August, 1939, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday.

Export freight, other than grain, unloaded at these ports totaled 51,334 cars in August, 1940. In the same month last year, there were 27,278 cars. In July 1940, the ports handled 46,554 cars.

Grain traffic for export amounted to 1,472 cars, an 8 per cent decrease from August, 1939.

Houdaille-Hershey Declares Dividends

Detroit, Sept. 13 (AP).—Directors of Houdaille-Hershey Corporation, makers of automobile equipment, today authorized a dividend of 25 cents a share on the class "B" stock, payable October 10 to holders of record October 1, and the regular quarterly dividend of 62½ cents on the "A" stock, payable October 1 to record September 25. Previous "B" payments this year were 50 cents in June and 25 cents in March.

Roanoke Utility Issue Authorized

Richmond, Va., Sept. 13 (AP).—The Roanoke Gas & Electric Co. was authorized by the State Corporation Commission to issued 37,900 shares of common stock, valued at $379,000, to the Consolidated Gas & Electric Co., to pay off demand notes held against it by the Delaware corporation.

Philco Votes Dividend

Philadelphia, Sept. 13 (AP).—Directors of the Philco Corporation today declared a dividend of 25 cents per share on the corporation's outstanding common stock. The dividend will be payable October 15, to stockholders of October 5.

Reputation Counts in Politics As Well as in Business World

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
Economic Commentator

Business firms that endure through the generations gain their permanence from serving a useful function and through understanding human nature. Politicians, whose success for the most part is more ephemeral than that of enduring business firms, could learn from the annals of trade.

An American drug manufacturer wisely argues that "the priceless ingredient in any product is the reputation of the maker."

Mr. Rukeyser

The German Library of Information, in a recent issue of "Facts in Review," naively views with astonishment the alleged fact that the fear that Hitler will invade the New World is based on a typographical error. The argument runs that the quotation purporting to reflect Hitler's intention does not come from the title of Naziism, namely, "Mein Kampf," but from a secondary source, Rauschning's book, "The Voice of Destruction." The authority of this source is swept away by characterizing the author as a "renegade," whose book is a curious "mixture of fact and fancy," mostly the latter.

My purpose here is not to appraise the accuracy of Rauschning's warning, for I believe from the record that the Nazis' course will depend on the trend of events and on their hard-boiled calculation of what they can get away with and what will be to their own interest, but I do wish to dwell on the asset value to a business or to a nation of "good will," which is created by a record of good behavior.

In view of Hitler's past record in believing his promises by contrary action, he has exhausted much of his capital of "good will." He also dissipated much of it by giving the bum's rush to eminent scientists and others. He used up still more by carrying to new extremes "man's inhumanity to man."

Accordingly, it is somewhat puerile for his propaganda agency in New York to view with "astonishment" that various American individuals and periodicals accept at face value information contained in an unauthorized interview.

A man's credit, as reflected in the banks, constitutes a recognition of value. Banks determine an individual's credit standing by looking dispassionately at his behavior record. When the late J. Pierpont Morgan said that "character is the best collateral for a loan" he was merely stating the inexorable human law in epigrammatic form. In the remarkably accurate work of the late Louis Proudfoot in card indexing the morals and standing of promoters, brokers and security issuers, the secret of his success lay in basing his judgments on an objective reading of the past record of the personality under consideration.

When a man impairs his credit he loses much. He relinquishes the capacity to get others voluntarily to accept him at face value. He interposes between himself and others barriers of resistance, doubt, fear and skepticism. Failing at persuasion, such an individual in private or in public life is thus compelled to use the more expensive medium of force.

If through lying, cheating or misrepresentation a businessman has rendered himself ineligible for bank credit, there is little consolation in the fact that he can perhaps still get funds by wearing a mask and toting a gun and holding up the bank teller.

Many politicians at home and abroad overlook their oneness with men of business. Whether they are reflecting their counters of success in pecuniary profit, or in votes, their ultimate progress depends on the approval of the public. And in the long run a moral weakness becomes a serious, if not a fatal, handicap.

Cuba Votes Measure To Repay U. S. Builders

Havana, Sept. 13 (AP).—A bill authorizing the issue of new public works bonds to settle debts owed two United States contractors was sent today to President Laredo for his signature.

Already approved by the Senate, it was passed by the House early this morning.

The new issue will be 8,500,000 pesos ($7,607,500) of 4½ per cent bonds. The proceeds will be used to pay long-standing debts owed Warren Bros. and Purdy & Henderson who built a vast number of roads, bridges and public buildings in Cuba under the Machado regime.

$10,474,078 in Army Contracts Awarded

By the Associated Press

The War Department announced yesterday the award of contracts totaling $10,474,078. The largest contract, for $7,240,462, went to the Walsh Construction Co., of Long Island City, N. Y., for temporary buildings at Camp Edwards, Falmouth, Mass. The department's announcement said this contract was on a negotiated fee basis.

New Solidarity Seen In Western Nations

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Sept. 13 (AP).—Evidence of a new solidarity among nations of the Western Hemisphere was hailed today by Manuel Montejo, powerful Costa Rican producer, in greetings of the National Coffee Association.

Despite prospects of better days, Montejo said, all is not well now for the industry because "European chaos has destroyed a market for millions of bags of coffee and rising surpluses have sadly dislocated finances in producing countries."

$8,150,000 Rail Issue Authorized

Boston Wool Market

Boston, Sept. 13 (AP) (U. S. Department of Agriculture).—Renewed interest has resulted in a larger volume of business in wool on the Boston market today.

Prices on active wools were showing a firming tendency. Good French combing length fine territory wools in original bags were bringing 86@87 cents scoured basis. Twelve-month Texas wools were bringing 85@88 cents scoured basis. Dealers reported an increase in wool buying in some of the Western States at strong prices. Quotations on graded wools in Boston were firm as a result of increased interest.

Texas Oil Firms Offers To Make Explosives

New York, Sept. 13 (AP).—The Humble Oil and Refining Co. of Texas, a Standard Oil of New Jersey affiliate, has offered to arrange with the United States Government to produce raw materials for explosives, it was disclosed today in the Lamp, house organ.

The offer was made on the basis of successful results achieved by engineers and chemists of Sonj and affiliates in actual plant operations.

"A subsidiary operating company recently delivered for testing purposes," said the magazine, "two tank cars, or 20,000 gallons of nitration grade toluene produced synthetically and the new product has proved entirely satisfactory."

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 13 (AP).—Marking time awaiting developments in Europe, wheat prices fluctuated through a range of less than a cent today and closed unchanged to ¼ lower compared with yesterday's finish.

An advance of about ½ cent after midsession reflected some strength in securities and reports of better demand for North American grain from accessible southern European nations, but this was wiped out soon. Greece bought some Canadian wheat and was reported after U. S. hard.

Closing prices were 74⅝ for September and 76⅛@76¼ for December. Corn was ⅛ off to ⅛ up, September, 63⅝; December, 56¾; oats unchanged to ⅛ higher; rye ¼ lower and lard 2-7 lower.

Normally such countries as Greece and Portugal depend on the Balkans for wheat supplies, but small crops in the Danube basin and movement of most of the available surplus up the river into German territory have limited the volume available. Exporters said Greece was inquiring for about 7,500,000 bushels of Canadian as well as domestic hard for delivery monthly through January. Purchase of two cargoes of Canadian was confirmed. Portugal has taken moderate quantities of Canadian wheat recently.

Great Britain also was understood to have taken 2,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and flour, the latter for immediate shipment, and traders commented that this business may indicate bombers have done some damage to British mills. However, flour is easier to transport and may be preferable to wheat if shipping space is limited due to the heavy movement of war materials abroad.

Strength of September corn, which rose ½ cent at one stage to 64, highest since last May, kept the corn market firm most of the time. Buying was credited to cash interests and shorts, but the loan program accounted for the 7 cents premium at which old crop corn was quoted over new crop deliveries. No. 2 yellow sold up to 67¾, almost 4 cents over September. Trading in September contracts ends on Saturday, September 21, and before the opening today contracts involving 5,158,000 bushels of corn remained to be settled.

Private Issues Jump in Week To 72 Millions

Excellent Reception Expected to Speed New Financing

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 13.—Private corporations raised more new capital this week than in any similar period in more than a year, a tabulation by Poor's Publishing Co. showed today.

Total public offerings of new securities during the week ended yesterday rebounded to $72,189,779 from the abnormally low level of $6,419,350 the previous week. Most of the total was accounted for by corporate issues and 95 per cent represented new money rather than the refunding of exisiting debts.

Issues marketed during the week sold quickly, underwriters said, promptly commanding premiums above the offering prices in open market sales. The excellent reception accorded them by investors is expected in Wall Street circles to speed up financing plans now under discussion.

| | This wk. | Prev. wk. | Year ago. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Municipal | $14,376,279 | $5,099,350 | $868,500 |
| Pub. Utility | 3,565,000 | 150,000 | ...... |

Accelerated Pace In Retail Buying Continues in Week

New York, Sept. 13 (AP).—A continuation of favorable business trends throughout the last week was reported today by Dun & Bradstreet, in its weekly trade review.

"Retail buying," said the mercantile agency, "maintained its accelerated pace and in some regions touched a new high for the current season.

"Retails sales for the whole country were estimated 5 to 10 per cent higher than in 1939; last week the year-to-year margin was between 6 and 13 per cent.

"Industrial production also gave a good account of itself, rising more than seasonably to the peak level of the year so far.

"Wholesale and industrial ordering was not quite so active as in the previous week, but trading continued to show some liberalization of purchasing policies compared with a few weeks ago.

"Purchasing at retail continues vigorous. Reports from all sections of the country reveal a spirit of optimism among consumers."

Railroad Reduces Deficit in Month

Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad Co. reported a net deficit after all charges for the month of July of $1,411,329, as compared with $1,785,956 for the corresponding month a year ago. Net deficit for the seven months ended July 31 was $9,707,917, as compared with $13,083,980 for the like 1939 period.

Universal Leaf Tobacco Co.

Universal Leaf Tobacco Co. and wholly owned subsidiaries reported for the year ended June 30 net profit of $1,520,044, equal, after 8 per cent dividend requirements, to $7.07 a common share. This compared with $1,529,238, or $7.09 on common, in the preceding year.

Shareholders Approve United Biscuit Plan

Dover, Del., Sept. 13.—A plan to retire old preferred convertible cumulative stock of the United Biscuit Co. of America and create new preferred cumulative shares was approved at a special meeting of stockholders at the office of the company's agent, U. S. Corporation Co., here today.

The old preferred was 9,798 shares of convertible 7 per cent par $100. An amendment voted to the company's certificate of incorporation replaces that with 250,000 shares of 5 per cent cumulative preferred, par $100. The change retains 750,000 shares no par common.

U. S. Food Prices Average About 3% Higher Since War Started, Wholesale Index Shows

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Feeding the American family takes a bit more cash now than it did just before the European war began a year ago, commodity market statistics indicated today, but there has been no hint of wartime skyrocketing of food prices.

Food costs prior to last September's sharp return, resulting from a speculative and hoarding rush to buy commodities, were the lowest in five years. Now the average is approximately 3 per cent higher but still 2 per cent below the peak reached two weeks after the war began.

Statisticians based their figures on wholesale rather than retail markets, regarding the former as better barometers of food costs in general because retail prices usually reflect varying conditions in different localities. They attributed much of the price bulge since the first of the year to domestic conditions such as the expanding defense program and increased industrial activity, which is putting more funds into consumers' pockets.

Among items whose current wholesale price is below that of August 31, 1939, are rye, potatoes, lambs, pork loins, lard, sugar and coffee. Items now priced higher include wheat, corn, oats, eggs, butter, cattle, hogs, beef and flour.

Improved consumer demand has been felt particularly in the meat trade, although a decline in hog slaughtering last month also helped stiffening of prices. Part of the August increase in meat has been eliminated the past week and experts forecast a decline after mid-September.

Bread grain supplies are slightly larger than a year ago, although a considerable stock of grain is being held off the market temporarily under government loans.

Wholesale prices of some foods were slashed sharply in May when the Germans invaded Western Europe Foreign demand for many domestic products of which there are surpluses, such as wheat, corn, pork and lard, has been shut off by war developments, in contrast to conditions during the World War when allied needs were expanding.

Retail food costs for the country as a whole, based on studies in 51 cities, reached their 1940 peak in June and since have declined about 2 per cent.

List Closes Narrowly Lower in Torpid Trade; Hercules Stock Slumps 1⅝ on Tragedy

New York, Sept. 13.—Share volume dropped to the lowest level so far this month as traders awaited war and defense developments. Sabotage possibilities in the New Jersey munitions disaster were widely discussed and may have contributed to the restraint on stock dealings. The market closed narrowly lower with oils, coppers, rail equipments, foods and carrier issues small fractions higher and other groups down, notably the high-priced manufacturing stocks. The composite price for 100 stocks was .04 point lower. Aircraft showed some independent strength. Big board transfers totaled 268,180 shares.

Domestic corporate bonds were generally steady with the exception of some of the speculatives, notably rails, which have been going up rather fast recently. Some of the British Empire liens and Scandinavian obligations sold off 1 to 2 points. There were no changes of note in foreign exchange rates, except weakness in Canadian dollars. Wheat ended firm to ¼ cent off and cotton was a point higher to 1 lower.

Hercules Powder reflected in price, although not in activity, the tragedy at its Kenvil, N. J., plant. The shares closed at 80⅝, off 1⅝. Steels were erratic. Steel common added ¼ point, but Bethlehem was down ⅜ after being ahead nearly a point in the early dealings.

Warren Bros., one of the low-priced stocks, led the market on 8,500 shares at a gain of ⅜, and American Radiator enjoyed some popularity at a fractional betterment. New York Central, Anaconda and General Motors were among more seasoned issues to make upside progress on a fairly brisk trade. International Nickel showed considerable strength among the metal issues, most of which were firm, reflecting stability of the metal markets themselves.

Dow Chemical went to a new low at 153 before recovering. United Aircraft was bid up, and gains were posted by Allied Chemical, Florsheim Shoe, George Helme and International Paper preferred. American Woolen preferred gained, but the common eased fractionally despite the appearance of unofficial figures showing the company to have more than $20,000,000 of defense business on its books compared with $11,000,000 at the end of June. The company's total sales for the first six months are estimated at about $28,000,000.

Following the pattern of previous markets, traders paid little or no attention to the favorable domestic outlook which is enhanced by defense program spending preliminaries. Early reports that the London Stock Exchange was closed because of air raids, caused some nervousness but when the British market opened later and operated for an hour, prices of international stocks displayed a better tone.

Listed bonds were quiet and mostly a little higher today, turnover amounting only to $3,440,000. The modest gains in equities were reflected by similarly small advances in speculative bonds. United States Treasury issues were steady to firm, and best rated corporate securities likewise were in demand. The lack of any immediate Treasury borrowing is aiding the listed market.

Sugar Futures

New York, Sept. 13 (AP).—Sugar futures pointed upward today as a scattering of buying and covering revealed reluctant sellers. Demand was stimulated by Cuban legislative approval of plans to settle debts owed to United States firms. Brokers considered such a step a prerequisite to aid for the Cuban sugar industry.

The world list closed unchanged to 1 point higher on sales of 1,250 tons; December, *.72, March, *.77.

New York Dry Goods

New York, Sept. 13 (AP).—Dry goods: Scattered sales were reported in widely diversified constructions of cotton goods today and prices generally held at firm prices. Fall requirements of full-fashioned silk hosiery has attracted some buying in this line. Demand for women's woolen and worsted fabrics was brisk and mills are sold up on spot delivery material. Combination rayon goods are moving in good quantity while twills and poplins also commanded attention.

Wheat, Cotton Close Unchanged After Indecisive Moves

By the Associated Press

Price movements were conflicting yesterday among major commodities for future delivery. Questions raised by the battle of Britain seemed the main deterrent to decisive action.

Gains of nearly ½ cent a bushel in wheat at Chicago were later wiped out and the market closed unchanged to ¼ cent lower. Corn was ⅛ up to as much down.

Cotton dealings at New York were a standoff with final prices 5 cents a bale lower to 5 higher.

Sugar responded with moderate gains to news of Cuban legislative approval for settlement of American-owed private debts. The report stimulated hopes of new aid for the Cuban sugar industry.

Chrysler Expects To Turn Out Tanks Ahead of Schedule

Detroit, Sept. 13 (AP).—The 25-ton tanks the Chrysler Corporation will build for the United States Government will be rolling out of the new plant to be erected in nearby Macomb County well in advance of the 13 months stipulated in the contract, if the plans of K. T. Keller, president of the corporation, are realized.

Keller pointed out that Chrysler Corporation already has built 35,000 trucks for the Federal Government and that on one order earlier this year deliveries were made 90 days ahead of schedule.

Long before the contract for tank construction was signed, Keller said in an interview, 197 men went to work on the production problems involved.

Six thousand men, Keller said, would constitute one shift of the workers in the tank plant. Initially, he went on, they will turn out five tanks in an eight-hour day.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, Sept. 13 (AP).—Hog values declined 15-25 cents today, the top falling to $6.85, below the $7.00 mark for the first time since August 20. Cattle were around steady and spring lambs sold steady. The wholesale pork market also weakened, best loins falling $1.00 to $20.00 per hundredweight, $5.00 under the high mark maintained at the end of August. Receipts were light, totaling 8,000, with 3,000 direct to packers.

Cotton Futures

While slow trade demand mirrored slack business in textiles, hedging sales remained conspiculously small.

Lack of hedge pressure emphasized the lateness of the crop and the tardy fashion in which cotton is coming to market. Intosight figures for the week disclosed that only 215,000 bales showed up, contrasted with the appearance of 501,000 during the same week last season.

Worth Street cloth dealers reported prices holding firm at last week's top levels despite quiet buying. Sales for the week, it was estimated, would total only 50 per cent of current output.

Canada Dollar Slumps, Closes At 84 Cents

Drop of 1¾ Cents Caps Persistent Recent Weakness

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 13.—The Canadian dollar capped recent persistent weakness with a decline of 1¾ cents today in the free foreign money market.

Dealers attributed the break to two main reasons: a plethora of Dominion currency; slim demand now that tourist buying has fallen from summer peaks. The unit closed at 84 United States cents.

Business Highlights

Prepared for The Post by Standard Statistics.

Foreign Trade Off Slightly

Our total merchandise exports in July experienced only a slight drop—to $312,000,000, from $344,000,000 in June. This showing must be regarded as highly favorable when it is considered that our trade with France was almost entirely cut off, whereas shipments to that country in June amounted to $47,000,000. At the present time, Britain is the only European country which is buying from us in quantity. Even so, her huge demands for armaments and other materials are certain to maintain our total exports at a high level as long as she holds out. For the first seven months of this year, our total exports amounted to $2,334,000,000, or at the average monthly rate of $333,000,000. If this average is maintained, as appears likely, exports for the full year will approximate $4,000,000,000, or roughly $900,000,00 greater than in 1939.

Debt To Rise Sharply

The Government will be a heavy borrower during the remainder of this fiscal year. It is now estimated that the deficit will be $5,691,000,000, a sharp increase from the January figure of $2,876,000,000. The Treasury will borrow at least $3,000,000,000 in the open market before June 30, 1941, while the various Federal agencies will need to raise at least another $1,000,000,000. The financing of $4,000,000,000 through market issues would be the heaviest since 1936, when the soldiers' bonus was paid.

Retail Stocks Are Low

One of the strongest spots in the inventory picture is the low level of retailers' supplies in relation to the favorable volume of sales. For the past three months there has been nothing but the usual seasonal change in department store inventories. In July, department store stocks were only a little more than 1 per cent above those in July, 1939. Yet sales were up almost 4 percent. An indication of the conservative level of inventories in these stores is the fact that July sales were only 5 per cent under those of July, 1937, whereas stocks were lower by 12 per cent.

Railroad Tax Reserves

A good many railroad managements are taking action to guard final earnings reports for 1940 from being burdened with tax costs that did not show in interim statements. Atchison, for example, increased its July tax accruals by $539,000, or more than 40 per cent. Other increases were Norfolk & Western, $768,000; Louisville & Nashville, $130,000; and Great Northern, $218,000. The threat of excess-profits taxation unquestionably is having something to do with the setting up of tax reserves, even though it still appears that most roads are not going to be appreciably hurt by the new levy.

First Test for Railroads

The first real test of the railroads' ability to carry a wartime burden may come with the movement of the conscript Army. Armament deliveries are not expected to increase fast enough to tax facilities, but there is the possibility, however remote, that the roads may find it difficult to handle hundreds of thousands of conscripts without interfering with regular schedules.

Lumber Price Boosts Laid to Arms Projects

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 13 (AP).—Ben Wand, publisher of the Southern Lumber Journal, said today Army and Navy defense projects in the South, especially in Florida, had caused a temporary shortage in some classes of lumber and had resulted in a price increase of about $4 to $5 a thousand feet for Southern pine.

$65,000 Goes Abegging in Mail Fraud Case Here

When those who sent nearly $100,000 to a magazine subscription contest two years ago were offered their money back recently, only the senders of $35,000 went to the trouble of writing to get it.

This was disclosed in the District Court yesterday as Justice F. Dickinson Letts approved an order terminating a postal fraud order case involving National Weeklies, Inc., former publishers of Home Circle Magazine.

A movie star guessing contest run as a subscription attraction drew the $100,000 and a fraud citation. The money was impounded pending decision of the magazine's appeal to the District Court against the Post-office order, which was upheld some time ago.

$412,817 Tax Bite Gets Barlow's Goat

Glmite Inventor Explodes, Threatens To 'Rock Capital'

Faced with a net loss of well over $100,000 in the collection of $592,719 patent claims from the Government, Lester P. Barlow, temperamental bomb inventor, yesterday touched off the first verbal blasts in a campaign he said would "rock the Capital."

"I'm out to put the heat on the tax collectors," asserted the originator of "glmite," liquid oxygen-carbon explosive which left unscathed 100 goats but brought heated repercussions in Congress, the Army and Navy Departments, and a national humane society.

Barlow was inflamed by these legal cross-fires to his successful suit for the $592,719 awarded him by the Federal Government September 7 because of the Army's alleged infringement on five patents for "aerial torpedoes" in the World War.

From that sum he must immediately kick back an estimated $412,-817 in income taxes, leaving him only $179,902.

Then there is the matter of a suit filed September 9 by John F. Clark, Los Angeles attorney, who claims that in October, 1915, Barlow signed a contract by which the lawyer was made half-owner of the bomb invention. He demands half of the patent claim proceeds, or $296,359.50.

Should Clark's suit be decided in his favor, the Baltimore explosive maker stands liable to lose $116,-457.50 in the legal proceedings.

But Barlow is not resigned to the tax payments. "I'll fight the taxes with every legal means," he announced. "I don't want anything for Barlow. I'm just out to put the heat on the tax collectors. I'll show them they can't rob honest men."

With the same determination with which he walked out on a rain-soaked group of Senate and House Military Affairs Committee members and Army and Navy officers, who had kept him waiting for a test of his bomb, the inventor declared, "I know most people would take this on the chin without fighting, but I'm going to carry the fight to Congress. The law is wrong and I aim to get it changed."

Choice Unanimous, Although Powers Increase Is Denied

Daniel J. Tobin, perennial president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters since 1907, last night was reelected as 18 other officers and delegates were swept into office without one vote of opposition from the more than 1,000 delegates.

The unanimity of the night meeting contrasted with tumultuous morning and afternoon sessions in which Tobin was refused "dictatorial" powers and the general executive board denied additional powers.

After heated debate the delegates voted to recommit to the constitution drafting committee for revision its proposal that the president be empowered to take drastic action against any local refusing to comply with his order to arbitrate.

Tobin, who has been reelected in successive conventions since 1907 without an opposition ballot, delivered a brief acceptance speech in which he promised to "help clean wrongdoers and criminals out of organized labor."

He made the vow after tracing a stormy early career in which he was once beaten and left "dying" by an opposition group, some of whom he said remain today in labor circles.

Elected to the important secretary-treasurer post was Thomas L. Hughes, of Chicago. Nine new vice presidents in order of their rank are: Michael J. Cashal, of New York; John P. McLaughlin, of San Francisco; Leslie G. Goudie, of Chicago; John Geary, of St. Paul, 82-year-old cofounder of the brotherhood; Daniel J. Murphy, of St. Louis; John J. Conlin, of Jersey City; Thomas J. Farrell, of Cincinnati; David Beck, of Seattle, and Edward Crumbock, of Philadelphia.

In the afternoon session the convention also voted down proposals which would grant the executive board special powers of levying quarterly assessments "for emergencies or any other purpose which the general executive board in its judgment deems necessary."

Tobin and Beck, chairman of the constitution committee, also suffered setbacks when the delegates voted against an increase in the president's authority in strikes and lockouts and in the matter of wage scales.

Nathanial Lannon, of Boston; Milton Doll and John O'Brien, of Chicago, were named trustees and the following delegates to the annual A. F. L. convention completed the unanimous election: John M. Gillespie, of Boston; Frank Brewster, of Seattle; John O'Rourke, of New York; George Wilson, of Chicago, and Robert Lester, of Washington.

Red Cross Active After Plant Blast

Four Fed Cros disaster relief workers and at least 30 Red Cross nurses are in Dover, N. J., aiding in emergency care for victims of the Kenvil explosive plant explo[illegible]n, headquarters here announced yesterday.

National workers who have been assisting the Dover chapter included Dr. William DeKleine, medical advisor of the Red Cross, Mrs. Charlotte Heilman, national nursing field representative in New Jersey, and Field Representative Pearl Creecy and Harold B. Nearman.

The Dover chapter, women volunteers and members of the chapter's Motor Corps, transported 70 or 80 injured who received first aid to their homes, and delivered others to hospitals, Chairman Norman Davis said.

London Trade Report

London, Sept. 13 (AP).—Air raids cut trading time in the stock market today to about one hour but quotations were steadily maintained.

Interoffice dealings in British government bonds continued even during the bombing attacks. Prices ended mostly at unchanged levels. The 3s of '54-'58, however, dipped ⅛ point.

Leaders in the iron and steel groups changed hands at overnight levels. Most other industrials also hovered near the previous close.

Interest elsewhere was severely restricted, although brokers seemed pleased with the absence of pressure in the face of shortened trade and the nerve-racking bombardments.

A. A. U. W. to Hold First Business Meeting Of Season Monday, With Mrs. VanVleck in Chair

THE WASHINGTON BRANCH of the American Association of University Women will have its first business meeting of the season Monday. It will be a dinner meeting at which Mrs. William C. Van Vleck, the branch pesident, who has been away on several weeks' vacation, will preside. The occassion will serve as a reunion for other members of the branch who also have been on summer trips and have returned.

The regular Monday tea will be held at the clubhouse as usual with Miss Margaret Pittman and Miss Annona Lindley as hostesses. Miss Alice Ray Ebner, pianist and teacher, will present the program.

VACATION NOTES—Members of Chapter H of the P. E. O. have been taking some interesting vacations this season.

Mrs. George O. Sutton, with Mr. Sutton, combined business and pleasure in a two-week trip to Los Angeles and back by plane, while their two young children remained at home.

All of their flying was done by day. They went over the Grand Canyon and Boulder Dam and other scenic regions, flying low and as slowly as possible.

They spent four days at the San Francisco Fair and visited the M. G. M. studios in Hollywood. There they saw Nelson Eddy and Jeanette McDonald making their new picture, "Bittersweet," and Myrna Loy beginning work on a new film tentatively named "The Third Finger of Her Left Hand." In another lot, Katharine Hepburn and Roland Young, with little Virginia Weidler, were rehearing, all wearing riding habits.

The Suttons returned by way of Salt Lake City and Denver and took special plane trips over Yellowstone and Pikes Peak.

Ellen A. Hagerman, of Chapter H, is taking a ten-day vacation from her duties at the National Geographic Society. She is leaving for Huntington, W. Va., to join a sister, Mrs. Frank Foster, and a brother, Frank Hagerman, and his wife, who are delegates from Saskatchewan, Canada, to the international convention of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows now in session there. Miss Hagerman's brother is slated for election as the new grand sire of the lodge.

Mrs. R. M. Ferguson, of Chapter H, has returned to her new home, 6695 Thirty-second place, after a visit in Little Rock, Ark.

Mrs. Daniel S. Coombs, who has spent the summer with relatives and friends in Long Beach, Calif., will meet Mr. Coombs in Denver, and, after a short visit there, will return with him to Washington. They will occupy their new home at 6417 Thirty-third street.

Miss Florence E. Reynolds, 4507 Argyle terrace, has returned from a 20-day tour of the New England States and Quebec to the Gaspe Peninsula. Her sisters, Miss S. Elizabeth Reynolds, State president of the P. E. O., and Mrs. Newby accompanied her.

Mrs. Sylvia Druehl, of the Kennedy-Warren, has returned from there months' residence at the Women's City Club in San Francisco. She lived many years in San Francisco and returns annually to visit. She also spent a week in Mexico City, where she was joined by her son, Hugo Bruehl, of this city. She and her son will move October 1 to a house in Georgetown, 2701 O street.

The chapter president, Mrs. Bertha Nelson, remained at home during the season and devoted much of her time to Red Cross work, rallying Chapter H members to roll bandages each Thursday.

TO WELCOME PRESIDENT—The Women's Auxiliary of Hotel Greeters of America has made arrangements for the entertainment of Miss Bertha Hodge, of Denver, international president of the organization, who will be here on her first visit to the Washington Chapter on Sunday. A dinner in her honor will be held at the Willard Hotel at 6 p. m., followed by a meeting. Miss Hodge will arrive at 11:30 a. m., coming from Richmond, Va., where she was a guest speaker at the Southeastern Regional Greeter Convention.

Mrs. Robinson Lappin, president of the local auxiliary, has named the following directors: Education, Mrs. Weston B. Jones, jr.; American Greeter, Mrs. Agnes Carpenter; "See America First," Mrs. Robert D. Mills; public relations, Mrs. Wilmer Ruff; entertainment, Miss Edna Thompson; membership, Mrs. John Donley; interorganization, Mrs. G. Steuart Bingham; welfare, Mrs. William J. Martin; Greeter Home, Mrs. Carol Armhold, and publicity, Mrs. Harry Kopel.

Phils Defeat Cubs, 6-1; Higbe Gives 4 Hits

Pitcher Ignores Jinx To Win 13th Game; Litwhiler Stars Again

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Sept. 13.—Kirby Higbe turned his back on the superstitions of Friday the thirteenth and pitched the Phils to a 6-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs for his thirteenth triumph of the season.

He limited Chicago to four hits while his mates were collecting 11 safeties, two of them home runs by Joe Marty, off Charlie Root and Clay Bryant.

Hitting safely for the fifteenth consecutive game, Rookie Danny Litwhiler, started the Phils' scoring in the first, driving in Art Mahan, who had smacked Root's offering for a double.

Root yielded nine hits and five runs in the four innings he lasted. Marty's first homer came in the third. He slammed his second into the left-field stands from one of Bryant's slants in the fifth. Both times the sacks were empty.

Rabbit Warstler, who collected three of the four Cub hits, accounted for the lone Chicago run. He got a triple in the first and scored on an infield out.

Tigers Blast Yanks In Pennant Race

Greenberg slugged a run across the plate with a single to left, and York swatted two more home on a double to center that DiMaggio couldn't find after knocking down.

Greenberg personally lifted the Tigers' lead to 4-0 in the third with a home run into the right-center stands—his sixth in seven games—and in the fourth the Tigers knocked Russo out of the box. They got two runs in that inning when Gordon broke slow on McCosky's grounder which evolved as a single to center. Sundra was the victim of that blow.

The Tigers scored a run in the seventh and eighth, but with Bridges pitching one-hit ball since the fifth inning, those runs were as superfluous as—well, name your own simile.

Armstrong Arrives For Bout With Furr

Manager Eddie Mead Will Appear Before D. C. Commission Monday to Explain Mike Jacobs' Threat to Halt Fight; Furr Down to 151

Added steam will be given the 15-round welterweight title bout Monday, September 23 at Griffith Stadium between Champion Henry Armstrong and Challenger Phil Furr with the arrival today of the titleholder for a week of strenuous training.

Armstrong will work out about 2 o'clock at Turner's Arena, coming here direct from his outdoor retreat at Greenwood Lake, N. J. Hurricane Henry has been there since last Saturday, and Eddie Mead, speaking to Matchmaker Menendez yesterday, said the champion had sliced his weight down to 155.

Harry Armstrong, Henry's brother, will be down to supervise the training. Followers of the fistic sport consider Harry one of the best handlers of fight flesh in the country. He has been with the titleholder ever since he started piling up his amazing record.

Everett Rightmire, Sioux City, Iowa, lightweight, will do most of the sparring with the champion. He is said to have a straight, stand-up style like Furr. Rightmire will fight on the card to be co-promoted by Joe Turner and the Variety Club.

Furr yesterday had a spirited workout at the Huron gym, and reported he was down to 151 pounds. Either today or tomorrow he will move to the Meadowbrook Saddle Club just off the East-West highway. Elaborate training quarters have been arranged for him there.

Chris Dundee, Furr's New York manager, is due in town today with a battery of sparmates who fight along Armstrong's style. Dundee believes the right type of sparring partners will be of great value to the challenger.

Eddie Mead, the champ's pilot, is slated to attend a hearing at 2 p. m. Monday at the boxing commission. There he will do some tall explaining about Mike Jacobs' threatened injunction to block the local fight, and about his plans to request a reduction in the rounds.

The Variety Club already has moved fast, and Sidney Lust, its president, reported some 400 ringside seats sold.

Rocky Mount Evens Piedmont Series

Rocky Mount, N. C., Sept. 13 (AP).—Behind the four-hit pitching of Norman Brown, Rocky Monut evened the final series with Durham at one-all for the Piedmont play-off title with a 5-1 victory tonight.

The third game will be played in Durham tomorrow night. West Livengood or Ted Deets will be on the mound for the Bulls, with Ken Heist slated to work for the Red Sox.

Ice Skaters Get 1st Action of Year Tonight at Palace

Ice skating fans throughout the city will welcome the opening of the Chevy Chase Ice Palace tonight at 7:30 o'clock, when a special program will be undergone to officially launch the season.

Remodeled, and with numerous huge mirrors now affording skaters a full-length view of themselves in action, the rink is expected to be increasingly popular this winter. Norval Baptie, professional, will again give lessons and supervise activities.

A special tour of the Palace and its freezing plant is one of the events scheduled for tonight. The machinery, etc., which keeps a layer of ice on the 20,000-foot surface will be explained.

2 Buckeyes Hurt After First Practice

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 13 (AP).—Only the tackling dummies were unlucky this Frida the 13th as Ohio State University's football squad seasoned up for an "all out" scrimmage tomorrow. Coach Francis A. Schmidt put his Western Conference champions through a stiff four-hour drill on blocking and passing. Thornton Dixon, veteran tackle, comlained of a sore leg tendon and joined End Frank Clair on the bench, but the injury was regarded as minor. Clair has an ailing groin.

Miss Niess Leads Ladies Pin League

Miss Audrey Niess, of Shah and Shah quintet, led the individual scoring in the Ladies Independent League last night at Arcadia alleys, scoring a 147. Eleanor Bark, of States, had high game with 361.

Miss Niess' teammates combined for high group game and set, 609 and 1,567.

In the Ladies League at Brookland alleys, Willis' Esso five was high with 545 and 1,512, while Louis Gladding had 136-334 for individual honors.

the lead in the last of the frame as George McQuinn opened with a double against the rightfield screen. Case dropped Berardino's fly in left center for an error, but McQuinn could get no further than third. Both runners scored, however, on Swift's pop double which fell between Walker and Pofahl. Swift was sacrificed to third and counted when Jack Sanford threw wide to the plate after taking Grace's grounder.

The Browns loaded the bases in the fourth and fifth innings against Monteagudo but were unable to score and finally wound up the counting in the eighth when Clift walked, went to third on McQuinn's second double and scored on Berardino's long fly.

Pofahl drew a pair of walks in the late innings for the Senators' only threats. He opened the sixth with a pass but Ferrell hit into a double play in the ninth, he started the inning with another pass but after Ferrell flied to Judnich, Buddy Myer batted for Monteagudo and forced him. Case then struck out to end the game.

Judnich Gets 3 Hits

Walt Judnich paced the afternoon hitting with three hits, one a double. Harland Clift drew four walks in five appearances at the plate, drawing three of the passes off Monteagudo.

In the final game of the series tomorrow, Ken Chase will attempt to give the Senators an edge in the series while Bob Harris has been named for the Browns' pitching duty.

The victory this afternoon was the Browns' tenth in 21 games with the Senators this season.

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

By Arch McDonald

Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

The Nats had another of their horrible days yesterday, maybe because of Friday the thirteenth, and therefore Man Of The Month honors are extremely scarce. Little Rene Monteagudo, if anyone, was a standout as the Senators lost ingloriously to St. Louis, relieving Sid Hudson on the mound in the fourth and pitching fairly tight ball from there in.

To Monteagudo: Five points for five innings of five-hit ball, during which he struck out four Brownie batsmen.

To George Case: Two points because he registered two singles in five times at bat, driving in one of Washington's three runs.

To Buddy Lewis: Two points because he hit a double and single in four times. He scored a run himself.

CAA Closes Plane-Crash Investigation

Report to Be Made In 2 or 3 Weeks, Chairman Says

Seven days of inquiry into causes of the crash of a Pennsylvania-Central airliner near Lovettsville, Va., with loss of 25 lives, were ended yesterday by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Harllee Branch, chairman of the board, said a report would be made "in two or three weeks."

Paul Gillespie, chief of the investigation section of the board, testified yesterday that some parts of the shattered plane were removed by souvenir hunters before an adequate guard could be placed. None of these parts, he added, was of importance to the investigation into causes of the crash.

Ground Inspected

He and his assistants, Gillespie said, had inspected the ground under the probable flight path of the plane before it struck, without discovering any parts which might have fallen from the ship in flight. He said also that persons living in the vicinity had been asked to report finding any unusual object but none had reported up to last night.

Testimony that no fragments of the engines and propellers were handled by any unauthorized persons in being transported from Lovettsville to the P.-C. A. shops at Pittsburgh was offered by Clarence Bernard Sites, company truck driver. Senator McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, who vigorously opposed transfer of the independent Civil Aeronautics Authority to the Commerce Department, had questioned the board's method of handling these parts.

Sites declared the parts were loaded on his truck at Lovettsville and were not seen or handled by anyone except himself until they were unloaded under board supervision at Pittsburgh. Frank Caldwell, chief of the board's investigation division, said the procedure in transferring the parts to the company's shops was customery, since no facilities existed at the scene for disassembling the engines for inspection.

Paul A. Gareau, meteorologist employed by the board's safety bureau, testified that he had once flown through a "severe thunderstorm," with rainfall "at the rate of 4 inches an hour," which did not affect the pilot's control of the airplane.

Other meterologists testified that records made August 31 showed a total of 1.92 inches precipitation at Harpers Ferry, W. Va., a few miles from Lovettsville. The rain, said George Andrus, aviation weather expert of Cleveland, Ohio, who made an extensive investigation at the scene, was "no doubt a torrential downpour."

No violation of the board's regulations in operation and maintenance of the plane was ever recorded, R. I. Hazen, chief of the air carrier inspection service of the CAB, testified. He placed in the record a report of an examination of the plane made by his office August 30, the day before the fatal crash.

Christ, Scientist Churches' Topic To Be 'Substance'

"Substance" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow, at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday School is at 11 a. m. All are invited to attend the church services including the Wednesday evening meetings at 8 o'clock.

The text is from Romans 8:25. "If we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "But thou, O man of God, flee these things; and follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness." (I Timothy 6:11.)

Sheed to Address Catholic Guild

Frank J. Sheed, internationally noted author, lecturer and publisher, will address the Washington Catholic Evidence Guild meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in Franklin Park, Fourteenth and K streets northwest. He is founder of the Westminster Guild of London, after which the local unit is patterned, and head of the firm of Sheed and Ward, New York City.

The Rev. James A. Caulfield, Miss Catherine Jarboe and Gregory Smith also will be heard at that session. The Rev. Wilbur Wheeler, assistant pastor of St. Matthew's Cathedral; Thomas McCormack and J. G. Walsh will address the 3 o'clock meeting there.

Mrs. L. M. O'Hara, Guild vice president, author and educator, will direct the afternoon meeting in Public Library Park, Ninth and New York avenue northwest. Speakers will be James McLean, Edward J. McDonald and Alvin Burggraff. Dr. William H. Russell, of Catholic University faculty, will conduct the night pitch there.

Contract Bridge

This hand, which occurred in a Boston tournament, was successfully fulfilled at six spades. How would you manage it? Here are the cards:

North: ♠ A 6 4 2 ♡ A Q 3 ◇ A Q J 9 7 5 ♣ None

West: ♠ 10 9 7 5 ♡ 8 2 ◇ C ♣ A K 10 9 5 4

East: ♠ J ♡ J 10 9 6 4 ◇ 8 4 3 2 ♣ Q 8 3

South: ♠ K Q 8 3 ♡ K 7 5 ◇ K 10 ♣ J 7 6 2

The first club was trumped in dummy and a low spade led. East put on the jack; declared played low, allowing the adversary to win the trick. Since declarer could afford to lose one trick, he could just as well let the defense take its trump trick early while there were still trumps in dummy to guard the clubs. But declarer could not afford to lose a spade later.

Friday 13th Jinx Fails to Dull Appetites for Birthday Cake

One Young Guest Brings His Rabbit's Foot Along—Just in Case—When Peggy Faunce Celebrates Her 13th Birthday

A big cake with orange icing takes the superstition out of a child as quickly as a year on the Riviera is reputed to take the socialism out of a left-winger.

It was so with Peggy Faunce's birthday party yesterday. Peggy is 11 years old now and her birthday anniversary fell on Friday, the 13th just as her birth did.

She sent out her invitations, reminding that it was a solemn occasion in her life—this business of a girl's getting a year older—and a solemn one under the circumstances of the grisly calendar day.

They all came to her house, at 1609 Allison street northwest. One little boy brought a rabbit foot as a charm. He held it above the cake—a likely place because there is danger of tummy-ache in such environment, on a Friday 13th or just on an ordinary old Monday or Tuesday, for that matter.

The others crossed their fingers across the cake when the eleven candles were lighted. They weren't scared. That meant "nibs" on a slice.

Conferees Add Billion to RFC Fund Limit

Senate, House Bills Compromised to Aid Latin-American Loans

By the Associated Press

A $1,500,000,000 increase in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's borrowing power, to bolster Latin-American economy and aid the domestic defense program, was agreed upon yesterday by Senate-House conferees.

The agreement represented a compromise between Senate and House bills. The Senate had voted to limit the increase to $500,000,000 to be used for loans to Latin-American countries. The House voted for $1,500,000,000.

Chairman Wagner (Democrat), of New York, of the Senate Banking Committee said the additional $1,000,000,000 would be used to "speed the national defense program."

Administration men had urged the Latin-American loans as a means of checkmating Hitler in that area of the world. Opponents, including Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, had called the program unwise and futile.

The compromise draft bars any loans which would violate the neutrality act's prohibition against credit for belligerents or the Johnson Act's ban on loans to war debt defaulters.

Nellie Fike to Speak At Bethany Baptist

Miss Nellie Fike, president of the Columbia Federation of Baptist Young People's Unions, will address the B. Y. P. U. of Bethany Baptist Church tomorrow at 6:45 p. m. The Rev. # Silver Spring Groups Join Fight on Dumps

Program to Enlist Entire Community Outlined at Meeting

Elimination of dumps and provisions for county trash and garbage collection is the objective planned by the sanitation and public health committee of the Allied Civic Groups of Silver Spring, Md., Frank J. Felker, chairman, announced yesterday.

The committee held a meeting at the Felker home in Woodmoor Thursday night to plan for community-wide cooperation in the drive for refuse collection. Basing plans on the successful operation of the special transportation committee which secured marked increase in bus service for the Silver Spring area, it is planned to ask each member association to send its sanitation chairman to serve on the committee.

Following a survey of the situation, each association of the area will be asked to indorse the movement and to aid in successful prosecution of the campaign, Felker said.

Considerable data has been compiled by the nucleus committee of the group through the summer, he said.

To Enlist Other Groups

Other large groups of the county will be asked to cooperate in the campaign, Felker said. Groups of the rural sections not affected by the collection service will be asked to indorse the action as a health measure. A number of rural section groups already have complained to the county commissioners regarding dumps and have urged that they be abolished.

The committee has tentatively decided to urge that surplus funds derived from the Maryland income tax in excess of the budget expectations of the commissioners be devoted to inauguration of the trash collection and construction of an incinerator for the county, Felker said. Most of the money was collected from the residents of the suburban area, he pointed out, and it is equitable that the excess should be devoted largely to the service of the suburban section.

Dr. A. L. Brueckner was appointed secretary of the sanitation committee at the meeting. He is a well-known authority on sanitation and is expected to be of great assistance to the committee in preparation of technical matter, Felker said.

Menace to Health Seen

Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer, earlier in the week reported to the county commissioners that the operation of open dumps and the feeding of collected garbage to hogs constitute a decided menace to health. He urged that the county inaugurate a trash and garbage collection service.

President Thomas Earle Hampton, of the board of commissioners, indicated his sympathy with the movement earlier in the week. He said he hopes to have county collection of trash and garbage an accomplished fact before his term of office is completed.

Large numbers of county residents are throwing their trash in vacant lots and along the highways, constituting a serious menace to health, Felker said. The inauguration of the county-controlled system need not cause hardship for the private trash companies, since it is probable that the collection will be by contract, at the beginning of the system, thus obviating the need for large outlays for equipment and organization of the system, Felker said.

For you people who have been unfortunate enough never to have heard Elder Lightfoot Solomon Michaux and the joyous singers of his 156-voice choir—and also for you people who have been hearing them every Sunday morning over WJSV for the past eight years and who still haven't heard their happy voices enough—this is a reminder that the Elder and his famous chorus can be heard every Sunday night throughout September in a series of revival meetings at Griffith Stadium.
The series, undoubtedly one of Washington's greatest eye and ear entertainments, is to be concluded September 29 with a mass baptismal service on the baseball diamond.
Another reminder in order today is that WJSV's Elinor Lee on her 8:45 a. m. program is to present the finale in the succession of children's shows in which she has been exhibiting the prowess of talented Washington youngsters—singers, dancers, speakers, instrumentalists.
This swan song, before the youngsters go back to school, has been written by Mikkell Lyne, is titled "Rhythm School" and, in original verse, tells of the reactions of the kids to their return to the three R's. Further, it's something of a satire on progressive education.

The Post Radio Time Table

10:45 a. m., WJSV—"The Pixy Ring," a modern fairy tale for string quartet by England's H. Waldo Warner, is programmed by the Dorian String Quartet, now heard at a later, briefer period.

12:30 p. m., WMAL—That burning question, "Can New York replace Paris as the world's fashion center?" may have some new light shed on it when Elsa Schiaparelli chats with Ilka Chase.

1, WJSV—Ted Husing airs the National Amateur Golf Championship.

1, WRC—Tony Sarg served as an officer in the German army before the World War and before he achieved his fame as illustrator and puppeteer. But now, and for many years past, he's been able to say: "I'm an American."

1, WOL—This Might Be You offers dramatizations of employer-employe relationships, produced by Frank Blair, of Mutual and the United States Department of Labor.

2:30, WRC—Detour to Happiness, a new series of six stories written for the Community Chest by Joseph L. Brechner, author of "Dreams Come True." This first is subtitled "Foundling Home."

3:30, WMAL and WOL—As the racing season nears our town, the handicaps take on further importance. Here's the Edgemere Handicap from Aqueduct.

3, WRC—Clarinetist Gustave Langenus is assisting artist with the Budapest String Quartet in its Library of Congress concert, programming two clarinet quartets, Mozart in A major (K. 581) and Brahms in B minor, Op. 115. Also promised is Beethoven's Quartet in F major, Op. 18, No. 1.

6, WJSV—Again, be gurrough, that burning matter: Where will the new world fashion center be located? People's Platform discusses this subject with Bijie de Wardener, Omar Kiam, Emil Alvin Hartman and Carmel Snow. It's a burning question all right. Like when Rome burned.

7, WRC—Schizophrenia is a word we caught from Mary Haworth. It means an escape from the sordid frustrations of everyday life to a dream world which eventually becomes real. It has both benefncent and malignant forms. The Listener's Playhouse uses this as an idea for its play, "We Take You Now to Lethe."

8:30, WOL—"A Stop Watch and An Ordnance Map" is Alfred Wallenstein's latest discovery in the field of original American composition. It was composed by Samuel Barber and is based on words by the contemporary English poet, Stephen Spender.

Are Fine Shirts Your Weakness?

There's a weakness in practically every one of us males. Achilles had his vulnerable heel. Samson's was in his shorn locks. But in this day and age when a smart appearance is the fashion, most of us men have a weakness for fine shirts. If you have, and don't mind saving a pretty penny, we suggest you read below . . . and then see the shirts.

ALL IMPORTED 2x2 GLEAMING BROADCLOTHS

$5 to 6.50 "Excello" Shirts

2.95

You may or may not have heard of the famous "Excello" Shirt Company. But in the shirt industry it is as well known as the Buick name is in the automotive world. "Excello" makes only the highest priced shirts.

Our men's furnishings buyer was extremely fortunate in getting his hands on a group of these shirts of fine imported 2x2 broadcloths. The "Excello" Company imported the fabrics and tailored them over here in the U. S. A. according to their exacting requirements. They fit to perfection and look even better. Once you see them you'll know they're $5 and $6.50 values.

NOTE THESE IMPORTANT FEATURES: Single needle, set-in sleeves for more comfort and smarter appearance—no bulging at chest, shoulders, waist or back . . . All Rigmel-Shrunk (not over 1% residual shrinkage) — the English non-shrinking process that guarantees a perfect fit after repeated launderings . . . The finest quality Ocean Pearl Buttons—anchored on to stay . . . French Fronts faced with self material . . . Regular and French (double) cuffs . . . Gleaming White and British stripings . . . all 2x2 imported broadcloths . . . $5 to $6.50 values for only $2.95.
